Two Oceans Visible From Costa Rica

IRAZU VOLCANO, in central Costa Rica, affords one of the Western Hemisphere's most thrilling spectacles. A traveler, standing near the top which rises 11,322 feet above sea level, can see not only the Atlantic 35 miles away but, on a clear morning, the Pacific too, 60 miles to the west. Not even Balboa, who discovered the Pacific, had the experience of seeing two oceans from the same spot.

But the long, steep drive up the concrete road to the summit would be worthwhile even if the two oceans were out of sight. A look over the edge discloses clouds of steam, ashes and smoke ascending from the apparently bottomless crater. The air is filled with a sulphurous smell. For some distance around the crater's lip every trace of vegetation has long since succumbed to the arid fumes. Irazu, "this great forge of Nature," has been active for untold centuries, and is still going strong.

An equally sublime view is that from the Poas Volcano, which overlooks the Costa Rican capital, San Jose. The last stages of the climb to the summit have to be made on horseback and foot. Without exception the world's largest, the crater is over a mile in diameter and its vertical walls drop several hundred feet before enclosing the boiling lake of sulphurous mud which makes Poas not so much a volcano as a gigantic geyser.

The MAIB reports that the scene, though far from beautiful, is awe-inspiring beyond words. An intense stillness hanging over the crater adds to the solemnity of the scene, making visitors feel that they have been privileged to witness a phase of the earth's development predating the appearance of Man. By way of compensating for the grimness of Poas, there is, half a mile off, a second crater, extinct. Nature has converted it into a crystal-clear lake half a mile wide, surrounded by the lush verdure of a tropical forest.

But there are more than volcanoes to see in Costa Rica. The fact that it is a country of great natural beauty is shown by its nicknames: "Land of Eternal Spring," "Country of Rainbows," "Flower Garden of the Tropics," and so on. The scenic wonders of the Orosi Valley have earned it the name "Vale of Enchantment." At the valley's far end, encompassed by virgin jungle, is the mighty, beautiful waterfall of Orosi, 300 feet high.

Salem Skippers Toured World to Fill Most Unique Museum

ONE OF THE OLDEST MUSEUMS in the United States and abounding with the "flavor" of nautical old New England, is the Peabody Museum at Salem, Mass. Having been in continuous operation since its founding, it began as the East India Marine Society . . . later endowed by George Peabody, a London banker and philanthropist (born near Salem) and named in his honor.

Membership to this interesting and unique organization, was originally restricted to persons who had navigated the seas near the Cape of Good Hope or Cape Horn . . . as captains or supercargoes in Salem craft. And, one of the main purposes of the organization was to establish a "museum of natural and artificial curiosities, particularly such as are to be found beyond these two important Capes."

The members responded literally . . . by bringing back from every corner of the earth, a fabulous collection of objects. Their legend became "to the farthest port of the rich East." Portraits of these energetic New England Skippers, occupy a special section of the now famous Peabody Museum.

Among the exhibits which intrigue the visitor to this unusual museum . . . a wine goblet made from the horn of a rhinoceros and dated 1799; a porringer fashioned from

Souvenirs given by the family of Napoleon to George Crowninshield (member of one of Salem's first families), are also numerous and varied. He went to the Mediterranean in "Cleopatra's Barge" . . . the first sea-going the copper pump of the H.M.S. Bounty (given to an American captain who took a group of descendants of the mutineers away from the lonely Pitcairn Island).

American yacht to sail there, by the way! According to gossip of the time, his purpose in going, was to rescue the former French emperor from his British captors.

Here also may be seen the earliest American painting of an American-built ship, the "Bethel" . . . a flag made by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson for the king of one of the Gilbert Islands . . . a superb collection of ship models . . . more than twenty thousand pictures of ships . . . a sextant used by David Livingstone in Africa . . . nautical instruments of Nathaniel Bowditch (famous author on navigation who was born in Salem) . . . relics of the frigate "Constitution" . . . Fiji spears . . . Australian boomerangs . . . figureheads from old ships!

Tropical Salads

HERE IN THE TROPICS, where food takes on an especially delightful aspect, we are becoming more and more conscious of salads. Taking its rightful place in this world of delicacies is the palm cabbage salad, made from the palatable heart of the cabbage palm, which grows fervently in our tropical surroundings.

Restaurant and cafe owners are becoming more and more aware of the possibilities of this unusual vegetable. Winter visitors and year around residents of Florida are constantly developing a taste for it; and it is appearing regularly on menu cards throughout the South. Its original taste and delectable flavor have done much to raise it in the estimation of gourmets who delight in sampling new and individual dishes.

In preparing the palm salad, cabbage is cut from the unopened bud in the top of the palm. It is then cut into long or square shapes and seasoned with your favorite dressing, whether it be French or mayonnaise. Served with dinner, it is a savouriness concoction.

Palm cabbage is a name given to one of various species of the palm tree; from the circumstance that the end bud, which is of great size is edible and resembles cabbage. It is a native of the West Indies and grows profusely in Florida. The unbranched stem grows to a height of one hundred and fifty or even two hundred feet. It is crowned by a head of large feather like leaves; and the removal of the bud completely destroys the tree, as it is unable to produce lateral buds.

The Palm cabbage is able to resist hurricanes, strong wind and rain storms, and other similar acts of nature. It will take root anywhere, stand transplantation and seems never to die a natural death.

Botanists have listed more than two thousand varieties of palms. Large numbers of them grow somewhere in Florida; and many may be found anywhere. One of the most ancient forms of vegetation, these remarkable forms of trees give to Florida much of the tropical beauty which is one of the main attractions the state has to offer. Besides being decorative, they are suggestive of the calm, serene, easy way of life which has become so typical of our beloved environment. Standing like sentinels before many a stately dwelling, the palm tree is as much a part of the background as the sand and sea. Regal palms gracefully garnish literally every avenue in Palm Beach. Their regal position serves to emphasize their rhymlal carriage.

Palm trees serve useful purposes, as illustrated by the palm cabbage salad. A group of women, residents of near-by Riviera, have captured the art of making decorative accessories from the sturdy palm frond. Attractive table mats, hi-jacks, handbags, unusual lapel pins, and even hats have been fashioned from this gift of nature. Hand-painted, tropical designs aid in enhancing the beauty of these handmade novelties. This vocation has developed into a great Florida industry and besides producing various souvenirs for tourists, it supplies work and a means of living for a large number of Florida residents.

In this startling age we are now entering, it is presumed that many new and interesting uses will be made from this common form of vegetation, the palm cabbage.

The Bean Family

THERE ARE PSEUDO MEMBERS of this family that are interesting, not for their food value, but for their attraction as curiosities or their adaptability as ornaments. One of these varieties is called the "lucky" bean. This is classified as a sea bean and is found along the Florida coast. It is flat and round, averaging about an inch in diameter, and averages over a quarter of an inch thick. Its color ranges from a dark maroon to black. Since this bean is very hard and will take a high polish, it is often used as an ornament by affixing a link of gold in it so that it may be attached to a chain. When first washed up on the shore it has a dull appearance but buffing will soon reveal a glossy surface. It, being the seed of a leguminous plant, is entitled to be called a bean.

Another variety, very common hereabouts and as interesting as the sea bean in the way of ornament, is the little round scarlet bean with the black eye. The plant on which it grows is sometimes called Crab's Eye Vine, a very obvious appellation. The vine has very delicate compound leaves and clusters of pale, almost colorless pink flowers that fruit into pods that bear arrestingly brilliant scarlet seeds. This plant is native of India and has been used for rosaries by Buddhists and also as a standard of weight. It grows abundantly in the West Indies where it is largely used for making ornamental chains to be worn as necklaces. There is an art in preparing these seeds so that they may be strung on a cord or fine chain, for when fully ripe they are very hard.

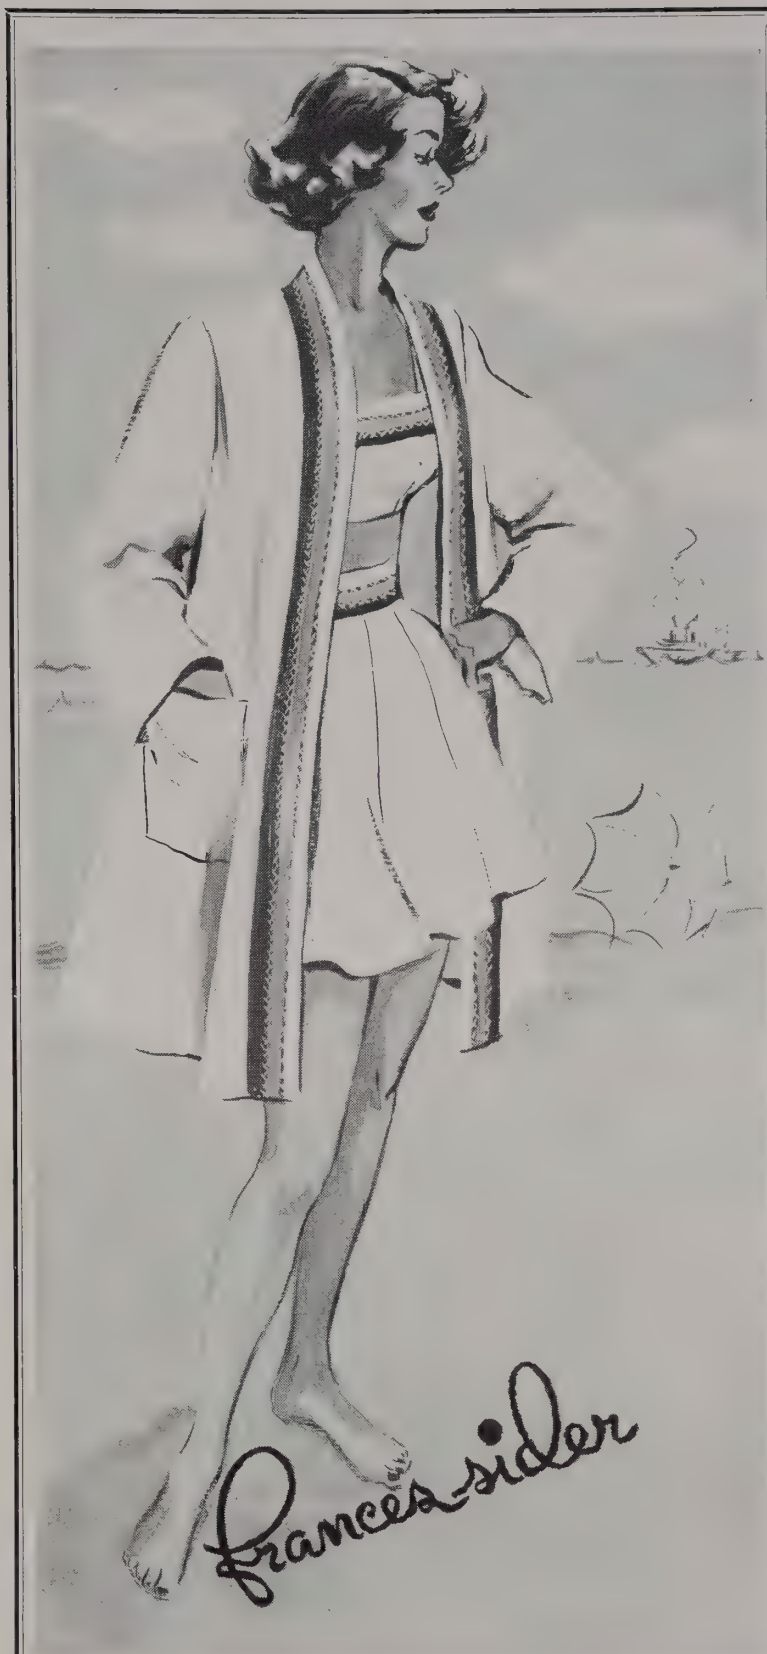

Beans vary so much in shape, size, and color that they make a most exhaustive and interesting study. Some are round and some are angular, some are large and some are small, some are flat and others are round and fat, some have odd shapes which accounts for their descriptive names, such as the kidney bean. Some are edible, some are valuable for forage, and some are inedible even to the extent of being poisonous, as is the handsome little crab's eye bean.

The best known edible bean is called the string bean, though this variety might lose in a contest for popularity in Boston where the Navy bean rides at anchor. The strange feature of the string bean is that the qualification of "bean" is quite negligible and it is the coating, or pod, with or without strings, green or wax-colored, that provides its food value. Another popular food variety is the lima bean which differs from the string beans in that it is the bean itself that is the edible part and not the pod.

Some beans are runners, some are "polers," and some are just bush. There are beans, too, that when shelled present pink ornamental designs on a cream background but all of their beauty disappears in the cooking. This is however, compensated by the delicious flavor. The farmer, the cook, and the gourmet all know the value of their beans.

An important member of the bean family not to be overlooked is the Soy. In Spanish, soy means "I am"; in beanish, soy is also acquiring an ego intensity. The soy bean is rapidly claiming increasing attention in our vitamin-conscious world. The Spanish soy stands for permanency; the beanish soy is vying to make a similar claim. From a mere forage plant it has advanced to become a valuable food constituent for humans.

It seems almost needless to suggest that the collecting of a variety of beans, which dry very satisfactorily, might furnish a most interesting and stimulating hobby. Whatever the word bean connotes from "sea to shining sea" might produce surprising revelations.

"Bird Dogs" Go to School To Become Good Hunters

AN AGE-OLD TEAM, man and dog! In the prehistoric era when man and dog began working together, both were hunters. In the 20th Century way of life, only a small proportion of the canine population is trained to hunt. And man, to suit his moods and methods, has reduced many breeds to a size which would have doomed them to rapid extinction in the eras when one animal was the prey of other larger or more alert animals. But in spite of all these changes and evolutions through the ages, the original partnership of man and dog, still remains.

Born hunters are the bird dogs . . . commonly spoken of in a group and including the pointing breeds. Obedience trials have become paramount in importance in the training in recent years . . . in these, the dog begins with such rudimentary things as learning to walk at heel and to sit when their handlers stop. Then, they carry on through jumping and retrieving to such advanced tests as scent discrimination and the final stage, tracking.

On the occasion when dog, steadied to wing and shot, brings its bird to hand, there is an incomparable thrill for both master and dog. This resulting gratification far exceeds the joy of passive companionship between humans and the canine world!

Field trials have a very important place aside from proving the hunting qualities of dogs . . . they have unlimited value as a school in which sportsmen can learn what part a trained field dog plays in conversation. For instance, the man with a good dog can fill his bag with the allotted number of birds more rapidly than the one who lacks the helpful co-operation of a canine partner. And besides, he can do this without leaving a number of crippled birds. According to statistics compiled recently, several million ducks were crippled and lost last year and hunters were unanimous in agreeing that the use of field-trained dogs would have cut this figure down considerably. All classes of game birds meet the same fate.

The dog of the "hunting man and dog team," has three important functions . . . to find the birds, get them into the air and bring them back after the hunter has shot them down. And, while the average gun dog does all of these things, special value has been placed on different parts of the job for the various breeds. In the pointing types for example, emphasis is placed on locating the hiding birds and keeping them pinned down with a point until the hunter arrives.

In the case of the retrievers, the ability to bring back the bird rather than trying to locate it, is the main issue. Spaniels are usually able to perform all three of these important feats of hunting.

During the field trials, it is the usual custom to work the dogs in pairs, regardless of breed. This not only reduces the time required to give each canine a fair chance, but also lessens the number of birds used. The contestants work through a stretch of open country where the judges may observe their interest in hunting and their expediency in covering the ground. They are then brought into the bird field where game is sure to abound. A surprising thing about a good bird dog, is the speed with which it can distinguish between the game bird it is after and all other forms of wild life.

Cat Key Club

A GOLF TOURNAMENT was played Saturday over the Windsor Downs Course in Cat Cay. This course is named in honor of H.R.H. the Duke of Windsor, who with his Duchess, was a frequent guest at the Cat Key Club, when he was Governor General of the Bahamas. Other popular sports in this Bahaman resort are tennis, skeet shoots and fishing.

Ocean and air cruises continually bring members with guests to the Cat Key Club. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Putman, Miami Beach, aboard their yacht "Sabalo" recently dropped anchor in Pirates Cove at the Cay, their cruise guests being Mr. and Mrs. Roberto Medrano and Mrs. George Livesey, Miami Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul Ludwig, Miami Beach arrived on their yacht "Sarob," with their guests, Mrs. Dan Topping, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Shephard, Coral Gables, Fla. The Ludwigs, who are occupying the Strong Cottage while sojourning at the Cay, gave a cocktail party there a few days ago.

Mr. Virgil C. Moore, Star Island, Miami Beach, recently arrived in his airplane at Cat Cay, accompanied by Mr. W. Redfield, also of Miami Beach, and entertained a group of colonists at a luncheon party in the Patio at the Manor House.

The honeymooning Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Hollingshead, Jr., Philadelphia, who were guests for a few weeks at the Cat Key Club, are now colonists at the British Colonial Hotel in Nassau. They recently airplaned back for luncheon in the Sir Bede Clifford Hall at the Cay, where they entertained their plane guests, Lady Sackville of London, England, and Lady Oakes of Nassau.

Yacht "Dragon Lady" recently docked in Pirates Cove, Cat Cay. Aboard were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Ames, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Walcott, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bacon, socialites of Boston, Mass. They joined other colonists in doings at the Cat Key Club.

Another handsome yacht at Cat Cay is "All Alone," which arrived from the Flamingo Hotel Pier, Miami Beach. Aboard were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Flagg, Englewood, N. J., Mr. Charles Pharis, Saddle River, N. J., Mr. Robert Bluntschli, Paterson, N. J. and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Quaintance, New Canaan, Conn. They are guests at the Cat Key Club.

The "Graceful III," another trim yacht, is berthed at Cat Cay. Aboard are Mrs. Harry L. Vail, Cleveland, and the Windsor T. Whites and the Thomas M. Whites of Chagrin Falls, O. Mrs. Vail and the Whites have been feted by the Frederick Coolidge Crawfords of Shaker Heights, O., and by the Robert P. Ludwigs, Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Mercer, Rumson, N. J., are on their yacht "Blue-jacket" at Cat Cay, having sailed her from Cuba. After a few days at the Cat Cay Club, they will continue their cruise to Miami Beach, where they will tie up at the Flamingo Hotel pier.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles G. Bivins, Amarillo, Texas, recently arrived at the Cay, and are in residence in Primrose Cottage at the Cat Key Club. Other Texans due to arrive are the Lloyd Smiths of Houston. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Barbour, Englewood, N. J., here for the season, are occupying their cottage, "Pelican House," Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Hamilton, Minneapolis, Minn., are also recent arrivals, as are Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Kinney, and the Sam Emersons of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moyer, Far Hills, N. J., who are honeymooning at the Cay, entertained a few days ago with a party in Kitten Key Hall for all members of the Club and their guests. Other hosts at larger parties recently include Mr. Frederick S. Stearns, Detroit, and Mr. Roger W. Converse, Boston.

Mr. Richard Hoyt, New York and Palm Beach, at Cay aboard his yacht "Cavu" recently boated a 37 1-2 lb. Wahoo at Cat Cay, and Mr. Henry C. Petteys, Greenwich, N. Y., while fishing with the George Warren Colliers, Wilmington, Del. aboard their cruiser "Tiscy" brought in a 30 1-2 lb barracuda.

An enthusiastic gallery of colonists cheered the contestants in the week-end Skeet Shoot with Mr. Richard M. Hollingshead, Jr., Camden, New Jersey, and Mr. Arch T. Colwell, Cleveland, declared the winners. Tennis and golf tournaments are scheduled for next week end.

The Cat Cay Cabana Club was the scene last Thursday night of a gay beach party, with songs and music by Harry Finley, New York, accordionist and pianist. Dancing on the Club pool deck was a feature of the affair.

Mr. Lamot duPont, Wilmington, Del., and Palm Beach winter colonist, arrived at the Cay this week end aboard his yacht "Willit".

Winter Memories

*In the mind
Winter is now behind

ONE'S THOUGHTS have now turned from anticipation and speculation to retrospect. At the beginning of the winter no one could possibly foretell what the season would be like except for one thing and that was that a greater number of people were coming into this winter paradise than ever before. Apparently all available space had been booked. Yet throughout the season there was a constant influx more than commensurate with the hegira.

In general terms, looking backward will recall varying pictures of what was most outstanding, most delightful, most important, and most impressive. For one, it might be the unusual in nature, for another, the atmospheric effect, for others, opportunities rare and entertaining, and for all, agreeable associations and mingling with delightful people.

More specifically, the past winter seems to have established some innovations such as the symphony concerts, and renewed many of the activities temporarily discontinued during the war. With a lighter heart one could enjoy the teas, luncheons, clubs, and festivities.

The effect produced by work carried on here during the war to help in some degree to lighten the rather dreary lot of the soldier stationed in army quarters has not been entirely forgotten. The good people who gave so generously of their time and strength have been backing other enterprises of philanthropic nature this past winter. Palm Beach always goes "over the top" when solicited for any good cause. That in itself is a salutary experience to look back upon. To the person who spent his first winter here this may seem remarkable, and so it is, but it is usual also.

Many other things may have seemed unusual to the initiate and consequently have filled his record of the winter's events with a profusion of pleasant memories. But even the oldtimer has but to conjure up such names as tombola, Worth Avenue, Bethesda chimes, Loxahatchee River, the Breakers cabana, the Four Arts, or many others too numerous to catalog, in order to relive moments and hours of exquisite pleasure. Weddings in high society have taken place with great impressiveness, either in the unusually beautiful churches of Bethesda or St. Edward's, or in some ideal spot richly banked with flowers. Seldom, elsewhere in the world could one have seen grouped such displays of beautiful women, beautiful gowns, beautiful jewels, and impressive masculine escort, as were gathered at the clubs each evening. A regular feature of Palm Beach is the putting on of professional fashion shows, but these evenings at the clubs have been bewilderingly genuine fashion shows.

Perchance in memory one recalls travelling about by automobile with a noticeable consciousness of ease and comfort for the roads are very level and very smooth. A long ride by the ocean on an ideal day might have been one of the thrilling events of say January or February or even it might have been an oft repeated and ever delightful event throughout the winter. Such experience banishes all thoughts of the discomfort of the rigors of winter in the cold climate of the north. The moon, the palms, the sea, and the balmy air, too, set the scene for perfectly blissful evenings. There is a lilt in the heart when one looks back on some of these unforgettable experiences of the Palm Beach winter.

But,

*Winter's by
And spring is now nigh

Society Life

SWEEPING INTO THE TEMPO which created the title of "Queen of Winter Resorts," the Palm Beach colony is displaying a panorama of social life which has far surpassed that of former weeks. Every day finds more and more visitors coming down for their annual sojourn, and the rounds of parties and informal gatherings have reached a colossal crescendo.

As always, February is acclaimed as the height of the Palm Beach season, and it is at this time that celebrities, society figures and visiting nobility all find their way to the resort for several weeks of tropical leisure.

For the Archduke Felix and the Archduke Charles of Austria, who were here as the guests of Princess Laura Rospigliosi, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer gave a tea at "Casa Rosada del Lago." Also sharing honors were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Stanhope Nixon; Mrs. Frederick Button of Manchester, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goes of Chicago, Mrs. David D. Carroll of New York and Miss Anne W. Dilworth of Philadelphia. Dinner guests recently of Mrs. Van Rensselaer were Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William A. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Goes, Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright, Mrs. deSelding Watts, Miss Edith C. Newlin, Mrs. Charles Jones, Mr. Livingston Lyman Short and Mr. J. Deane Rucker.

To welcome Mr. and Mrs. Zambry P. Giddens of New York who are at the Everglades Club, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Morse entertained a large group for cocktails and a hamburger roast in the patio of their Sea Spray Avenue villa.

Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson Jr., Count and Countess Giovanni de Castagnola, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Merrill, Cmdr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Pettit, Baron and Baroness Paul von Gontard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCoskry Butt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin, Cmdr. and Mrs. A. Winfield Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paull, Mr. and Mrs. James W. McGaughey, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Stemmler, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Baehr, Mr. and Mrs. George Schrafft, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg and Mr. and Mrs. George Saltonstall Silsbee;

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wilson Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Hynes, Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Jerome McNulty, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Werner H. M. Said-Ruete, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Humphreys, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Palmer, Mrs. William G. Kitchen, Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mrs. Middleton O'Malley-Keyes, Mrs. Mary Woodward, Mrs. Lucille Marshall, Miss Ruby Edna Pierce, Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell, Mrs. Irma Blood, Mrs. Robert F. Zeddies, Mrs. E. Forrester Gries, Mrs. Ruby-Ann Kandelaft, Mrs. Morse McCall, Miss Virginia Arlund Allan, Mrs. Donna Harter, Mrs. Frederic J. Urban, Miss Julia McCarthy, Mrs. Myrtle Leach Shepherd and Miss Mae Andrews.

Also Mr. A. T. Ashton, Mr. John K. Williamson, Mr. Alan Howard, Mr. Jeremiah D. Maguire, Mr. Justus P. Seeburg, Mr. William A. Shawcross, Capt. Gavin Hamilton, Mr. John Shaw Young, Mr. Paul Butler, Mr. Lawrence Logan of Miami Beach, Mr. William Q. Cain, Mr. John Walters, Mr. Jack Mitchell, Mr. Emilio Sanchez of Havana, and Mr. T. Frederick Gaskins.

For Lord and Lady Ennisdale of London who are Breakers' guests for the season, Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell and her attractive daughter, Miss Ann Mitchell, entertained a group for cocktails at their seaside manse, "Ocean-Blown." The Mitchells attended the inaugural festivities in Washington, returning here afterward.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. B. Widener 3rd of Lexington, Ky. are here as the guests of Mr. Widener's aunt, Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld and Mr. Wichfeld at "The Reef." Mrs. Taylor Cochran of New York arrived to join Mr. Charles A. Munn's houseparty at "Amado," where other guests included Miss Eleonora R. Sears of Boston, Mrs. Lorelle Hearst and Lady Stanley of Alderley.

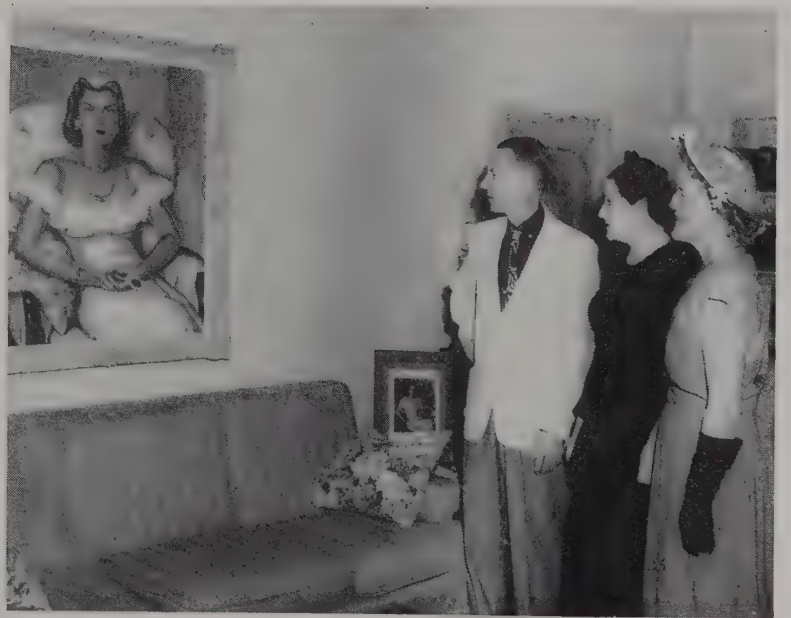

Mrs. Lucas Kent of Ardmore, Pa. came down to open "Nautilus Cottage" in Breakers Row. Other Philadelphia

Principals in a benefit concert from which proceeds went to the Good Samaritan Hospital are left to right, Dr. Matthew T. Mellon, concert chairman, Mr. Ernest G. Howes, Mrs. Joseph E. Davies and Giovanni Bagarotti, Italian violinist of note who was presented at "Mar-a-Lago" on Jan. 27 in a sunset concert of classical music. After the concert tea was served in the patio of the Davies home where Mr. and Mrs. Davies who so kindly loaned "Mar-a-Lago" for the benefit concert were hosts to 300 guests.

of Paris and Boston. Mrs. Haskell is the former Princess Kaplanoff and the mother of Mrs. James A. de Peyster of the winter colony.

Main Liners in Breakers Row are Mr. and Mrs. George R. Kent. Before her marriage last summer Mrs. Kent was the former Mrs. Wanamaker Munn.

In compliment to their recent houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Henry Taylor of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moore gave a dinner at "Collado Hueco," their South Ocean Boulevard. Others feteing the Taylors, the former of whom is the director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, included Dr. Matthew T. Mellon, who gave a dinner on board his yacht, the "Melmar," later taking his guests to the Everglades Club for dancing.

Mrs. Frank G. Ahern gave a cocktail party at "White Gables" in compliment to her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Ahern who were here from Norwich, Conn. The former Miss Joyce Helen Schmidt and Mr. Ahern were married at Larchmont, N. Y. in September. Guests for the event were Mr. and Mrs. George T. McCarthy 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Richardson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Adam G. Thomson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Parish Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison, Mrs. Mary Wooster, Mrs. Leonard E. Watson Jr., Miss Joan Halpine Smith, Miss Elizabeth McClintock, Mr. Roscoe T. Anthony Jr., Mr. L. Clarke Anthony, Mr. William McMurtrie.

Mrs. William Lightfoot Schultz has been giving a series of bridge luncheons at "Casa Soleada," her ocean front villa. Miss Elizabeth L. Schultz, who was here earlier with her parents, returned to New York, and will come down again in early March. Also expected then are Mr. and Mrs. Schultz's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Schultz of Essex Fells, N. J.

Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright was hostess at a luncheon at "Estella," her Banyan Road villa.

In celebration of Mrs. Crawford Hill's birthday anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Hill gave a dinner at their home in Via del Lago. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Ralph Kenyon Robertson of New York have entertained small groups for dinner recently at "Casa Della Porter," their home in Via Del Mar. Joe Bonni furnished music for an occasion. "Southwood," the Via del Lago home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Boettcher of Denver, has been the setting for several dinner parties. The Robert R. Youngs have entertained at "The Towers," their ocean-front villa.

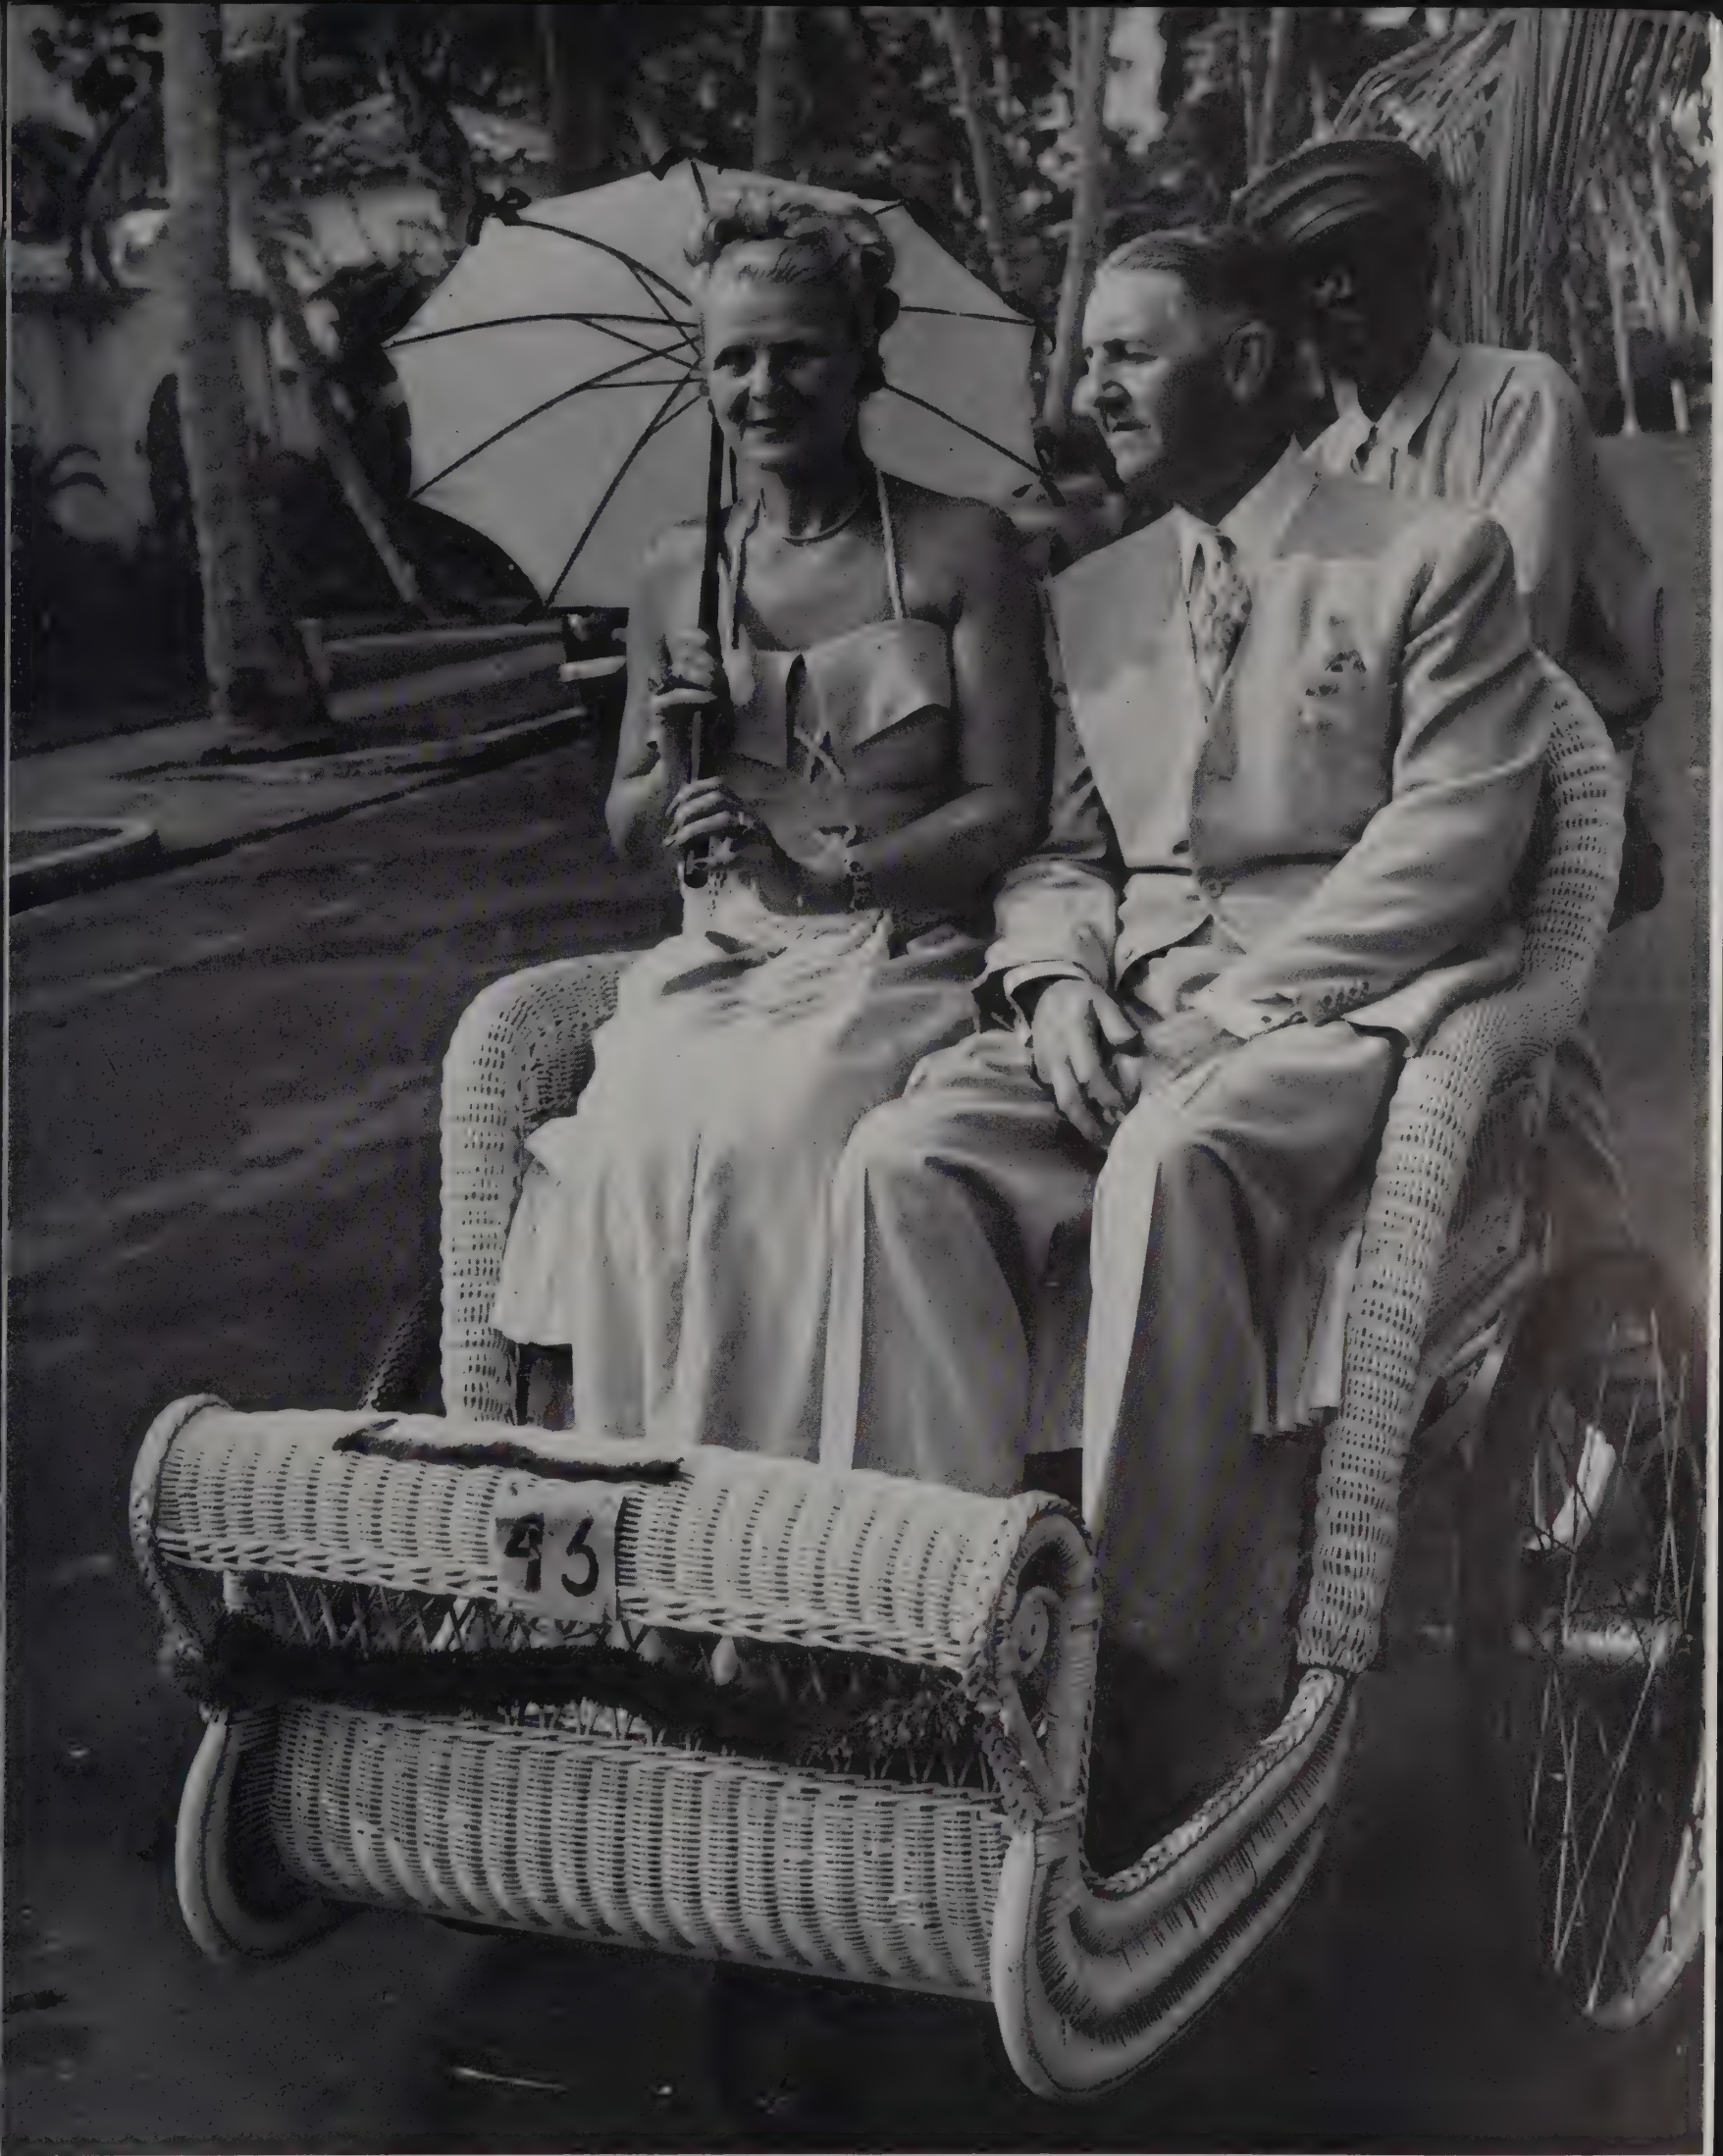

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Humphreys gave a cocktail party for a large number of guests in early January at their attractive home in Chilean Avenue. Both artists who have frequently exhibited in Palm Beach, one of Mr. Humphrey's latest portraits is of his wife done during the past summer. Presently on exhibit in the Fifty-Seventh Street Grand Central Galleries, the picture is expected to arrive in Palm Beach this season. Also many of his most recent portraits decorated the walls of the Humphreys' home at the time the cocktail party took place and were greatly admired by their many friends present.

The Everglades Club

WITH THE 1949 SEASON gaining tempo and approaching the mid-season peak, the smart Everglades Club, always the center of social activities in the colony, swings into the whirl with numerous interesting activities. Highlighting the roster of festivities are the weekly backgammon and oklahoma tournaments, the Wednesday Tombola-luncheon-fashion shows and the Thursday night Vaudeville dinners.

An innovation this season which has become extremely popular . . . the putting tournaments on Wednesday afternoons. Luncheon on the Golf Terrace also attracts capacity crowds of members and their guests each day. Among the outstanding events of the winter will be the Grand Ball on March 7 for the benefit of St. Mary's Hospital; it promises to be one of the most glamorous affairs held in the resort this year.

Post Impressionists and their Followers

AN EXHIBITION of approximately forty paintings to illustrate the transition from the post-impressionists to the early moderns opened at the Society of the Four Arts on Feb. 5 to remain current throughout this month. Artists represented in the show, entitled "The Post-Impressionists and their Followers," leaders of the post-impressionist movement, are Cezanne, Seurat, Renoir, Degas, Gauguin and Van Gogh and of the next generation comprising followers of the strongly individual approach as initiated by these artists, such leaders as Matisse, Braque, Picasso, Rouault, Juan Gris, and Soutine.

Briefly the transition period was the critical time in the broad movement away from naturalism and toward abstraction. Comparison of the two reveal that steps taken were more gradual than usually supposed, as is illustrated by the classical approach of careful construction developed by Cezanne and Seurat, which carried on into cubism by Picasso and Braque.

Emotional expressionism as initiated by Gauguin and Van Gogh developed first into the fauve movement headed by Matisse only to be followed by such personal expressions as those of Rouault and Soutine. The exhibition was arranged under the direction of Mrs. Matthew T. Mellon, chairman of the art and sculpture committee of the Society of the Four Arts, with Mr. William L. McKim and Mrs. Paul Moore assisting.

A loan show, the Society is deeply grateful to all those who so generously helped to make it possible.

Four paintings were borrowed from the collection of Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell which include a Cezanne, a Soutine, a Picasso and a Braque. A Picasso was also lent by Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau. Painted in 1909, it is entitled "Fernando."

From the collection of Mr. William Crocker of San Francisco, brother of Dr. Charles Crocker of Palm Beach there is a Gauguin "Flowers in a Vase," 1888 and from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Marx of Chicago a large masterpiece of Matisse "Gold Fish" 1915-16.

Mr. Leonard C. Hanna, Jr., brother of Mrs. Paul Moore has lent his noted Cezanne, "La Montagne Sainte Victoire" 1900 and from the Modern Museum there is a Picasso entitled "Woman in an Armchair" 1927 and a Braque of 1911, "Soda."

The Durand-Ruel Galleries have loaned eight paintings including two Renoirs and two Degas; the Pierre Matisse Gallery, four, including the large Rouault "La Loge" 1943; Jacques Seligman and Co., six works, among them a Seurat, Renoir, Bonnard and Braque.

"Vase of Flowers"-Carnations (1889) by Van Gogh, loaned by Paul Rosenberg and Company, New York.

"Carrière de Bibemus" (1900) by Cezanne, loaned by Georges Keller, New York.

From Paul Rosenberg and Co., comes a beautiful Van Gogh, "Flowers in a Vase—Carnations" 1889, as well as a Degas and a Braque; from Knoedler and Co., a Cezanne; from Fine Arts Associates "The Curtain" 1900 by Cezanne and an early Juan Gris; from the Hugo Gallery an early Matisse landscape, from the Sidney Janis Gallery Leger's early "Les Cylindres Colorés" and from Georges Keller, New York, Cezanne's "Carrière de Bibemus" 1900.

The Society of the Four Arts which this month celebrates its thirteenth year as a non-profit organization, its purpose to bring the best cultural and educational programs to Palm Beach each season operating through a system of committees by which its many events are arranged, in each instance a sincere effort put forth to improve the programs every year and to expand the list of activities. Unequivocally the center of Palm Beach cultural life, the Society therefore lives up to its original intention to encourage and foster the taste for the best in music, drama, literature, and the arts through the presentation of concerts and art exhibitions, and a series of lectures which together with its library and recently inaugurated junior activities committee includes those of all ages in its roster of cultural entertainment. Chairmen of the various committees whose responsibility it is to arrange and bring to the resort such programs as are under their jurisdiction include, Mrs. Matthew T. Mellon, painting and sculpture; Mrs. William T. Grant, music; Mr. John H. Perry, lectures; Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, library chairman; Mrs. Frederick D. Morrish, junior activities and Mrs. James de Peyster, movies.

"Goldfish" (1915-16) by Matisse, loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Marx of Chicago.

"Roses" (1912) a still life by Renoir, loaned by Durand-Ruel, Inc.

"Le Bain" (1905) by Degas through the courtesy of Durand-Ruel, Inc.

The Coral Beach Club

THE CORAL BEACH CLUB is in its third successful season as one of the resort's most outstanding seaside spas. Completely modern and extremely chic in decor, the club is daily the setting for smart luncheons, and cocktail gatherings.

Tucked away on the North Ocean Boulevard, north shore colonists as well as those living in the southern environs of the resort are making the Coral Beach Club their favorite rendezvous. The luncheon interval is always a gala event, and twice weekly Oklahoma and backgammon tournaments, preceded by cocktails and dinners, hold the spotlight.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Richardson Jr. had dinner guests who were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George T. McCarthy 3rd and Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Maddock.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Blasdel Shapleigh were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. O'Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gales Holcombe, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Riley Jr., and Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau.

In a party of Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson Jr., Cmdr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg, Mrs. Edward

The Palm Beach Pageant

SELDOM IF EVER HAS ONE heard of a church having been built to accommodate hotel guests. But such is the historical background of the Royal Poinciana Chapel which still stands today, a prospering memorial to those Golden Years when Palm Beach was in the prime of its ascendancy. Mr. Flagler built the chapel for the express use of his guests, since their only other means of church-going was the first Bethesda-By-The-Sea far up the Lake Trail.

From the start, as it is today, the Royal Poinciana Chapel was non-sectarian, and a symbol of true democracy. Long before St. Edwards was erected, protestant and Catholic clergy shared the church, and as regularly as a sermon was preached Mass was said also. But the Royal Poinciana Chapel, unique as was its inception, might not have become so renowned had it not been for its pastor the Rev. George Morgan Ward, one of the world's great people, scholars and theologians.

At incessant invitation from Mr. Flagler who had been a close friend for many years, Dr. Ward the President of Rollins College became pastor of the Royal Poinciana Chapel about 1900.

Probably in all of Palm Beach and over all its years no single individual was more loved and respected. Exposed to wealth, pomp and ceremony for very long, his philosophy remained simple and sound, and in the annals of great and famous clergymen he is credited with having done more for the moral, religious and educational structure of Florida than any other. When he died he was mourned in many quarters for his pastorate had made him known to the great and near-great of two continents.

One could not conclude the Flagler era without mention of the Royal Poinciana's end-of-the-season ball which fell on February 22. The short season began early in January, climaxed with the Washington Birthday party, a handsome and elegant function rivalled only by the Inaugural Ball in the Nation's Capital.

There was no expense spared in its preparation. The Poinciana's great ballroom, the two huge dining rooms thrown together, decorated with a profusion of flowers, its many white pillars dressed in thousands of yards of smilax was breath-taking in beauty. Real cherry trees in blossom were imported for the affair, and two of the country's best orchestras played, hidden from view beyond replicas of latticed summer houses.

But the greatest scene of all came when the bands struck up the music for the grand march. Bejeweled beauties, in satins and brocades just out of Paris, paraded with their impeccably groomed escorts whose tailors were British. The soft glowing lights of the ballroom shone over their diamonds and pearls and emeralds, while up in the north very often, a blizzard roared at 96 miles an hour.

Next in the expansion program of Palm Beach was the erection of Whitehall, Mr. Flagler's private home. It was also in that period that Flagler Bridge with a toll house was built to insure privacy of the island.

If the son of a preacher who made money in oil, was lavish in materials and appointments for his hotels, to be sure, the sky was the limit when he turned toward a Palm Beach home for himself. A medley of all the great periods of architecture and design, when completed, Whitehall presented a search for perfection, well gratified. Every artist and artisan of the day, and all the great marts of objets d'art the world over, were called upon to furnish beauty for Whitehall. Arabian lace curtained stately bronze doors, and marble in seven delicate shades embellished the grandeur of a baronial foyer, its domed ceiling covered with paintings on canvas. The sumptuous salons drew on classic periods for their architecture and decor from the Renaissance to the Louis: Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth.

Planned as a gay rendezvous for people who knew luxury, there were seven salons for entertaining and an equal number of guest chambers, to say nothing of the Master rooms where a so-called "closet" surrounded by armories of glass doors, afforded generous compartments for the gowns and chapeaux of the mistress of Whitehall. Elaborate entertaining was an every day event in the early years at Whitehall, and it has been said that the "Flaglers might entertain fifty guests at dinner each night in a week and still use a different dinner service."

Guests' lists lifted from issues of Palm Beach Life in that period, name many of America's financial barons and their ladies as having "dined," "spent the week end," or "visited," Whitehall-checked against Lundberg's "Sixty Families," few would remain unmarked. The Royal Poinciana however remained the center of the Palm Beach universe, the Inn, Whitehall, and the Cottage Colony, basking in the brilliance of its social esteem.

A drama colony flourished in the early Poinciana period, and among the first and one of the most auspicious Thespians was Joseph Jefferson. A most famous American comedian, it was he who created a drama version of Rip Van Winkle, so successful that it ran from 1859 to '65 to capacity audiences both in New York and London. Others were Mrs. Louise Lane Drew who even as late as 1892 managed the Arch Street Theatre in Philadelphia, her daughter-in-law Mrs. Sidney Drew, and daughter, Mrs. Maurice Barrymore. Johnny Golden and Winchill Smith, the well known playwrights, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Jacobs, Florenz Ziegfeld and the Dolly Sisters."

Jefferson was a particular friend of Mr. Flagler. He was toastmaster at many renowned Royal Poinciana dinners and a frequent guest at Whitehall. So close was the friendship in fact, that when Mr. Jefferson in 1903 appeared in a handsome new "lazyback" upholstered in red leather, someone inked in the Poinciana's Rotunda (which might be compared to the Stork Clubs' "Cub Room") that it was patterned from one used by the master of Whitehall. Jefferson replied indignantly that the chairs could not be compared in any way, since his, had maroon-colored leather, while Mr. Flagler's was upholstered in red. The Fortnightly Club, first of its kind in the resort and forerunner of all others that followed of a cultural nature, was founded by a genuine group of "oldies." Mrs. Frederick Roberts, an early cottage colonist was its president and other "first" officers were, Mrs. J. N. Mulford, wife of the first Episcopalian minister in Palm Beach; Mrs. Charles I. Cragin; Mrs. Enoch Root, Mrs. Joseph Jefferson, Mrs. Henry C. Hood, Mrs. Eugene O'Neill, and Miss Nellie Cluett.

Scarce a week went by during the seven or eight years of the Fortnightly Club without mention in the local paper of a fine affair sponsored by the group; and many a young hopeful who later became a "Kreisler" or "Rachmaninoff" were guest artists.

A feature of entertaining in that rich and magnificent period was the presentation of costly favors. At luncheons, teas, musicales, banquets and dinners or bridge affairs where prizes and favors surpassed any mentioned in society columns of Palm Beach or Newport today.

Brooches and bracelets were of diamonds and emeralds, corsages concealed gold hat pins with sapphire stones, and smaller tokens were often crystal perfume bottles with amethyst stoppers. Small wonder then that every newspaper of consequence in the country, since Palm Beach's debutante days, have carried generous columns of the fair princess' life and times. First columns pointed to the great future of Palm Beach as a winter resort which it was said "would be the brightest spot on the worlds' "great international highway, once the Panama Canal was a reality."

Local columnists likewise, by no means took a back seat in lauding the resort, an excerpt pulled from early files reading:

"Palm Beach is not peculiarly the resort of Bostonians or New Yorkers, or even Chicagoans and Philadelphians but from nearly every state in the union there are representatives of Americas' leading families, enjoying the scenic beauty and superb climate of the resort.

We are patronized by leaders from Manitoba and Quebec in Canada to the fair cities of England, Italy, Holland, Denmark, France, and Austria. It remains only for the Russians to discover us and Palm Beach will then be the most cosmopolitan resort on earth! Here people are drawn together who represent all branches of international thought and activity. Here are Judge Barrett and Joseph Jefferson, the one representative of the highest development of dramatic art, the other, the dignity and eminence of the judicial profession.

Here are Bishops Gray and O'Connell, leaders in two great religious denominations; and Mr. James Stillman, Henry M. Flagler and a host of others who have again and again proved themselves first among authorities on finance and advocates of sound investment. Governors of Canada and states' senators and congressmen seek us out; the Army and Navy meets on the Breakers veranda, and business and finance negotiate in the Rotunda of the Royal Poinciana where the greatest business firms are represented by those whose names they bear; Morgan, Vanderbilt, Flagler, Astor, Rockefeller, Payne, Wanamaker, Gates and Stillman, Belmont and Gould."

There are some men it seems who pass from this world on time, and it might be said that Henry Flagler was one. Living a long and full life he witnessed the most verdant

The Gibson-girl-with-parasol-and-shirtwaist era. A happy throng of early resorters about 1895 just after a steamship service from Palm Beach to Nassau had been established. The pier which jutted out to sea a thousand feet from the old Palm Beach Inn was played up at the time of its building as another gigantic step in the development of Palm Beach as a fabulous resort.

growing years of his country and his Palm Beach. An authentic Horatio Alger, he was born in 1830 to poor parents. His father a Presbyterian minister earned an average of four hundred dollars a year—approximately one month's rent for an apartment in Palm Beach today!

Leaving home at an early age to seek his fortune, he rose from a job in a country store at five dollars a week, to set himself up as a commission merchant. With a small fortune amassed in this venture, he moved on to the manufacturing of salt where he lost every penny. It was during this period that he met John D. Rockefeller, joining him in pioneering oil. Next to Rockefeller, Flagler was the strongest man in the gigantic organization they formed. Through all the hectic history of the Standard Oil company, Flagler was active in its management, retaining his connection until two years prior to his death when he resigned as a director.

When Mr. Flagler first visited Florida in '83 there were but 518 miles of railroad tracks—today the Florida East Coast alone covers a distance of 529, thanks to the gentleman whose passion was steel highways.

It was not until Mr. Flagler was 76 that he actually saw his fondest dream of railroading come true. Years before, he had sat in a tent under a palm tree studying a topographical map of the Peninsular State, he took pencil and drew a little line from Miami, then a tiny Indian trading post, southwest to Key West.

"My railroad in Florida shall go south to this point," said he, "and the main line will go out to sea as far as Key West."

Highly paid construction engineers advised vehemently that you could not build a road over the ocean with its surging tides and fierce tropical storms.

"Nevertheless gentlemen," said Flagler, "it will be built." And indeed it was, although years later at a terrific loss of life and property.

The story is a saga in railroad history. As we all know, by 1896 twin rails of steel struggled southward from Palm Beach to Miami. Eight years later the end of the track was Homestead, and then for nearly two years, engineers tried to lay an iron trail through the Everglades with its deadly saw grass rising to a man's height. At Cape Sable they admitted defeat and turned to the seagoing project.

Mr. Flagler was an old gentleman when he finally saw his extension completed. His hair and bushy moustache had been whitened by years of activity, his forehead wrinkled, his shoulders bent, and although his closest friends predicted he would never live to see the Keys spanned, Mr. Flagler thought otherwise.

He was determined to see a steel highway, linking New York with Key West, a highway, over which luxurious trains would travel at high speed, night and day, and from Key West to Havana the distance would be bridged by steamship, much as he had carried out his dream in Palm Beach with a line from the resort to Nassau by building a pier extending from the back door of the present Breakers one thousand feet out to sea. In short, he would have Havana, a suburb of New York.

It was indeed a paradise that Flagler picked for his right-of-way, but a perilous one. The tiny islands of the Keys were bleak and uninhabited, their intricate channels used as hide outs for pirate galleons that preyed on the Spanish Main. Below, the shifting tides surged treacherously between the ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, holding in their depths a thousand mysteries.

The pioneers who toiled to build the Florida East Coast extension, created what became known as the "eighth wonder of the world." They fought the torrid sun and lashing hurricanes, carrying material and equipment under the most dangerous circumstances. Often big blows leveled miles of embankments erected across the shoals and in the gigantic hurricane of 1906, caught the builders unprepared. Dredges and monstrous pile-drivers were torn from anchor like jackstraws, and the houseboats, which were the laborers' quarters, were hurled to destruction with the loss of 75 railroad builders.

But on the undaunted railroaders toiled, better prepared when another wind attacked, and eventually there were six steel bridges, four drawbridges, and twenty-two concrete viaducts, in water varying from four to forty feet deep. On January 22, 1912, the extension was sufficiently finished to be used for traffic. The first to make the crossing was Henry Morrison Flagler, then 82. It was a day of triumph for him and he is reputed to have said prophetically "now I can die happy." Ironically enough a few months later, he did depart this life at Whitehall, his favorite residence and on the main stem of his seagoing railroad.

This is the third in a series of six stories appearing in issues of Palm Beach Life this season, telling in measure, the story of Palm Beach over the years.

A view of Palm Beach's Lake Trail—one of the quaint features of the resort. Entering it from Royal Palm Way you may ride a distance of approximately five miles. But you won't go by automobile for the Trail retains its early ruling allowing only pedestrians, afromobiles and bicycles to traverse its lakeside way.

Social Notes from Nassau

THIS OLD ISLAND RESORT is setting the pace for a social whirl that promises to be the gayest since the palmy pre-war days.

Nassau's hotels, guest houses and night clubs mushroomed into activity early this year—and have been busy ever since. Guest registers are already beginning to look like a global "Who's Who," as the quaint old town fills up with Society's smart folk.

The social calendar here has already included a number of benefit balls, fairs and a gay fashion parade at the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel, and once again, sports and social activities have fused and become one.

Tennis, golf, sailing and the weekly racing meets at Hobby Horse Hall have all taken on a smartly social aspect. The number of socially prominent sportsmen participating in events has brought added glamour to sport in this fashionable resort.

Tennis is the big sport here this year. A gala program has been arranged beginning with the Third Annual British Colonial Amateur Invitational Tournament, February 14-20; the Annual British Colonial Bahamas Amateur Championship, March 6-13; and the Lucayan Club-Kenyon College Collegiate, March 25, 26 and 27.

Genial Kenneth Arnold, General Manager of the British Colonial, gave a new lift to one of his tennis tournaments recently.

During an interval in the game, a squad of immaculately dressed waiters paraded across the courts, posed before the spectators for a minute with trays held aloft, and promptly served visitors with afternoon tea "on the house."

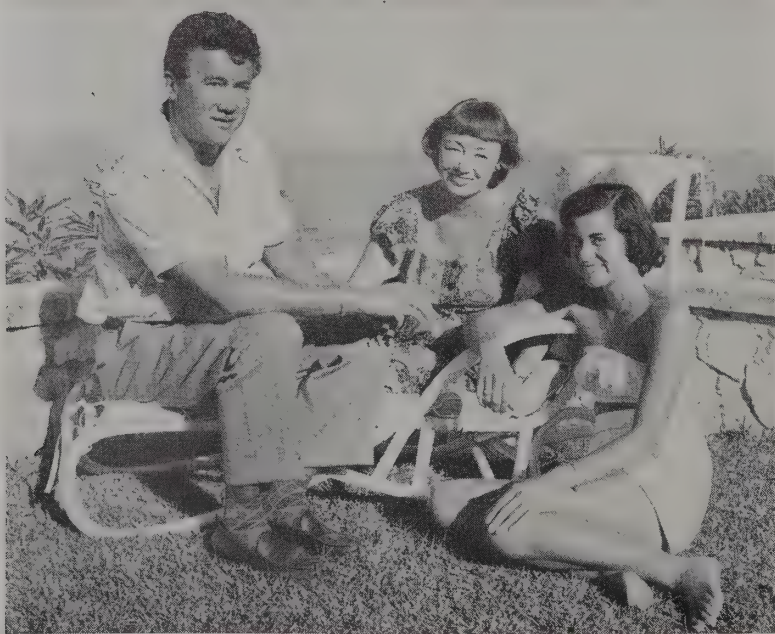

Nassau's biggest sporting event, the Miami-Nassau Ocean Race, February 15, inaugurates a week of gay social doings, climax to which is the traditional Presentation Dance at Nassau's exclusive Yacht Club, at which His Excellency

TENNIS COURTS AT THE NEW COLONIAL

Gren's Paradise Beach, February 9. Bookings have already started to roll in for this gay fiesta. Included in the entertainment will be a treasure hunt, where visitors will search for "treasures" in all the time-honored tradition of the old buccaneers.

February 22—Washington's Birthday—will find the town en fete. This is probably the only British Colony in the world to celebrate the birth of an American President, and the celebration is held in grand style, with gay dinner parties, masquerades, and—this year—the revival of the famous Head Dress Ball which was so popular in previous years.

The Bahamas Red Cross Fair, which will be known this year as "Bahamas Merry Go Round," will be held in the gardens of Government House, March 10. This annual carnival always attracts an impressive crowd. Members of international society and well-known celebrities contribute to the gaiety of the proceedings, and it's not unusual for the Red Cross to raise $20,000 in the day allotted to the carnival.

Meanwhile, hotels and guest houses here are having a hard time keeping abreast of new arrivals. Among recent visitors were: Lady Jane Williams-Taylor of Montreal and Nassau, dowager of Nassau's society, and who has returned to her winter home "The View After All"; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evert of Milwaukee, Wis., who have opened their winter residence on Cable Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Treglown of Washington, D. C.; Eunice, Lady Oakes of

Norton Gallery Celebrates Anniversary

THE GOOD FORTUNE that came to one of the oldest art leagues in the South eight years ago, is presently bearing fruit in what is known as one of the most remarkable cultural centers in the country . . . The Norton Gallery and School of Art, which this month celebrates its eighth anniversary.

Mr. Ralph Hubbard Norton and the late Mrs. Norton (Elizabeth Calhoun) built the splendid Gallery on the shores of Lake Worth, in West Palm Beach in 1941 when they also made members of the Palm Beach Art League custodians of the Institution for the benefit of the public. This small group which had its beginning many years ago (it is the oldest in Palm Beach County) was originally organized to promote the best in art in this area . . . an endeavour they now see carried to a point beyond their greatest expectations. Hub of the group of cultural activities that now makes up the Norton Gallery and School of Art is a four hundred thousand dollar building which as well as housing the distinguished private collection of the Norton family, presents also in its spacious and well lighted galleries, a well rounded collection of painting and sculpture acquired over the eight-year period largely through an endowment fund on the part of the donors. Likewise through their ability to envision the Norton Gallery of Art as a thriving institution, there was also established in the early days, an art school by which the center is known today as The Norton Gallery and School of Art.

Progress of the cultural center is evidenced in its active "Little Theatre" comprising a number of talented amateur players who annually lend their support both in the portrayal of dramatic roles and in workshop procedures. One of the most recent additions to the building proper was a workshop for this group which now comprises 125 members under the able direction of H. H. Riddleberger, Columbia University graduate who became affiliated with the players in 1947.

Rounding out the many-sided activities program of the Norton Gallery and School of Art is its Glee Club under the direction of Raymond Otis Hunter. In addition to a special concert given yearly to members of the Palm Beach Art League, the club presents concerts for the general public both here and in other Florida cities.

A survey, branch by branch of the Norton Gallery and School of Art which may well be termed an institution of learning, shows growth in every direction. The art school which originally experimented in various crafts and commercial arts now includes only the fine arts of painting and sculpture which in the last few years has brought the enrollment to an all-time peak of over 300 students yearly. Students from far afield are enrolled, the varied curriculum including such courses as, sculpture under the renowned exponent of direct carving, Jose de Creeft who this season succeeded the immensely successful headship of the sculpture department under Ann Weaver, represented in the permanent Norton collection by a telling bronze entitled "Casualties."

Another instructor here for his sixth year is Eliot O'Hara, N.A. leading teacher and author in the watercolor field. Mr. O'Hara's course extends over a 10-week period each year in this department which is operated the year round under the direction of Walter B. Colebrook.

Oil painting comprises a staff of two established painters who are Eric Lundgren and James Mallory Willson, the latter of whom teaches life drawing and painting of portraiture with Mr. Lundgren taking landscape and general painting classes.

A unique feature of the school is its extraordinarily popular painting classes for children under Mr. Lundgren which boasts an enrollment of 90 to a hundred children each semester. The most amazingly attractive works comparable to nationally advertised childrens' shows as directed by such organizations as the Modern Museum of Art, decorate the walls of the children's department and are exhibited on occasion in shows sponsored by the school for its younger students.

Beyond the arresting modern facade of the Norton Gallery and School of Art, there is housed a magnificent collection of paintings and sculpture illustrating the best in the field of art from the Duegento down to painting by such contemporaries as Marc Chagall. Thus the center provides an opportunity for students of art, the art-loving public of the Palm Beaches, and indeed, all the people of this part of Florida to view some of the finest examples of art in the country.

Eight galleries devoted to this purpose embrace such magnificent works as a great Romanesque "Madonna and Child" painted before 1300 A.D., a fine Florentine altar piece of 1400, and a magnificent Baroque by Luca Giordano which together with other masterpieces such as "The Purification of the Temple" by El Greco, and the jewel-like canvas by the Spanish artist Murillo, name but a few of the distinguished Old Masters in the Norton Gallery.

"Temptation of St. Anthony" by a master of 1518

In its School of Paris collection the Norton Gallery can boast as fine and important a group of canvases as could be found outside the great metropolitan centers. An internationally famous Gauguin, "Agony In The Garden," (1889) is the most important, and of the immortal French impressionists there are two magnificent examples of Claude Monet, and Camille Pissarro and a sensitive portrait by Renoir.

Many fine canvases from the "Ashcan School of 1908" include three outstanding Ernest Lawsons representative of that artists' three major periods of painting. His "Hoboken Waterfront," in gallery five showing his latest period, occupied a prominent place in the Chicago World Fair exhibition of 1934. George Bellow's "Winter Afternoon" is another inclusion, and of the two living survivors of the Eight as this particular group of artists came to be known, the Norton collection embraces an Everett Shinn called "Concert Stage," and one of John Sloan entitled "Yoland in a gray tippet."

Contemporary Americans form a group beginning with Walt Kuhn's "Morning" of 1913 which he painted for the Armory show and Maurice Sternes' "Bali Ceremonial," one of this painters' best compositions. Other notables in this group are Eugene Speicher whose "Green Hat" is from the Sam A. Lewisohn collection; Leon Kroll, Jerry Farnsworth, and Robert Brackman. The latter's canvas in the Norton Gallery, a self portrait, won the Thomas B. Clark prize at the National Academy in 1932.

Edward Hopper's "August in the City" another permanent inclusion was described by Robert M. Coates, art critic for the New Yorker as a most important canvas which created a noticeable gap in the retrospective exhibition at the Rehn Galleries last summer.

Concerning sculpture as part of the permanent collection, the Norton Gallery and School of Art scores appreciably higher than most galleries of its size and in a well balanced picture the entire foyer of the main entrance is devoted to this branch of art. Some pieces are used in connection with the architectural plan of the building. Two heroic casts done by Paul Manship "Diana and Aceton" from decoration of the facade while Wheeler Williams' "Fountain Of Youth" in limestone is the center ornamentation of the Gallery's classic, cloistered patio.

Carved works by contemporaries present William Zorach's "Youth" superbly situated in the center of one of the main skylit picture galleries where opposite may be seen

MR. RALPH HUBBARD NORTON.

"Harvest Scene" Jan Brueghel.

"View of a Town" Willem Van Nieulant.

Brenda Putnam's carving in marble, called "Midsummer."

Two masterpieces are from the hand of Jose de Creeft entitled "Head of a Faun," and "Group of Women." Both reveal the mastery of this artist who chooses stone, wood, marble and all other mediums through which carving is attained, with the one thought in mind to select the medium for suitability to the subject.

Thus it follows that inasmuch as the Norton Gallery was founded for "the education and enjoyment of the public," considerable time and effort is devoted each year to carry forth the goal to provide cultural entertainment of the highest standards. Such responsibility falls largely on the shoulders of the Director E. R. Hunter who in November of this year will observe his sixth year with the Norton Institution.

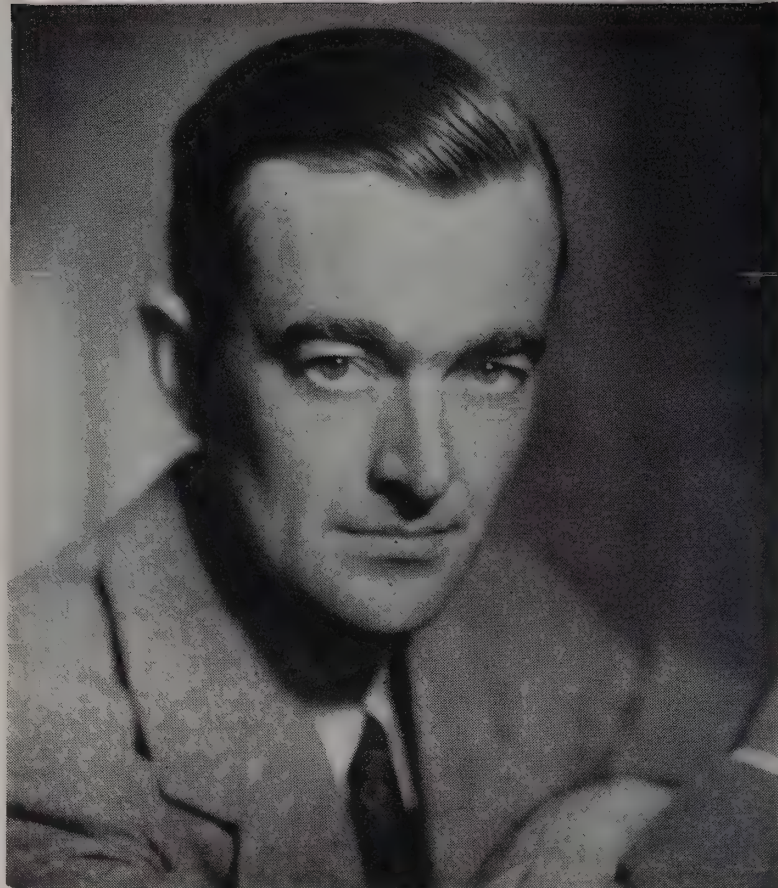

Mr. Hunter who came to the Norton Gallery and School of Art after service in the United States Army received his degree of fine arts at the University of London, later taking his museum training at a number of important galleries in this country. Prior to entering the service he was associated in an official capacity with the Museum of Fine Arts in Montreal, Canada.

Operating on the same lines as the larger museums, the Norton Gallery and School of Arts' programs are planned well in advance and follow an over-all pattern which brings to the community many types of exhibitions each year as well as entertainment of high standards in music and drama.

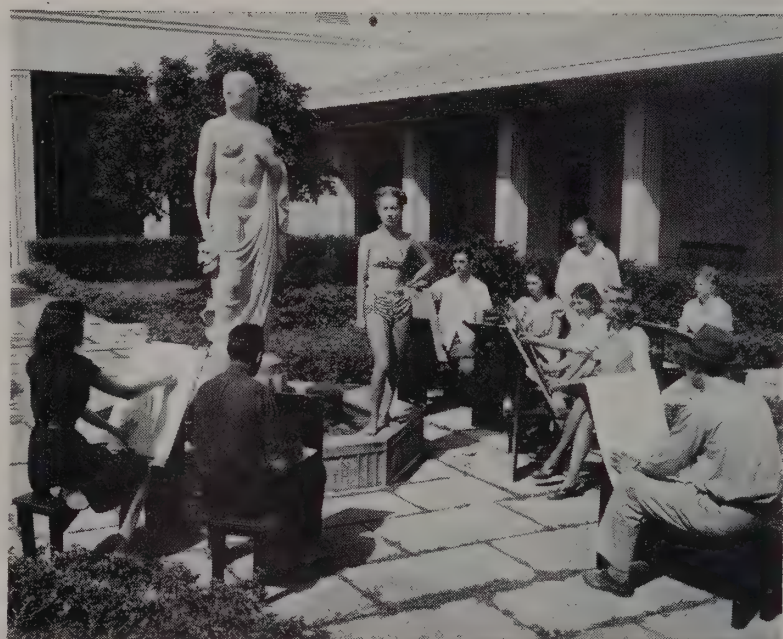

The backbone of progress in the direction of the Norton Gallery and School of Art centers about the diversification of exhibitions and other cultural programs and particularly as pertains to the wide variety of painting schools represented in its permanent collection.

The original collection which contained just over a hundred pictures and a few pieces of sculpture acquired by the donors, has since 1941 tripled in size and value, the collection now representing a figure of over three quarters of a million dollars.

The Gallery recently made its most important purchase in the field of French painting with the acquisitions this season of "Portrait of the Artist's Son, by Cezanne purchased from the E. and A. Silberman Galleries, and a Juan Gris entitled "Le Journal" (1916) shown at the Cincinnati is retrospective of this artist's work last summer.

In the Norton School students are free to choose their classes and instructors rather than being forced through a complicated curriculum of samples. At the right is a photo taken when a reception opened a notable sculpture exhibition by Jose de Creeft in the Norton Gallery in early January. Guests of honor, Mrs. de Creeft and Mr. de Creeft second from left discuss the show's catalogue with Mrs. E. S. Edwards, of New Canaan, Conn. Standing beside Mr. de Creeft is Dr. Earl C. Barkley, president of the Palm Beach Art League and next to him, Mrs. Alex S. Hanes, Winston-Salem, N. C., and Eliot O'Hara, nationally known watercolorist and Norton Art School instructor.

Additions to the collection in purchases made last summer include a rare and beautiful Madonna and Child painted in Tuscany about 1290 A.D. and an important canvas by the great Baroque muralist Luca Giordano entitled "Diana With Nymphs."

Articles annually appear in national art periodicals reporting on this institution's fine work and growing collection and most recently when he gave a talk in Palm Beach on America's responsibility to the preservation of world art, Francis Henry Taylor, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art expressed enthusiasm for the Norton Gallery, its School of Art, and the timely manner in which its exhibitions and general programs are managed.

Presenting one of the most important groups of Old Masters ever to be seen here, that now current at the Norton Gallery is a selection which illustrates Italian Baroque and later development of the Northern and Dutch paintings.

Opening on Feb. 25th will be the thirty-first annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Palm Beach Art League of which Dr. Earl C. Barkley, is president. Gradually becoming more and more one of national scope the jury of awards for the competitive show will this year comprise three distinguished artists. They are, Doris Rosenthal, Gertrude Schweitzer, and Jose de Creeft.

Maintenance of the entire plant, the magnificent classic structure designed by Wyeth, King and Johnson, architects, which may be seen from the Everglades Club across the beautiful waters of Lake Worth is provided for through a generous endowment fund created by the late Elizabeth Calhoun Norton. Her death in 1947 was mourned by the many residents of the Palm Beaches who deeply appreciated the splendid and long-lasting contribution on the part of the Nortons in establishing the Norton Gallery and School of Art.

Two prized acquisitions presented to the Gallery this year by the sons and daughters of the donors comprise portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Norton executed by the renowned portrait painter Louis Betts. Hung last fall, the membership of the Norton Gallery and its board of directors attended a reception in acceptance of the portraits in December.

Sculpture playing an important role in the Norton Gallery is pictured here in two examples. At above right is a compact figure in bronze by Ann Weaver and below (extreme right) an important carving in Botticini marble by William Zorach entitled "Youth." At left of the Zorach piece may be seen a recent photo of the classically simple lines of the Norton Gallery and School of Art's facade showing the heroic-sized casts of Paul Manship's Diana and Aceton.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora:

The past two weeks have been hectic. You can be glad you are down there basking in the sunshine. . . . One party you missed was the one given by handsome Swedish Erik Boheman, Washington's almost newest Ambassador, and his stately wife. It was a warm-hearted, gay reception in honor of tenor Jussi Bjoerling after his concert at Constitution Hall. The Bohemans arrived this fall from London where Mr. Boheman was Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The famlier Swedish Embassy on R. Street has been transformed to suit the personalities of the new occupants. They lightened the walls of the large rooms, hung the windows with neutral draperies, and given a welcome sense of space by not overcrowding the rooms with furniture. On the walls hang splendid Flemish tapestries adding further to the illusion of spaciousness.

Brunette Mme. Boheman received in a deep mauve-toned Schiaparelli gown straight from Paris which was most becoming. And Mme. Bjoerling was sparkling in a chocolate brown sequin-covered creation. In the tapestry hung dining room was served the traditional hot and cold Swedish smorgasbord and champagne.

I predict the tall, good-looking Bohemans who make one welcome with such grace and ease, will become one of the most popular diplomatic couples here.

Among the guests at this black tie fete were Acting

Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert Lovett, the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Morganstjerne. (He had to put off his trip to Florida to leave for a consultation in Norway apropos of the Atlantic Charter.) Then, there was the popular Jonkheer Otto Reuchlin and his wife from the Netherlands Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. Elovius Mangor, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and Baron Axel Reedtz-Thott and the unusually popular Mr. and Mrs. Hans Bertelsen of the Danish Embassy. The good-looking Hans was in chains for months in a German prison during the war.

Society came in droves to the pre-inauguration reception held by the Ambassador of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen in honor of the New Zealand Prime Minister, Peter Fraser.

Guests were given a hearty greeting by this well-known couple in their attractive green drawing room and they lingered on until well after 8:00 over the lavish buffet. I saw the British Ambassador and Lady Franks, the French Bonnets, Mme. Bonnet looking smart in a hat of white aigrettes. Mrs. Andrews, wife of the South African ambassador, was there in a beige slim-skirted gown, and among the many others was Mrs. Willard Thorp, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State in a blue suit from Paris. The Russian Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin, came in, paid his respects, and made a hasty exit . . . other guests were the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thors, British Minister Hoyer Millar, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke and hosts of others.

General Von der Becke, Chief of the Argentine Military Delegation, and Mme. Von der Becke are leaving the capital after two years here. They bade farewell to their many friends at a cocktail party in the Chinese room at the Hotel Mayflower.

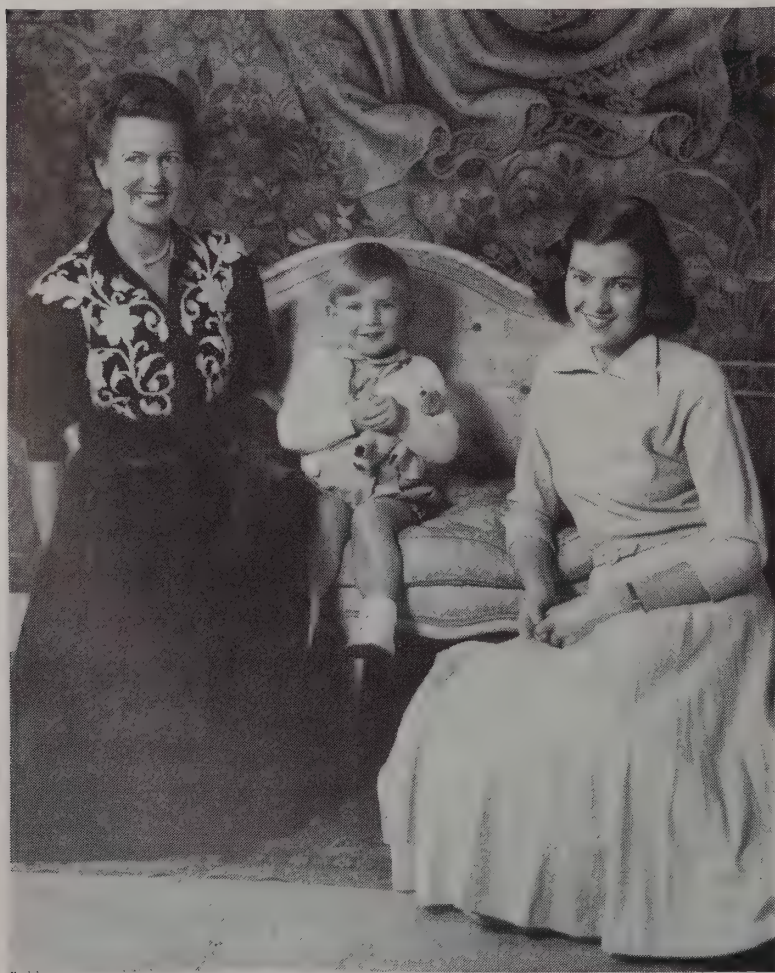

You know, darling, I consider the Argentine women more chic than the Parisiens, and it always amuses me how they would rather be caught dead in anything but black at the cocktail hour! They wear sleek black dresses and smart expensive hats and good, but little, jewelry. I think we could take a lesson from them.

The Spanish consul-general to Cuba and his beautiful English wife have just left for Havana after a whirl in New York and Washington. At their suite in the Shoreham, before leaving they had an international group for cocktails which included Prince and Princess Pignatelli, beloved Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley, of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schenck, Ambassador of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen, and Ambassador of Cuba and Madame de Belt.

We are sad because the popular Belts will be leaving us in February after four years here. He was appointed, I hear, as Ambassador to London, but turned it down thinking London wasn't the best place to take five small children. Rumors have it he will get a top job in the Government in Havana.

Prince and Princess Pignatelli are back in town at their Massachusetts home after their wedding not too long ago and a quick trip to California. She was the former Barbara Eastman, of New York, a quiet attractive young woman. They had as their house guests during the inauguration Igor and Mrs. Cassini (Cholly Knickerbocker of New York).

she is well known (as well as here and in Italy) she gave several farewell luncheons. One was given at the F Street Club and among the guests were Mme. Le Galais, the attractive Italian wife of the Luxembourg Minister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Countess Szechenyi, who was, by the way, the house guest of Mme. Elovius Mangor . . . then there was Count George Lasocki and George von L Meyer, brother of the hostess.

General and Mrs. A. C. Wedemeyer entertained recently at one of their select small cocktail parties in their new home at Fort Myer. They recently took over General Omar Bradley's house that has the most magnificent view of the capital on the Post. And Mrs. Wedemeyer has decorated it attractively, with Chinese objects of art predominating.

We rode over with the Prentiss Coonleys. While there I chatted with Sir Wilmott and Lady Lewis, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, who has just bought a house here to settle since her divorce from Colonel Douglas Parmentier. The friendly Brazilian Ambassador Mauricio Nabuco and I compared notes on Brazilians I had known in the Far East and General Patrick Hurley was there with his oldest daughter, his wife Ruth being on the Virus X list.

In case you haven't heard the biggest gossip at this point is will our beloved charming new Vice President marry Mrs. Perle Mesta as is rumored about by certain knowing ladies of the luncheon set at the Mayflower. They said "Just wait until after the Inauguration!" Perle worked like mad on the Inaugural Ball Committee, even carried a lunch box to have more time at her desk. . . .

For years the gossips have hopefully linked ex-Senator Barkley's name with one socialite or another. My bet is this rumor will blow over like all the others. Anyway, his time has been completely taken for the last six months with conventions, campaign speeches, trips to Europe and so forth.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, former Speaker Joe Martin, as well as J. Edgar Hoover are three men who have withstood successfully the efforts of the Capital dowagers to marry them off.

Suppose you have seen affable, much-traveled J. Deane Rucker who is back in Palm Beach on his yacht the "Marcoura." Just before he left Deane gave a cocktail party in his apartment here for his mother who expects to join him in Palm Beach soon.

Darling, you should have been here for the Inaugural Ball. It may not have been the party of the century as some said, but it was an enormously successful, really quite glamorous party, despite the fact over 5,000 people were there. The floor space in the Armory where the Ball was held measures two acres, so at no time did it seem overcrowded. And, the Committee is to be congratulated on getting people in and out with no long waits for coats or cars.

It looked like a Hollywood setting as the streams of cars approached the huge armory. Strong, vari-colored floodlights a half block away lit up and considerably glamorized the plain building. Inside, diamonds sparkled, silk toppers gleamed, and the women roamed about from box to box to show off their beautiful gowns.

They say many socialites were chagrined not to be invited, but from what I could see most of the "400," so-called, was there including Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Warren delano Robins. And the box list of 120 read like a page out of the Washington social register.

Margaret Truman was in a froth of a dress of 35 yards of "Margaret Pink" tulle. The color is more a flesh color than a pink and was most becoming to her blond hair.

Xavier Cugat couldn't have been better, and poor old Benny Goodman was so ill with pneumonia he fainted three times and finally had to be removed by his physician.

The President and Vice President had streams of people stopping by their boxes on the balcony and people blocked the passageway alongside the dance floor in front of the box to gape up at the Presidential party.

Near our box were Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson, and their party. In Mrs. Mesta's box were French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, jovial Brazilian Ambassador Nabuco, as well as the Belgian Ambassador. Lady Franks was there in a gold and white satin gown. Getting their share of attention were Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder and their daughter Drucie. (They gave a small reception for the President the day after the Inauguration).

Also in the crowd were the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whites, she in a Castillo creation. Ambassador Tony Biddle, who became a father recently, and his new wife, Lawrence Steinhardt, Ambassador to Canada, and Mrs. Steinhardt, who were down from Ottawa. Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, the Millard Tydings, Prince Hohenlohe looking tall and handsome, Oleg and Igor Cassini and Mrs. Igor Cassini, General Clifton Cates, Commandant of the Marines, the Omar Bradleys, smiling General Eisenhower and his Mamie who stayed gallantly on until autograph hounds drove them away.

I chatted with the Claude Peppers in their box. Among their guests were regal-looking Mrs. John Ringling and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lee, of Florida and New York. Mrs. Ringling was the Pepper's house guest. The vivacious Mildred was stunning in an off-the-shoulder heavy satin navy blue dress and Mrs. Lee had chosen an all-black French Net. Everyone was awaiting Governor Fuller Warren whose aide, Frank Wright, came along to say the Governor had finally given up coming after the Inaugural ceremony and parade and about six presidential receptions. Ann Mitchell was there in a pink brocade gown. Her party schedule has been hectic since she flew in before the inauguration as all during the week there were from four to six parties a day. Hundreds of Washingtonians are planning a trip to Florida to recuperate after all the activity.

All the best, darling, until I see you,

Affectionately,

GARNETT.

Florida State Parks Feature Primitive, Unspoiled Charm

ACRES OF MAGNIFICENT natural beauty, preserved in their 'primitive, unspoiled charm, comprise the superb system of Florida State Parks. Each park has its own particular "personality" and individuality . . . representative of a state widely variant in climate, flora and fauna, topography.

For residents and winter visitors who thrill to the stimulating out-of-doors and love the manifold beauties of nature, there are numerous and diverse conveniences and accommodations, to make visits to these interesting and attractive parks, a memorable occasion.

Selected at random for their tropical charm and intrinsic beauty: Highlands Hammock State Park, six miles west of Sebring . . . a jungle of lush, tropical growth, it has been made accessible by an excellent system of gravel driveways and well-marked nature trails. The gift of the John A. Roebeling Estate, this park has been acclaimed the third outstanding park unit in the entire country.

Barron Collier Memorial Park at Collier-Seminole State Park, located near Everglades. The Greek column of Georgia marble which is about 16 feet high and 20 feet long, with a bronze bust of Mr. Collier on white marble pedestal, adds distinction to this interesting park of 4,500 acres.

Hillsborough River State Park . . . located between Zephyrhills and Tampa. Colorful water plants, sky orchids and graceful palms, dominate the tropical water course from which it takes its name. The diverse attractions include fishing, boating, nature trails, picnicking and camping, for which it is admirably equipped.

Gold Head Branch State Park. . . On Highway number 68, just northeast of Keystone Heights, in a region of fresh water lakes, open pine forests and rolling sandhills. This extraordinary park takes its name from a wholly unexpected wooded ravine of exceeding beauty. The fishing is excellent . . . and there is swimming and boating; boathouse, beach, picnicking accommodations, overnight cabins and trailer camping facilities.

Myakka River State Park . . . east of Sarasota, the winter home of the famous Ringling circus. The valley of the Myakka has been compared to the African veldt. Here is space . . . lots of it and a stillness so vast that you "feel" it. If you want solitude, relaxation or communion with nature, Myakka's atmosphere is the correct answer. It has one of the finest natural wildlife sanctuaries in the United States . . . the variety and abundance of its bird life is particularly impressive. The park includes the vast flood plain of the river and two extensive lakes.

Fort Clinch State Park . . . on the outskirts of Fernandina, this park combines historic, scenic and recreational qualifications. Ft. Clinch, from which the park derives its name, is an outstanding historic spot . . . the masonry and design of the old fort are unusually interesting. And, it houses an exceptionally fine museum. The surrounding park area offers deep sea fishing, surf bathing, intriguing sand dunes and a jungle hammock for the adventuresome . . . was once the rendezvous of pirates, rum runners, runaway slaves.

And yet another area where the Suwannee river flows, is historical, and in many places still extremely primitive. The best description of the stream which it is agreed is the most romantic of all the rivers in America, may be found in Cecile Hulse Matschat's American River Series' "Suwannee River—Strange green Land."

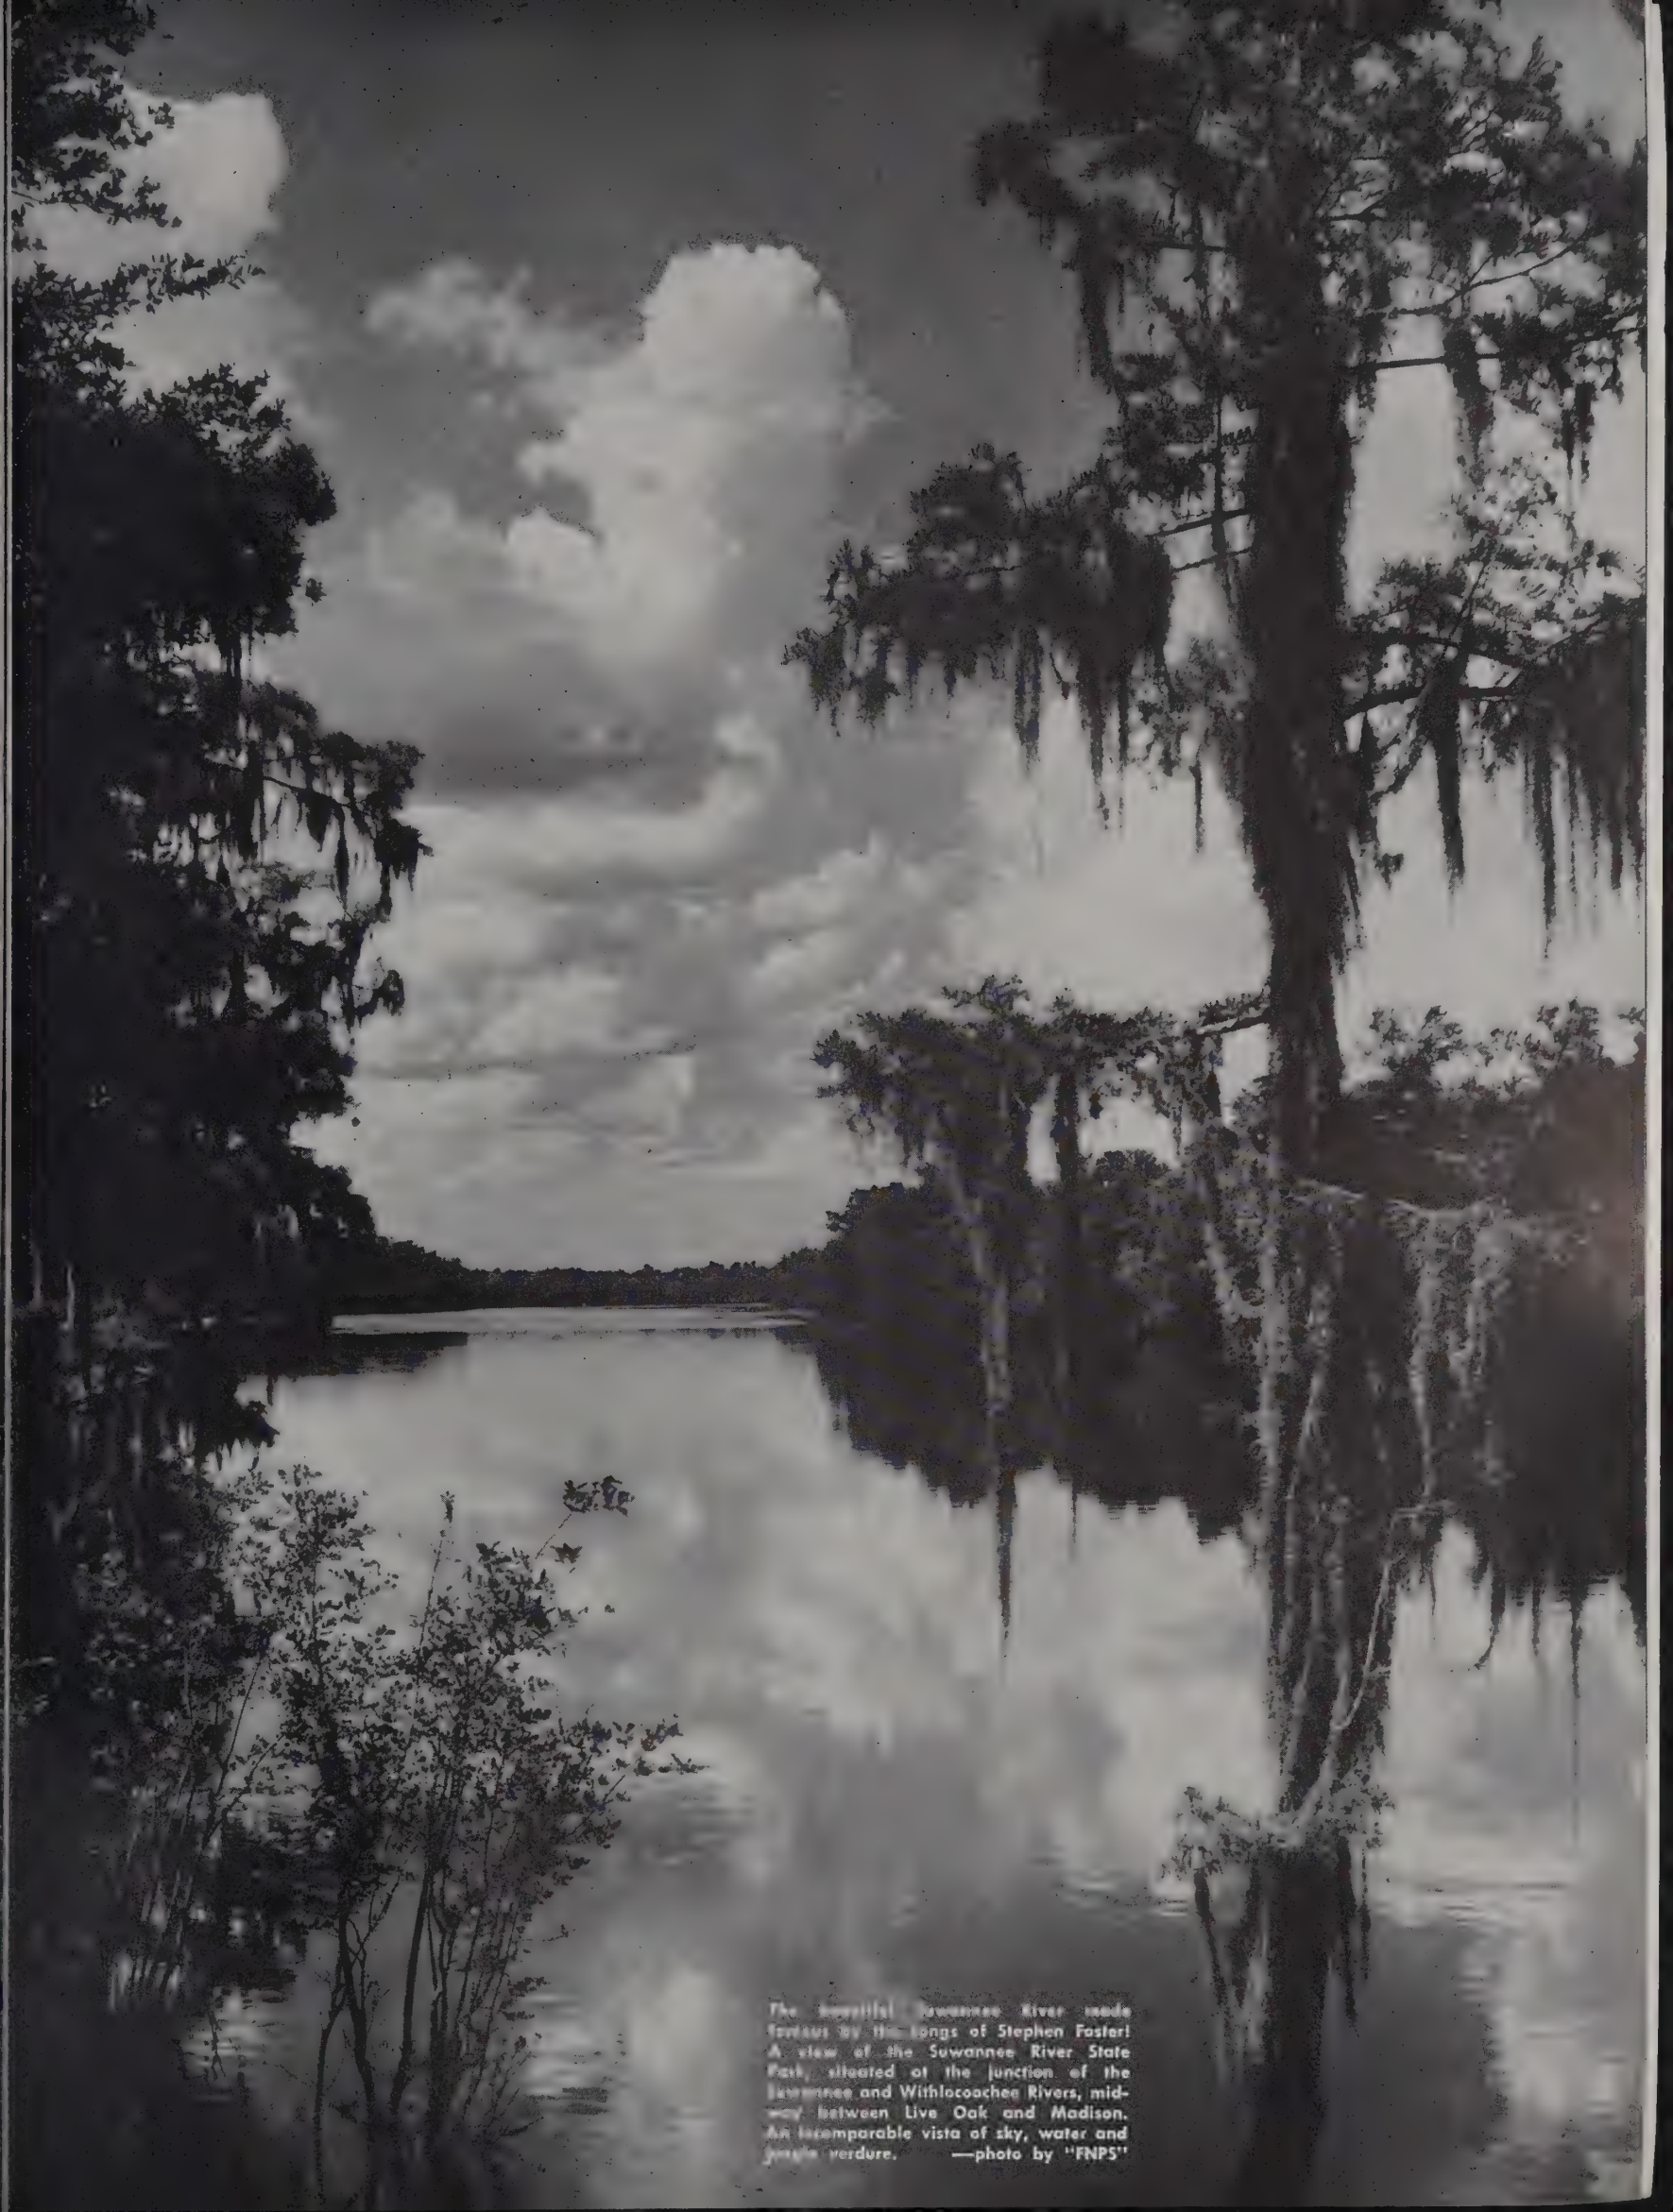

From its birthplace in the somber heart of the state of Georgia's Okefenoke Swamp, the Suwannee wanders slowly in a southwesterly direction entering the state of Florida at Blounts Ferry where becoming wider it enters the glade where Osceola, the famous Florida Indian chief incited his followers to massacre the first white settlers.

Turning and twisting so that on a map of Florida it looks like scalloped edging, the winding river waters a rich area of the state devoted to truck gardening, and further on it heads for the Gulf of Mexico slides past sleepy little hamlets of colored folk who claim to be the runaway slaves led by a regal Ethiopian named King Nero. Over 240 miles of varied land and climate, where spring comes before Autumn ends, the Suwannee runs its course. It has a place beside the royal rivers of the world and although no New York or Paris sprawls along its banks and no Niagara appears to challenge its course, the name Suwannee is better known the world over than any other river and in countries and their remote areas where no other river in the world is known, people sing "Way Down Upon The Suwannee River," one of the masterpieces of American musical composition.

One of the most fascinating parts of Florida, it is in this area along the banks of the Suwannee that one will find historical legend going back to the days of the Mayas of Yucatan that makes a story, unique among American chronicles.

Each little town it passes by has a story to tell of the Suwannee. Dowling Park abounds in natural wildlife and at Brantford, Hildreth, Hatchs Bend, Wannee and Oldtown may be found much of old, old Florida and many, many stories of its rich and colorful history, including the origin of the word Suwannee. The Seminoles, the villagers will tell you, avow that in early times they were ruled by a noble chieftainess, Su-wan-nee, whose name was given to the river in order that she might be remembered forever and ever and her spirit live on with them.

The beautiful Suwannee River made famous by the songs of Stephen Foster! A view of the Suwannee River State Park, situated at the junction of the Suwannee and Withlacoochee Rivers, midway between Live Oak and Madison. An incomparable vista of sky, water and jungle verdure. —photo by "FNPS"

Scouting the Shops

POMPADOUR TAFFETA: Is the medium for a collection of very French looking evening gowns . . . paniers, pouffs, subtle draping, unique décolletage. Also at the Mme. Mogabgab salon, gowns of fine imported laces, gorgeous nylon net, pure silk prints.

DIAMOND SAILBOAT: Whether you are a landlubber or have an affection for the briny deep, the dazzling diamond clip in the form of a sailboat, should be intriguing. Designed by Koslow of round and baguette stones with a huge triangular diamond in the sail.

IMPORTED BRUSHES: The Everglades Pharmacy has the famous Kent of London brushes . . . satinwood handles with Siberian boar bristles. All especially designed and as functional as they are smart looking. The collection includes clothes, hand and bath brushes . . . hair brushes and the noted Kent of London combs.

HAWAIIAN BEACHWEAR AND CUBA LIBRAS: And we mean, they are available under the same roof at Finchley's . . . unique in the world, this clever establishment combines smart shops for men and women and one of the colony's most attractive and unusual cocktail lounges. One can shop and sip at leisure!

MUFF BEACH BAGS: Also overarm and oversized versions, made of duck and straw; in gay, primary colors . . . water repellent . . . good looking . . . practical. There are matching beach robes to complete the ensemble. Among the numerous interesting items at the Evelyn Tew Gift Shop, in the via Mizner.

DINING ON PASTEL SATIN DAMASK: These luncheon or dinner accessories exploited by Moseley are exceedingly smart . . . a wide panel down the center of the cloth with appliques of morning glories and a monogram in contrasting color; the napkins repeat the theme. In grey, turquoise, pink, ivory and very tropical!

RARE MEISSEN: This tea set, among the unusually large collection of antiques at Plummer's, is a rare find. Each piece is decorated with vignettes, painted in colored enamels, of animals; with captions in French. Also, the Capo di Monti tray circa 1759; the second period under the patronage of Ferdinand IV.

"NIGHT OWLS": One of the numerous conversation pieces in cravats at the Di Tere men's accessory shop. Others depict . . . fishing flies, Greek classic motifs, playing card designs, signs of the zodiac, racing greyhounds, rural scenes. All smart, different and distinctive.

ROULETTE WATCH: This is really something new under the tropical sun . . . of solid gold, with a beautifully detailed spinning roulette wheel framing the face of the watch. Designed by John Rubel. Also in the "conversation" category, their whirling star clip, of baguette and invisibly set sapphires, surrounding a large round diamond.

TIME TWINKLES ON: Via the diamond-studded wrist watches by Greenleaf and Crosby . . . round and baguette diamonds as the focal point of interest, pointed up with sapphires, emeralds, rubies and aquamarines. For further glitter, a new type diamond cocktail ring that is the epitome of luxurious dazzle.

FOR YOUR VALENTINE: Nosegays and corsages . . . and the Lake Ridge Nursery and Flower Shop has some very clever ideas for concocting these sentimental tidbits; orchids, gar-denias, camelias, red roses, white freezia, carnations, sweetheart roses, tuberose; finished with ribbons and bows.

"NATURAL WAVE": Hair styling by Jean De Chant . . . ideal for tropical days and nights. He has a novel method of shaping and styling the coiffure, which brings out the natural beauty of your tresses. The finishing touch to perfect grooming!

LOVE DART CLIP: By Cartier . . . gold with a coral heart and diamond feathered arrow. What would be more appropriate as a Valentine gift? Also, their engine turned gold cocktail ring, dramatized with clustered diamonds in the center motif.

IMPORTED SWISS EMBROIDERED ORGANDY: Is the medium for a group of attractive cocktail and dinner gowns by Mildred of New York City and available in a number of Palm Beach stores. Cool and smart . . . grand for winter resort wear!

18TH CENTURY CHESSMEN: If you are seeking the unique and rare, Douglas Lorie has a clever solution . . . 18th Century Chessmen of porcelain . . . 32 brilliantly-colored figures in Shakespearean costumes. Even if you are not a chess addict, they are a grand acquisition for the collector; colorful, unusual and interesting figurines.

"HEART-BEAT CURLS": Elizabeth Arden's talented hair stylist, Thomas, has created a delightfully new and artistic cut, a coiffure which literally sweeps years away from the face with its soft-framing wisp curls . . . natural-looking waves and delicate contour.

CHRISTIAN DIOR DOT DRESS: One of the outstanding creations in the Frances Brewster resort collection . . . green or gold silk, dotted in white and fashioned with a clever new draped neckline and shoulder treatment, topping a gracefully flaring skirt.

CLICKING NEEDLES: If you don't knit this season, you are not in fashion . . . everybody is knitting; from socks and mittens (for northern friends), to sweaters, suits and dresses. And, Evelyn Curtis has all of the necessary items from yarns of 57 varieties to smart knitting bags.

BRITISH WALKING SHORTS: These are companions to the masculine daks which are so popular in the resort this season. Fashioned of imported English flannel and Irish linen, beautifully tailored . . . at Ladd's in The Breakers Casino; in striking desert colors. They also specialize in large-size bathing suits, which are rare items to obtain in the resort.

ALL-AMERICAN: The good looking and functional sports clothes at Norman's . . . especially designed for golf, tennis, bicycling, swimming and suntanning . . . representing the leading American designers.

HABILIMENTS FOR THE SPORTSMAN: The famous lightweight knitted sports shirt, ideal for polo, golf, tennis, spectator wear, in white, the popular pastels and the ever-smart navy and beige. F. R. Tripler & Co.

CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHES AND CHAPEAUX: By the amazing Mr. John, formerly of John Fredericks, who recently opened his own establishment, catering to discriminating women of all ages.

THE SOUTHERN COLLECTION: Of J. J. Jonas is a conversation piece in the resort . . . daytime and evening things, featuring outstanding style notes and unusual color mergers. Their evening gowns and luxurious furs, should be spoken about in superlatives.

For an accentuated hipline, the stitched and padded pockets of this attractive dress, fashioned of silk-finished broadcloth. The tiny collar and scalloped border which frames the tucked yoke, front fullness, are outstanding style notes. In mauve, pink, aquamarine and yellow. Designed by Zita Plaut for Sport & Travel, of New York City and Palm Beach.

To complement bronzed skins, this white birdseye pique bathing suit in a ballerina styling, with elasticized top and flared skirt; designed by Frances Sider and from the resort collection of Wally Williams, Worth Avenue.

For that "June in February" resort look, this delightful cotton print in pastel tones of grey and pink or pink and blue, styled with ruffled ruch trimming for the neckline and skirt hem. Designed by Milton Saunders and from the winter collection of Anthony & Son. A high fashion cotton with social significance . . . it can go anywhere!

The epitome of sophistication, this navy peanutskin taffeta in a very French-looking creation by Nettie Rosenstein. The dramatic feature is the slim skirt with cut-away over-skirt, which swoops out smartly in front. The fitted bodice has a flattering halter neckline. Matching elbow-length gloves complete the chic picture. From the formal evening collection of Martha and perfect for important Palm Beach occasions.

Straws in the wind of Fashion: A close-fitting cap of straw, bordered with large tropical flowers of horsehair . . . very feminine and very chic. From a new collection by G. Howard Hodge. An ageless chapeau, equally right for the debutante or matron.

White organza ornamented with tucks and embroidery for a fitted bodice topping a very full skirt and finished with sash and bow of taffeta. From the winter resort collection of Traina Norell and available at Razooks in The Breakers. A wonderful acquisition to your dancing and dining wardrobe!

The diamond necklace of pear-shaped pendant stones, echoes the "pendant trim" of the ermine tails which border the décolletage of the black velvet evening gown. Twin diamond "ribbon" clips dramatize the effective short hair-do. And, for added glamour, a brilliant-cut ring, wide bracelet and earrings, of diamonds.
Jewelry by Frank S. Hartley.

A tone on tone silk shantung in a good looking resort casual designed by Natalie Renke of Kane Weill. Manipulation of fabric is the outstanding style note. Available in wheat and taffy, platinum and pewter. An ideal "go anywhere dress," from the Palm Beach collection of McDonald's, North County Road.

Featherweight Russian broadtail, designed by Maximilian to accompany the very elegant and feminine evening gowns of the 1949 social season. Shown here as a sophisticated topping for swishy black taffeta.

Delray Beach

DELRAY BEACH, a sister community to Palm Beach, is fast becoming known as one of the more attractive of the Florida East Coast resorts. A little to the South of Palm Beach, there is much visiting to and fro between residents of both communities, each in its own way offering hospitality and entertainment throughout the winter season.

Spending this season in Delray Beach are Col. H. Murray-Jacoby and Mrs. Murray-Jacoby of New York who were recent visitors to Palm Beach where they attended a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Humphreys at their attractive Chilean Avenue home. A former ambassador to Abyssinia, Mr. Murray-Jacoby and his wife are members of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club.

Also arriving this month from "Dunleigh Farm," his home in Monkton, Md. was Mr. Thomas Collyer Eastman. Here as his guests for several weeks are Mr. and Mrs. John K. Shaw of Baltimore, Md. Mr. Collyer plans to remain in Florida until spring.

Others enjoying the season at Delray Beach are the Harold S. Bonds of Greenwich, Conn., members of the Gulf Stream Club; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stephanson of Glen Cove, L. I.; J. B. Lecheres and their daughter Susan; Mr. and Mrs. Forest Lattner and family of Riverside, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Mudge of Pittsburgh, Pa., accompanied by Mrs. Carroll P. Davis.

Arriving this week from Washington, D. C. were Dr. and Mrs. J. Breckenridge Bayne. Joining them for a 2-months stay are their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Elwood Jones and young sons, James E. Jr., and Stanley of Norwalk, Conn.

Now year-round residents where formerly they only wintered are the Alden Painters, and here also are Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Farrish of Newark, New Jersey.

Mr. Harry Bull, and son Sandy are in residence arriving recently from their home in New York City. Mr. Bull who is an art, literature and drama critic, was formerly editor of Town and Country magazine and for several years affiliated in an editorial capacity with International Studios. In addition to writing, he also lectures on the theatre, publishing and architecture.

An ever increasing colony where like Palm Beach, the season ever extends later into each spring, Delray Beach is attracting many visitors to its shores this season. Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence Claypool of Pittsburgh, Pa., are old-timers back for another season in the sun. The Sargent F. Collier family, Mr. and Mrs. Collier, and daughters Ann and Eleanor and Sargent Jr., have arrived for the winter months. Mr. Collier a well-known artist is a contributor to House and Garden and other nationally known publications.

Other Delray Beachers are Mrs. Charles Henry Hamilton and Miss Josephine P. Kelly of Ridgefield, Conn., who are at the Arvilla Hotel; Mr. and Mrs. George Sewell Haydock of Cincinnati, Ohio and Traverse City, Mich. who have opened their villa "Vista Del Mar" for the season; Mrs. Frederick Herreshoff of New York City beginning her sixteenth season; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Collier; Mrs. William Wallace Boyd of Atlanta, Georgia at her villa "Two-Views"; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wentworth Boykin of Savannah, Ga., with their daughter Mrs. Robert Glendinning also of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. Hadden Kirkpatrick of Lexington, Ky. who have as their house guest, Mrs. Katherine Thraves Maxwell also of Lexington, a noted equestrienne and owner of "Longridge Farms."

A southern paradise is reflected in the grounds about the gracious home of the Charles A. Verschoors in Delray Beach, not the least of which is the view above of a formal garden and cloistered patio beyond.

Gulf Stream

GULF STREAM fully as enchanting as its colorful name and each season attracting larger numbers of southern sojourners to its picturesque terrain is one of the many bright spots on the Florida map. Known as a residence town where gracious living is the keynote of every-day life under the Florida sun, Gulf Stream is a cousin to Palm Beach with its splendid clubs and magnificent estates.

Boasting two fine clubs of splendid proportions and exclusive membership, both the Gulf Stream Golf and the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis are favorite retreats for colonists of the sea-side resort. The Bath and Tennis, open every day, provides swimming, tennis and a host of other entertainment programs that make it one of the most popular and best known in this neck of the woods while the Gulf Stream Golf caters primarily to the fairway faction.

Spending their third season at Gulf Stream are Gen. Arthur Hazeltine Carter and Mrs. Carter of Greenwich, Conn. and New York City while Capt. Earl M. Major and Mrs. Major with their daughter Jane have opened their new home "Horizons" this season. Members of the Gulf Stream and Bath and Tennis they are frequently seen at both; Mr. and Mrs. David H. Annan and small daughter Barbara of Lake Forest, Ill., begin their second Gulf Stream season this year. Their sons John and Michael both students at the Hill School in Pottstown, Pa., will spend their spring vacation with their parents.

The Stewart B. Igleharts are again at "La Centinela," on North Ocean Blvd. for the winter months. Mr. Iglehart who is not only one of the best polo players in the Country, but also maintains a farm in north central Florida.

Returned again are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Brown, of Greenwich, Conn. and New York. They have been spending winters at Gulf Stream for a number of years. Mr. Brown is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Johns-Manville Corporation, a director of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and are members of the Gulf Stream Golf Club.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Biggs, of Tasewell, Va., are back for the season, and often visit the Gulf Stream Club where they are members.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Royce, of New York, and Col. Joseph E. Wholean and Mrs. Wholean, of Bar Harbor, Maine, are also winter residents.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Jebb with their daughter Molly, are again residing at "Jamaica Square," after an extended motor trip through the West last summer. Their son Richard, who was their guest during the holidays, returned to his studies at Yale in January. Another son, Thomas, is spending the winter on a ranch in Montana. They are members of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club.

Other old time residents of the winter colony are Mr. and Mrs. L. Seton Lindsay, who reside at their home "Point of Rocks." They are members of the Gulf Stream Golf Club; Mr. Harvey S. Ladew, recently arrived at "Pied-a-Mer," after several months in Europe where he enjoyed the stag hunting, Mr. Ladew also spent a short time in Monkton, Md. before coming south. He is a member of the Everglades Club.

Mrs. Anne Fontaine Maury Adams is also spending the season at her home in Gulf Stream. Her daughter Miss who, with Mr. Bell and daughter Nancy Alker, is residing in Gulf Stream. Arriving from Locust Valley, L. I., recently, the family is occupying the W. Seward Webb home this season.

Nancy Fontaine Maury and her son Charles Walker Maury are students at Graham Eckes School. She is a member of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Wililam E. Chilton, 2nd, their daughters Cynthia and Alice and sons, William and Robert of Charleston, W. Va. are in Gulf Stream for the season. Their daughter Miss Nancy who is a student at the Masters School, at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. will join her parents during her spring vacation.

Others include Mr. and Mrs. James N. Wallace, of New York, prominent members of the Gulf Stream Colony; Mrs. Martha Whittaker, from Dayton Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey G. Davis and Mrs. Davis parents Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dickinson, of Charleston, W. Va. who arrived on January 21 to spend their third season at their home in Gulf Stream; and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Winslow of Providence, R. I. Also the Harold S. Bonds and Mr. and Mrs. Burton A. Howe, of Greenwich, Conn.; and from Baltimore, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Talbert T. Speer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McKay, of Pittsburgh, Pa. and the J. D. Stetson Colemans of The Plains, Va. and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Smithers of New York City and Locust Valley, L. I. The latter are spending the season at "Pelican Point" their Gulf Stream home.

"Au Cafe" by Jean Louis Forain (1852-1931), pen and ink and watercolor, a character study of customers visiting a French cafe. He was a pupil of Degas and was of the same period as Raffaelli.

"Landscape" a Vlaminck scene of a countryside. The Parisian artist who still resides in the city of his birth is self-taught. He was associated with the "Fauves" and influenced by Cezanne and Matisse.

"Monet to Matisse" at

A RARE AND SPARKLING show provides added inducement to visit the Worth Avenue Gallery these days for there has just opened there, to be current throughout the remainder of February, a collection of pictures by noted French masters.

Bearing the title of "Monet to Matisse" and taking its cue from a similarly important show called "Daumier to Dufy" which Mrs. Duggett Benson and Mrs. Archibald Rayner, co-directors of the Worth Avenue Gallery sponsored last year, the current one is equally timely and presents livable pictures plus representing such great artists as Degas, Pissarro, Boldini, Redon, Boudin and of a more recent period, Segonzao, Utrillo, Dufy and Matisse, who with many others carried on where the Impressionists left off and in an era that followed showed history once again furnishing striking proof that it engraves its dates not on tombs but on mile-stones . . . the year 1886, a symbol in the world of art, marking both an end and a beginning, for from the dissolution of the movement created by Monet and his friends, it points to the post-impressionist period.

The show, largely loaned through the courtesy of M. Knoedler and Co., Inc., of New York, in several instances paintings shown, were brought back from Paris by Mrs. Benson last summer when she returned from a visit to the French capital.

Starting with Claude Monet of whom it has often been said he is the one the Impressionists owe most, he is represented by a study of Waterloo Bridge, London which for many years was in the collection of the late Adolph Lewisohn. Just as in all his work, the sky and water sparkle with color revealing again as always, Monet's keen and curious intelligence, educated to the discipline of the disintegration of colors into an incredible number of nuances in which captured the poetry of every hour of the day with a remarkable sense of harmony.

Likewise Jean Boldoni in a completely different style has captured exquisite color in a delightful little picture

"At The Grand Prix" Childe Hassam; a pictorial pastel inspired when the artist attended a running of the most important French horse race which ushers in the summer season at Longchamps.

"Le Grand Prix a Longchamps" by F. J. Raffaelli, painted about 1900 on paper mounted on canvas.

Worth Avenue Gallery

called "Morning Stroll." Painted at the very dawn of Impressionism, the painting hung for many years in the Newport mansion of James Gordon Bennett.

An American artist also honoring the show is the late Childe Hassam whose pastel "At the Grand Prix," equals in beauty and style another painting of the same subject by Raffaelli, protege of Degas and among the first who opposed the Impressionists.

Two paintings by Camille Pissarro are watercolors depicting scenes of nature. Pissarro who was influenced by Monet and Sisley has often been described by critics as "painting fields, forests and the countryside of France with the same simplicity as 'God' created all three."

Eugene Boudin one of the most talented painters of his time (1824-1898) is represented by a canvas entitled "Douarnenez et l'Ile Tristan," a view of a bay with several sailboats and a small steamer.

The immortal Degas whose drawings of ballet dancers and scenes at the races are so well known is included with two pictures of which one, is a small and utterly beautiful pastel landscape.

Redon, the romanticist and mystic who followed the medium of lithography for twenty years before he turned to oils, pastel and watercolor is included with "Flowers in a Blue Jug." Born in 1840, he did not become a part of the Impressionist group although he showed in their last show of 1886. Concerned with the record of objects closely related to dream images, he ranks as a "pioneer surrealist."

Dufy and Vlaminck who with Matisse belonged to the post-impressionists known as "les fauves" (the wild beasts) so-named in the derision at the Salon d'Automme of 1905 are both inclusions with a watercolor called "Normandie" by Dufy and a landscape by Vlaminck.

Henri Matisse whom the show honors with three examples of his work entitled "Morocaine en Jaune," "Nude" and "Woman with Necklace," is a great favorite of our time. Born in 1869 he started his career with a subjective reaction to the external world, later after wide travel and study at the Louvre changing to a style through which he produced rhythm largely by color alone. A deft, spirited painter he produced canvases with no little spontaneity and verve. He it was who with countless others carried on the struggle for freedom in painting begun by Cezanne, Seurat, Gauguin, Van Gogh and Toulouse-Lautrec into what is known today as the group of the Post-Impressionists.

"Douarnenez et l'Ile Tristan" by E. Boudin. Sir Tristan's connection with the isle is legendary, though some ruins near Plomarch to the east, are described as those of the palace of King Mark. The painting presenting a view of a bay with white-sailed boats is one of the most famous sardine-fishing ports of France and a favorite excursion point. It is from the Paul Chadourne collection of Paris.

"Newport Harbor" by Childe Hassam (1859-1935), an American artist who worked and studied in Paris where he was influenced by the post-impressionists. The painting is a watercolor from the collection of Herbert Hosmer, Lancaster, Mass.

"Les Oliviers" by Renoir (1841-1919)

The Palm Beach Sportoscope

UNDER BLUE SKIES and balmy weather which causes one to forget that there are such things as snow and ice, the recent fortnight in Palm Beach sports was marked by the sensational victory of Reginald Boardman, Jr., of the Seminole Golf Club, in the forty-third annual Lake Worth Golf Championship.

The classic was played over the Palm Beach Golf course and Boardman, playing simply sensational golf defeated W. "Dub" Pagan in the 36 hole finals by a score of three and two.

Boardman's victory gave an impetus to golf in Palm Beach especially tournament play, for Pagan a fireman from across the Lake was thought to be practically unbeatable. He won the event last year and the year before was the medalist.

Last year Pagan defeated Jimmy Paul, of Daytona Beach, a relative of Boardman and when both Paul and Pagan reached the semi finals this year, the clubhouse porch rocking chair critics declared that it was all over but the shouting.

"Just a repetition of last year's finals," was the comment generally heard, though whispers, which filtered down, from the classical clubhouse at Seminole carried a promise of a 'big upset.'

Claude Harmon, internationally known Seminole pro, who has played and given Reggie many lessons foretold of Boardman, Jr.'s victory and caused many of the Seminole members who were inclined to wager a bob or two upon their fellow member to ask for and get juicy odds on Reggie, with the result that they are slightly richer today than they were before the tournament began.

"Reggie will win, without much trouble," Harmon declared and his prophesy came true, for on the last 18 holes, Reggie won as he pleased.

The annual tournament brought out fifty six players which caused the field to go into four flights, 16 each going in the first three flights and eight in the fourth flight.

It was an exceptionally fast field in the championship flight and many who would have landed in the top 16, had to go over into the second flight, which made for fine golf, in both the first and second flights.

Scores of 79 qualified for the first flight.

Three tied for the medalist honors when Boardman, Jimmy Paul and Pagan notched cards of 71.

Naturally they went into the championship flight with W. H. McIntyre, Wm. B. Curtiss, Dr. J. J. Kissel, J. Mahoney, P. S. P. Randolph, B. A. Mahoney, Leon Sikes, Ted Berghaus, H. H. Hampton, I. Merrill, C. B. Burkitt, Paul Bennett, and C. Smythe.

R. D. Martins shot a 79, but he lost the toss and was dropped into the second flight.

Boardman won his first round beating B. A. Mahoney while Leon Sikes defeated W. H. McIntyre, 2 and one.

James Paul defeated Ted Berghaus, 6 and 5 while Wm. B. Curtiss defeated H. H. Hampton, one up.

Pagan defeated Ike Merrill, 5 and 4 while C. B. Burkitt downed Dr. J. J. Kissell, 2 and 1. Jerry Mahoney whipped Paul Bennett in a surprise victory, 2 and one and P. S. P. Randolph, downed C. Smythe 4 and 2.

The next day Boardman defeated Leon Sikes 4 and 3 while James Paul ousted William Curtiss, 5 and 4. In the lower bracket Dub Pagan beat C. B. Burkitt, 6 and 5 while Randolph beat Jerry Mahoney 4 and 3.

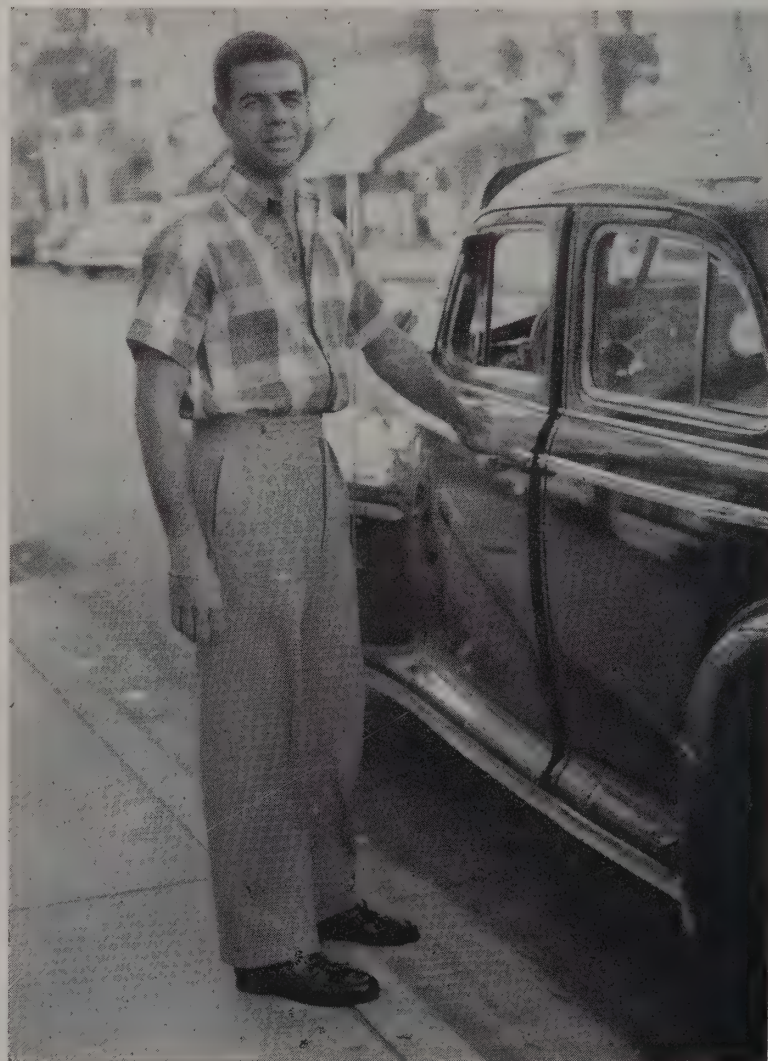

This brought Boardman and Paul together in the top half of the semi finals and Pagan and Randolph in the lower bracket.

Randolph was the surprise of the play, being passed 50 years of age and a surprising golfer. Pagan defeated him 7 and 6 and the Pienhurst star was eliminated from the play without glory.

The Boardman-Paul match went 20 holes before Boardman ran down a forty foot putt for a birdie two on the 130 yard second hole.

This put Boardman and Pagan in the finals which were played in the morning and afternoon. Paul Cushman, Old Guard refereed the morning round while Paul Bennett handled the second 18 holes in the afternoon.

At the end of the morning 18, Boardman was two down, but at the end of the twenty-seventh hole he was but one down. From then on it was all Boardman.

After a fifteenth hole which finally was halved, Boardman went on to halve the sixteenth and win the match 3 and two on the sixteenth green.

No more thrilling match was ever played on the historic Breakers course.

Pagan started the afternoon round as though he was going to make short work of the new champion when he notched a birdie three on the nineteenth hole to go three up. The short twentieth was halved and it was not until the men reached the 21st tee that Boardman began clicking. He took both the 21st and 22nd holes with par fours and took the 23rd hole with a birdie three to even the match.

Pagan immediately fired a birdie three on the 24th to go one up again and went two up on the 25th when he notched his four while Boardman ran into trouble and took a six.

On the twenty-sixth hole Boardman out drove Pagan and then when Pagan over shot the green Boardman put on 12 feet from the pin and won the hole when Pagan flubbed a shot from the rear of the green. The 27th was halved with fours.

Both hit the green with their second shots on the 28th hole but Pagan's putt was short and he took a five while Boardman took a four to even the match. The 29th was halved and on the short 12th Boardman notched a three when Pagan's tee shot landed in the shallow trap to the right of the green and he was far short when he tried a blast. Boardman notched his par three and went one up.

On the thirtieth hole Boardman hit a wood and followed with a marvelous iron shot, ten feet from the pin. Pagan again found a trap with his second, blasted out nicely to five feet of the pin and then took a five when his ball jumped out of the cup, amid the 'oh, mys' of the gallery. This put Boardman two up. Boardman went three up when after both had marvelous woods on the 31st hole, Pagan's second shot, a four iron, wound up in a trap to the left of the green and he dubbed his 'out,' even as you and I. Boardman reached the edge of the green in three, was five feet short on his putt but dropped a long one for a five.

On the 32nd hole, Boardman hit the chocolate drop or bunker to the left, while Pagan hooked a two iron into the hedge along County Road. It was thought to be out of bounds and he played a provisional ball. After considerable study Referee Paul Bennett ruled that he could play his provisional ball but must take a penalty stroke. Since Pagan was in bounds but had an unplayable lie, Bennett's ruling was correct. Boardman could have ended the match there and then, but he allowed Pagan to halve with a five when he dubbed a shot, was short with another, and finally got down in five.

But the Seminole star more than made up, with a blast shot from the trap to the left of the green on the 33rd hole when he blasted to within three feet of the pin and halved the hole with a four.

Don Woodward defeated Alexis Obolensky in the second flight, 4 and 3, while Jack Whitlock defeated R. D. Martins, one up in the first flight. Dr. Kissle defeated Ted Berghaus in the Consolation, 3 and 3.

Perhaps just to show that his victory over Pagan was not just lucky, Boardman took Pagan out upon the course the next day and beat him easily in the playoff for the medalist honors. Jimmy Paul had to return to Daytona Beach and could not participate in it, which should have been a three way play off. Boardman had a 70 in the playoff while Pagan had a 75.

Reggie shattered par on the out going nine by three strokes but soared three over to turn in a par card.

Pagan was out in 38 and back in 37 for a 75.

Boardman and Pagan together with James Paul turned in cards of 71 for medalist honors. Paul was unable to participate in the playoff.

While Pagan was soaring to a six on the first hole Boardman was notching a birdie three and followed it with a birdie two. He followed with two par fours and then notched another birdie three. Two more par fours followed and after soaring to a five on the eighth he captured another birdie three on the ninth.

On the fourteenth and fifteenth holes after four straight fours Reggie chalked up two fives and then finished with a par four, a five on the rather easy seventeenth and a birdie three on the more difficult eighteenth.

The tournament was one of the best conducted over the Palm Beach Golf Club course in years, the competition being keen and the tournament being exceptionally well handled by Miss Bess Fenn, club pro, and her associates, George Gordan, Alec Ritchie and Jack Walsh.

The scores:

RAY McCARTHY

The Winter Golf League of Advertisers which stages its annual tournament every January over the Palm Beach Golf Club course could hardly be a success without Ray McCarthy, New York Advertising executive, who is secretary of the League.

Winter Golf League of Advertisers began their play, with 150 members from all parts of the nation competing.

Mr. Raymond Clayberger of New York is president of the League and Mr. Ray McCarthy, secretary and coordinator.

Following the Winter League at the Palm Beach Golf Club will be the Palm Beach women's championship, an event which will draw a record smashing gallery this year. In 1948 it was won by Peggy Kirk and in 1947 by Mrs. Mildred Didrickson. With Louise Suggs and Didrickson out of the play this year it will be wide open.

Tombstone tournaments have been extremely popular during the past two weeks at the Everglades club and at the Seminole Golf Club. At Seminole recently after trying for four years Mr. Milton W. Holden and Mrs. Michael G. Phipps won their first tombstone, romping home ahead of a great field of players. They had a forty-seven stroke handicap and watched their last shot stop within four feet of the eleventh cup. Mr. and Mrs. H. Sherwood finished second with their fiftieth shot stopping in the tenth cup. Other scores were as follows:

Miss Mary Kenny and C. E. Geis, 48 strokes, 150 yards from ninth cup; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Kenny, 45 strokes, three feet from ninth cup; Capt. A. MacIntosh and Mrs. V. Townsend, 50 strokes, in eighth cup; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith, 50 strokes, 150 yards from ninth cup; Mr. and Mrs. A. Nesbitt, 47 strokes, 60 feet from 10th cup; Mrs. J. P. Kennedy and John Young, 45 strokes, 200 feet from ninth cup; Mr. H. G. L. Kingsland and Mrs. R. S. Pierrepont, 50 strokes, 100 yards from ninth cup; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bartlett, 45 strokes, in eighth cup; Mr. L. Lowden and Mrs. T. H. Shevlin, 50 strokes, 10 feet from 10th cup; Mr. L. P. Ordway and Miss Eunice Kennedy, 48 strokes, in ninth cup; Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Young, 48 strokes, 60 yards from 10th cup; Mr. and Mrs. P. Frazer, 50 strokes, in eighth cup, and Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Wyeth, 49 strokes, 60 yards from 10th cup.

The Everglades club stages its tombstones on Friday afternoon and the fields have kept Jack Ross, professional and his associates busy until after dark tabulating scores. In a thrilling finish Mrs. A. Nesbitt and George Rasmussen defeated Mrs. V. Miller and J. E. Baum in an Everglades tombstone when they had a 46 stroke handicap and finished in the eleventh cup while Mrs. Miller and Mr. Baum who had 50 strokes also finished in the eleventh cup.

Stemmler, Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore Tew, II, Peter Neidecker, Mrs. Hamilton Pell, Mrs. E. Forester Gries, Mrs. W. C. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Duns and Mr. Edward Quinn.

The Palm Beach Biltmore

THE PALM BEACH BILTMORE, the South's largest resort hotel, located on beautiful Lake Worth, plays a very important part in the social life of the community.

The formal gardens are more beautiful than ever this year and especially is this true at night when the multi-colored floor lights illuminating the waving palm fronds and the golden ground level lights interspersed among the lush tropical vegetation combine to create a "fairylend of loveliness."

In this romantic setting guests enjoy many of the hotel social activities, the latest of which is the extremely popular cocktail dance each day from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

The gardens also furnish the background for the weekly Saturday evening dancing parties for hotel guests and colonists. The gaiety and conviviality of these gatherings has made them a Saturday night "must."

For daytime relaxation and entertainment the Beach Club continues to be "the spot." After a morning of ping pong, shuffleboard, or some other outdoor game, a delicious luncheon in the beautiful Spanish patio while listening to the music of Dick Barlow and his band and a lazy afternoon on the beach is most welcome.

There is a well-rounded program of evening entertainment including card parties, concerts, movies, fashion shows, "game nights," book reviews, magic shows or perhaps Biltmore Night at the Palm Beach Kennel Club.

Recent arrivals who have returned to the Palm Beach Biltmore for their third winter include Mr. and Mrs. E. Townsend Irvin from New York.

Guests who have arrived recently to remain for the entire season are: Mrs. J. A. McLeay, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Perusi, Mrs. Joseph Layman, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jalkoff, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Simons, Mrs. Dahlia Loeb and Mrs. Rae Silverman, all of New York; Mrs. Albert Johnson, New Haven, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Anton Bamberger of Forest Hills, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sachs of Paterson, N. J.

New York Letter

DEAR DORA:

Reports coming from the middle West and into sunny California tell of raging blizzards. Our town for several weeks now has been enjoying almost Spring days. We, who are stuck in Manhattan this year are not doing too badly with the weather. Remember last year this time.

The Angier Biddle Dukes will soon depart from their Park Avenue apartment for the South. Angie and his wife, the former Margaret Screven White Tuck, plan on going to Nassau for a short stay and then on to Palm Beach.

A few nights ago a two-year-old filly was auctioned off in the Palm Court of the Hotel Plaza, adjoining the Terrace Room. Jimmy Altemus of Philadelphia was the winner in the bidding and $7,000 was added to the coffers of the Ellin Speyer Prince Hospital for Animals, the beneficiary of the Mid-winter Ball. Chanceling, the filly was shod with rubber for its Plaza appearance. It was donated by an unrevealed patron of the animal hospital, who purchased it from the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Salmon in Lexington, Ky.

Gilbert W. Kahn and his bride, the former Polly Stover leave for Florida early in February. Gil and Polly were wed last July in Norfolk, Conn. and sailed on the Queen Elizabeth for a wedding trip abroad.

The Marquess of Milford-Haven is due back in New York any day now. David was around Manhattan for several weeks before the holiday season, but returned home to London for Christmas.

Mrs. Millicent Rogers has been in town for several weeks from Taos, New Mexico, where she has a lovely house. Her three sons, Arturo Ramos Jr., Paul Ramos and Peter Salm have been her constant escorts.

Have just seen Randolph Churchill, Winston Churchill's only son with Miss June Osborne, of Wiltshire, England. Their engagement was announced last October in London.

The Jack Toppings are about to take off for Florida. Jack is the youngest of the Topping brothers and the heaviest. Soon to be seen in Palm Beach will be Mrs. George Mesta of Washington, with her sister, Mrs. George Tyson and Mrs. Tyson's daughter Betty Tyson Lyeth.

Style note: Mrs. Byron Foy has had her hair cut. Extremely becoming.

The Breakers

WITH MORE THAN 500 guests at this famous hostelry, The Breakers is one of the most active spots in the entire colony. As in former years, the roster includes the names of numerous famous personages . . . from all over the U.S.A., Canada and Europe. And, besides the various and diverse activities provided by the hotel, there is much entertaining among the guests . . . cocktail parties, luncheons and dinners; in the Main Dining and Circular Rooms, the Terrace and Blue Room.

One of the highlights of each season is the annual championship meeting of the Winter Golf League and the 41st tournament was held this year for a week starting January 17, with the largest attendance in its history. A dinner in the North Loggia, climaxed the exciting affair.

The perfect Palm Beach weather has been the incentive for members of The Breakers Cabana Club to spend a lot of time swimming and suntanning . . . many of them spending the entire day at the seaside and lunching in Gabrielle's smart restaurant on the ocean front.

Monday and Thursdays are given to game nights and Tuesday evening is devoted to bridge and the new Argentine game "Canasta" which is rapidly gaining in popularity in the resort, making everyone forget all about Oklahoma. The Champagne Interlude takes place on Friday nights, with the interesting Breakers Gala on Wednesdays.

Among those in residence now at The Breakers, many of whom have been coming to the hotel for many years and are here for the entire season: the Hon. Ruby Vale and Mrs. Vale of Philadelphia. He is a member of the Old Guard and is a noted attorney and author. Lord and Lady Ennisdale of London, who sailed in the Queen Mary which was marooned in the English Channel for five days, delaying their arrival in the resort.

The Rt. Rev. and Mrs. Ernest M. Stires of Bolton Landing, N. Y. who have been wintering at the hotel for many years and celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary last month, with a dinner party given them by Mr. and Mrs. George Doubleday of New York City, also annual guests at The Breakers for years.

Others include: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hale of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Delmar of Washington, D. C., Baroness E. Gourgaud of Isle d'Aix, France; Mrs. John P. Frazer of Grosse Pointe, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. McKenna and small daughter Patricia, of New York City . . . Mr. McKenna is a famous international lawyer, with headquarters in New York and South America.

Mr. Murray W. Sayles of Grosse Pointe, Mich. remaining for the entire season; Mrs. Henry F. Eddy of Plainfield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Clements of Nashville, Tenn.; the Hon. Lewis L. Fawcett, of Brooklyn, who joined his sisters, Mrs. Deane C. Osborn and Mrs. Theodore Frohne, who arrived earlier in the season . . . they will remain until the hotel closes; Mrs. James A. Burke and Mrs. Edward F. Shay of Fall River, Mass. or a two month's sojourn. They will be joined later by Mr. Burke and Dr. Shay. Mrs. Shay before her marriage (Betty O'Gorman) was one of the outstanding golfers of the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Hagen of Philadelphia are remaining until March 15. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Burton of Washington D. C. are at the hotel for a short winter holiday . . . Mr. Burton is president of the City Bank there and for a number of years was a member of the Old Guard. Also from the nation's capital, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Earnshaw.

Mr. Ligon Johnson of New York City and Greenwich, Conn. famous copyright attorney, who has been coming to Palm Beach since the Poinciana and old Breakers days, is a season guest. Mrs. John H. French and her daughter Jean M. French of Amityville, N. Y. arrived in mid-January to stay until March. Miss French is rated as one of the resort's best tennis players and has won many tournaments here.

Old timers arriving last month to remain until April were Mrs. L. L. Brinsmade of New York and Englewood, N. J. and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Baldrige of Hollidaysburg, Pa. Among the California arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ryons of San Marino and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Johnston of Los Angeles.

Others include: Mrs. Mark P. Campbell of Chicago; Mrs. George Hale of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Edward Scott Beck of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Baehr of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gallagher of Lake Forest, Ill.; Mr. Frank W. Gay, Jackson, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Liengme of Berne, Switzerland and St. Louis, Mo., she is the former Baroness Von Gontard, mother of Mr. Paul von Gontard of St. Louis and Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pitou of Long Island City, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. George Tipou of Cleveland, Ohio.

Whitehall

WITH THE SEASON well on its way, Whitehall, classic in design, stands as the epitome of distinctive and cultured living. A huge marble palace where distinguished people from the world over sojourn. In architectural design, appointments and service Whitehall has and still does carry out traditions that are the superlative in finesse.

On the Whitehall roster one finds the names of persons who have traveled as one might say, the four corners of the earth. They have experienced the thrill of the French Riviera, the romance of Venice with its waterways and singing gondoliers, the inspiration of the lofty snow-capped Alps, the intrigue and lure of the Orient, and yet, return again and again to the indubitable charm of a Whitehall vacation.

For the sportsman fishing parties are arranged that are a never-to-be-forgotten thrill for the participants. The Palm Beach shores yield to the fisherman a catch that enlivens the conversation of the guests as they return to the hotel.

For the golf enthusiast the tranquil beauty of the rolling fairways become a challenge. The Clubhouse with its intimate little bar, with tables arranged buffet style and laden with platters of every conceivable food to entice the gourmet, is a popular meeting place during the luncheon hour. Here the Whitehall guests indulge their fancies as they will in the colorful platters arranged before them and yet always return to those delectable corn fritters concocted by the A. Ray Malkins, which are the result of a secret recipe that was born in a little New England tea room and passed down from generation to generation till they became Mrs. Malkin's pride and joy, and are a "must" on the luncheon menu.

At the Sun and Surf Club the guests of Whitehall pass many leisure and sun-filled hours. The well-laid tennis courts, the sparkling waters of the limpid pool, the double-decked cabanas, so like a luxurious liner, overlooking the broad expanse of the sea, the solariums with their registered attendants for men and women, contribute to that feeling of gracious living. A favorite rendezvous for lunch, Palm Patio, with its sparkling white tables and chairs, shaded by multi-colored umbrellas and swaying palms, presents an inviting picture.

Spending many leisure hours under the sun are the familiar figures of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Barr, Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. George Blyer, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Block, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fishel, New York City; Mr. Julius Korfein and Mr. H. Malkin, both of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaufman, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. I. # Among The Palms

THE NEW AL FRESCO terrace is a pleasant addition to the social life in Palm Beach, and daily is a rendezvous for informal groups who drop in after shopping on Worth Avenue or lunch there before playing bridge in the new Recreation Room. The tropical atmosphere and the fine quality of the cuisine by Pierre Jaquet are dual attractions.

William K. Ryan of Surrey Lodge, Virginia Beach, Va., and Washington, D. C., arrived in his private plane with a party of five recently for his third visit at the Colony this season en route to Havana and Key West.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brewster Stevens of the Waldorf Towers, New York City, have arrived at the Colony for their first Palm Beach season. They formerly went to the Phoenix Biltmore in Arizona. He was a charter member of the Boca Raton Club.

J., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walker of Chicago and Wheaton, Ill., and from Short Hills, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wheaton.

A GOOD MANY GOLFERS have arrived at the Miramar Inn in West Palm Beach where they stay each winter while enjoying the fun as well as the good practice gained in the weekly putting tournaments held each Saturday on the Miramar's own putting green. A new feature this year is the addition of a pitch-putt green which has supplemented the regular putting green and has proved to be most popular. On Friday nights the bridge and Oklahoma parties are held and, as in former years, there is a large crowd in attendance each week.

Recent arrivals at the Miramar Inn include Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Camper of Welch, W. Va.; Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Bentley of Tonawanda, N. Y.; Mrs. A. M. Touhy of Floral Park, N. J.; Miss Norene Saylor of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shore of Bryn Mawr, Pa.; and Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Messenger of Hartford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reynolds of Scarsdale, N. Y.; Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Jack of Camden, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Phillips of Laurinburg, N. C.

Arrivals at the Miramar Inn from Virginia include Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Mountcastle of Roanoke, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haycox and Mr. Russell Land of Virginia Beach, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rives Worsham, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Haycox and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Staley of Norfolk.

WEST PALM BEACH'S famous resort hotel, the Pennsylvania, is having its usual busy season with many guests arriving from the north each day. Since it is so convenient to shops, theatres and restaurants, this fine hotel is quite popular with the northern visitors who prefer big-city living with all of the comforts and conveniences of an efficient organization such as that of the Pennsylvania.

Among the guests who have arrived at the Pennsylvania are Miss Isabelle Horn and Mrs. Margaret O'Malley of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Charlotte Leroy of Jacksonville, Fla.; Miss Nellie Hourihan of Newport, N. H.; Mrs. A. J. Rolland, Mrs. Russell Rice and her daughter, Judy, from Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Eve E. # Palm Beach Hotel

AS THE SEASON gets into full swing the luxurious Palm Beach Hotel is filled to capacity with the many guests who return year after year as well as the newcomers who have just discovered the delights of a Florida vacation in the restful tropical atmosphere of this excellent resort hotel.

The festive entertainment program that was inaugurated at the outset of the season has continued at a rapid pace with such diverse activities scheduled as gay cocktail parties in the beautiful Spanish-frescoed Loggia, fascinating moonlight aquacades in the Olympic pool at the Cabana Beach Club, bi-weekly "show nights" featuring many outstanding stars of stage and screen, complimentary prize games nights, fashion shows by many of the well-known Palm Beach shops, such as Bramsons and Saks Fifth Avenue, "Champagne Hours" conducted by the capable Steve and Rosalia and many other varied activities that go to make up a gay and glamorous tropical vacation.

One of the outstanding features this year at the Palm Beach Hotel has been the series of "Pop" concerts given in the west patio by Dick Gasparre and his famous society orchestra. These concerts have been exceptionally well received with a capacity crowd in attendance for each concert. The program for the evening of Tuesday, January 25th was:

Marche Militaire, Franz Schubert; Waltz from the Ballet "Dornroschan," Peter Tschaikowsky; "Hejre Kati," Jeno Hubay (Scene from the Czarda); "Andante," from the Fifth Symphony, Peter Tschaikowsky (Second Movement); Impressions from Victor Herbert Operetta's, Victor Herbert. Intermission—Overture "Mignon," Thomas; Andante Cantabile from the First Symphony, L. Von Beethoven; Two Guitars, Horlick; Hungarian Dance No. 5, Brahms; "Adoration," Felix Borowski (For Strings Only); "Sabre Dance" from the "Gayne Ballet," Aram Khachaturian.

A gala cocktail and dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Kreizvogel in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in the Coral Palm Dining Room and it was followed by a champagne party in the West Patio. Among those present for the festivities were Mr. Samuel Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. Al Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. William Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. David Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Essman, Mr. John Carway, Mr. Samuel Kreizvogel, Mrs. Clara Fern, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Feinstein, Mr. and Mrs. L. Posner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. D. Edelman, Mrs. D. Moscow and Mr. and Mrs. J. Sachs.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Sonberg gave a small dinner party in the Coral Palm Dining Room for Dr. and Mrs. David Newman. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Goldsmith gave a dinner party in the 'Top O' The Palm' to honor the marriage of Miss Lee Cunningham to Mr. John Henne. Mr. and Mrs. Morton Sunshine entertained a group of their friends at dinner at the Cabana Beach Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Seiden entertained a number of friends at a cocktail party in the south loggia and their guests were Mrs. Clarisse Rasmussen, Mr. John Alden Talbot, Jr., Miss Barbara Trout, Mrs. Benjamin Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Seiden, Mr. Perry Belmont Frank and Mr. George Romilly. Mr. and Mrs. Mac Siegal gave a small dinner party in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fried and their daughter, Cynthia. Entertaining a number of guests in the 'Top O' The Palm' were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Content.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Nemeroff have returned to the Palm Beach Hotel for the remainder of the season after attending the Presidential inauguration ceremonies in Washington. Returning with them was their daughter Susan who will remain for a stay of several weeks, Mrs. Benjamin Sherman has arrived for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Rosen. Mr. Eugene Shinkman has joined his wife for a few weeks' stay. Mrs. Shinkman will remain throughout the season.

Miss Betty Neiditz of West Hartford, Conn. has joined her mother at the hotel for a few weeks visit.

Among the recent arrivals for the season are: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Content, Mrs. S. A. Brown, Mrs. Benjamin Sherman, Mrs. F. Rosen, and Mr. John Carway of New York City.

The fascinating moonlight aquacades and swimming meets held bi-monthly in the submarine lighted pool at the Cabana Beach Club have been exceptionally well received. Water ballerinas Lorraine Fischer, Betty Ball, Sheila Kelly and Kitty Hall have an exquisite water ballet routine which is performed to the music of Dick Gasparre's orchestra and highlights of these evenings are the diving exhibitions given by such famous champions as Earl Clark and Betty Ball.

Cocktail parties in the beautiful Spanish-frescoed south loggia have become a regular feature with the management treating the guests. For private cocktail parties, the 'Top O' The Palm,' Palm Beach's newest night club is the spot.

The bi-weekly "show nights," presented in the tropical west patio on each Wednesday and Saturday evening have been attracting a good sized audience and have become one of the most popular amusement events ever scheduled by the Palm Beach Hotel. Among those who have been presented on these "show nights" have been songstress Paula Baine and comedian Jan Murray.

Under The Stars

THEY MIGHT "Remember the Maine," "Remember the Alamo," and "Remember Pearl Harbor," but at the same time . . . neither do they forget the Patio!

For as it enters its 22nd year as the outstanding restaurant-club of the resort, the Patio, at County Road and Sunset, has become an institution in Palm Beach, and on its reservation book it carries "the names" of the colony. Year after year, for more than a score, the Patio has catered to those best-known in the resort, and it has become the "place to see, and be seen."

But changes constantly are taking place, and while the original patio-ites continue to make the club their favorite rendezvous for fine dining, and dancing to the music of Maestro Val Ernie, new faces and new names are appearing—proof that Palm Beach finds its way to the Patio for the best in entertainment.

Since its bang-up opening night on Dec. 29, and an SRO crowd on New Year's Eve, Directors Dan J. Shalek and Maestro Ernie, in charge of entertainment, have continued to attract patrons who like their dining quiet and sedate, and their entertainment joyous and gay. Opening with Myrus, the "man who sees all and knows all," the entertainment was kept on a high plane as the club got under way.

On Thursday, Jan. 27, the club's formal opening was held, and once again the Patio was the attraction of the resort.

Gali Gali, Egyptian mystic and comedian-musician, took over the spotlight on the entertainment program, and again proved that Patio entertainment rates with the best. Maestro Ernie has announced an outstanding program of entertainment for the remainder of the season, and as usual, the popular club will hold the spotlight for the best in food and entertainment.

There's always fun at the Patio restaurant at County Road and Sunset, as evidenced by the mirth at this table occupied (left to right) by Mrs. A. Tryde, Mrs. J. Gevaert, and Mr. J. Gevaert.

Regardless of the weatherman's predictions, the club is equipped for hot weather or cold, for its sliding glass roof permits dancing under the stars, or in a warm, well-ventilated atmosphere.

Yes, remember the others—but don't forget the Patio!

Seated in the open-air, surrounded by natural shrubbery, and enjoying the music and entertainment at the Patio restaurant at County Road and Sunset, are the above resorters. They are, left to right, Mrs. Samuel Peck, Mr. C. V. Whitney, Mrs. C. V. Whitney, and Mr. Samuel Peck.

THE ACHE IN YOUR HEART these February days can be soothed by an evening at Leon and Eddie's. Music, entertainment and food expertly blended as done here, makes life most zestful.

Nino Nanni sings. The Burtons dance. Danita offers her sambaists in latinized melodies while Arturos adds his piano-logues for your personal enjoyment. In the spotless kitchens, expert chefs prepare your favorite viands that are brought to your table nutritionally perfect and at the peak of eye and taste appeal.

For those planning Lincoln Birthday parties, bring your guests to Leon and Eddie's. A special menu will also be offered on Washington Birthday including an intriguing Cherries Jubilee in 1949 style!

In the cocktail lounge recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Belden, Count Castignola, Col. Edward Pardee Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Palmer, Cmdr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. White, Mrs. Elsa Mayers, Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. M. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Roeckel, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hawes, Mr. Joseph Bannan, Dr. Harry Kelton, Miss Ann Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Irvin.

GABRIELLE'S SEASIDE RESTAURANT

at The Breakers Cabana Club, which is the daily luncheon rendezvous for hotel guests and members of the cabana club. In the background is the famous Roman pool, one of the most impressive in the colony. The informality of Gabrielle's appeals to winter colonists, who like to lunch in their beach clothes after a morning swimming or suntanning.

THE SIDEWALK CAFE at Testa's overlooking Royal Poinciana Way has been the scene of much activity for the past month. Many of the cottage colonists have been noted dining in this pleasant restaurant where the finest of food and service are to be found.

One of Testa's specialties is the delicious Michelob beer on draught . . . featured by no other place in Palm Beach. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, corned beef and cabbage high-lights the menu and every day in the week there is the delicious Italian spaghetti and the rich pastries made by Joe Testa.

Whether it is luncheon, dinner or an after-the-theatre snack you desire, Testa's is open to serve you with the finest of food and from the bar, your favorite cocktail.

THE MIRAMAR RESTAURANT in West Palm Beach, formerly known as the Alcove, is open this year, again under the management of Nando and with Johnny returning as "maitre de'." This fine dinner spot where the finest of Italian cuisine is served along with rare imported wines is one of the more popular restaurants with members of the cottage colony. A new feature this year is the music of Sandro Rosati, violinist and Bernard Fiedler, pianist.

Among those who have been noted dining in the Miramar are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ventura with Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Brennan; Lady Stanley of Alderly with Mr. Woolworth Donohue; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Iglehart; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Lanfranchi with Mr. Nino LoSavio and Count and Countess deVogue; Prince and Princess Alexis Obolensky; Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Hodge; Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander with Mr. Henry Gibson and Mr. James Gibson; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oakes Sinclair.

A group of the Smart Set noted at the Miramar recently were Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander, Mrs. Lorelle Hearst, Mr. Donald Leas Jr., and Mr. Francis D. Wetherill of Philadelphia.

MORNING NOON NIGHT

WHITEHALL offers the complete answer to one's individual ideas of recreation and relaxation.

There's the swimming, tennis and sunbathing at the incomparable Sun and Surf. And the food!

There's the fine golf and all that goes with it at the Palm Beach Country Club. Magnificent food here, too.

At Whitehall proper, the bright cocktail hour in the Lounge . . . followed by sumptuous dinners in the Terrace Dining Room. Then, dancing in the exotic Jardin Royal on Lake Worth to the music of Ruby Newman.

A. M. SONNABEND, President
GEORGE W. DURKIN, Manager

YOUR FUTURE is Our Future. . . .

Because of its standard of service and the uniformly high character of its insurance, B. D. COLE INCORPORATED is widely known as the most distinguished insurance address of the Palm Beaches.

The men and women of today, in whose hands rests the tomorrow of B. D. COLE INCORPORATED, have been trained to carry on the responsibilities heritage has willed them. Performance and security for policyholders are such deeply imbedded traditions that no matter what changes may be in store for industry, those traditions in keeping with today's Management will remain as constant as they have been during the past thirty years of our existence.

CONSTANT SERVICE . . . . OUR FACT AND SLOGAN.

Hialeah

The latter half of the 22nd Meeting offers special stake races for fillies and mares, and two-year-olds . . . plus the three spectacular classics that annually make turf history at Hialeah.

These headline events include the two major races for three-year-olds and up—the McLennan on February 19 and the Widener on February 26. The climactic and colorful Flamingo for three-year-olds is scheduled for March 3, the closing day.

Augmenting the featured stakes are generous allotments of action and suspense delivered by the nation's top-ranking Thoroughbreds on every week day.

The Paris of The Caribbean

WHETHER EARLY BIRD or night hawk—there's something to occupy every minute of the day or night of an American tourist in Havana, the "Paris of the Caribbean." As a matter of fact, this carefree city may provide the tourist with one worry—when to find time to sleep.

Days are bright and cheerful, warm but comfortable. The climate is so delightful, the beaches and outdoor life so alluring, that even a confirmed "night-club table hopper" hesitates to waste the lovely mornings.

There's much to see in Havana that costs the tourist nothing. Two of the unusual sights are the rum and tobacco factories, located right in the heart of the city, where Americans see how two of Cuba's famous products are made. In the suburbs are sugar mills where the island's principal product is processed.

Horse racing at Oriental Park, baseball as played by Cuba's best professionals at the Havana Stadiums, and jai alai, "the fastest game in the world," all provide excellent spectator appeal, while swimming, horseback riding and golf appeal to the more active of the tourists.

Such outdoor activities should be strenuous but when night time comes, the tourist seems to take a new lease on life because there are too many things doing which should not be missed. The subtle flavor of Cuban cooking may have something to do with the raising of the tourist's spirits. The famous Moorish crabs are an epicure's dream.

Go to bed early? No one ever thinks of that. There's far too much activity to crowd into the evening hours. There are boisterous waterfront cabarets and deluxe night clubs. The Gran Casino Nacional draws cosmopolitans from all nations to the gaming tables while the huge ballroom is crowded nightly. Every type of music is found from American jazz, the tango of South America, soft Spanish tunes and the typical rhythm of Cuba's rumbas.

It may be difficult but if the tourist is really determined, it may be possible for him to find some time between 4 and 8 a.m. to crowd in some sleep—if he finds it necessary.

The Key to Florida

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY for many years, the Florida keys have been the setting for innumerable bizarre stories which have filled the hearts of listeners with a feeling of pleasant terror. Bloodthirsty pirates were rumored to have used the shallow waters to dodge their enemies and the law, and the lonely shores as caches for their ill-gotten loot. Today the keys present a far different story. They are teeming with activity . . . buzzing with excitement . . . and all because of the commercialized development which has given a new outlook to Florida.

Intriguing to visitors are the fascinating names given these small Atlantic islands. Inspired by the main sport, fishing, some take the name of "jewfish," "angelfish," "shark" and "tarpon." "Alligators" and "crocodiles" laze sleepily in the shallow shoals and along the barren, lonely stretch of beach a strutting "crane" may be seen watching the gentle sweep of a "dove" or "pigeon" as it swoops down to peck at a "shell" of unusual beauty or to torment an unsuspecting "crab."

Large fishing "plantations" have been conveniently placed throughout the keys and here winter visitors spend heavenly week-ends or an entire season. "Conch" shells are scattered over the expanse of beach while long, slender "bamboo" trees lend a touch of the Orient. The year around "summerland" of the world, the keys are famous for their overly large "cocoanuts" and winter visiting "ducks."

Far from the worries of "home," visitors to the keys luxuriate in a tropical paradise that has no counterpart. "Twin Key", "Cow Keys", "Sugarloaf Key", "Rabbit Key", pick any name that appeals to you and there you are sure to find incomparable diversion. Tropical evenings . . . with a large "halfmoon" peeping over the "grassy" expanses are among the most romantic in the world. Shimmering "ponds," reflecting the subtle beauty whispering "pine" trees, waving in the somnolent wind.

In the days of rum runners . . . when "Boca Chica" and other alcoholic "bottles" were slipped through the keys to the consumer . . . this section of the country took on an eerie . . . but interesting outlook. "Hawks" glided silently through the sullen night casting their death-like shadows over the "upper harbours." "Brush" trees are scattered over the islands in tropical profusion. Flower "buds" which will blossom into exotic freaks of nature have for years thrilled the multitude of nature lovers who flock here in droves. No "deer or bear" will be found by sports lovers . . . but the shooting and spearing of fish, the catching of "crabs" and the tales of "Indian" folk lore are among the countless diversions offered to the visitors.

Amusing names, such as "Knockmedown" Key, "Loggerhead" Key, "Raccoon" Key, "Mud" and "Boot" Key delight the humorous side of Florida visitors. Foreign names are used which include "Agua" Key, "Lignumvita" Key, Key "Largo", and "Madeira" Point.

"Cotton" Key and "Horseshoe" Key seem synonymous with the deep South while "Friend" key seems to denote the spirit of southern hospitality. If you're carrying the torch for someone "Content" key would seem a good place to spend some time while "big Spanish Key" is reminiscent of the Spanish Main and the adventurous days of the exploration period. The "Butternut" key explains itself and "Crawl" key may have been derived from the many harmless insects that creep over the sandy beaches and grassy expanses.

"Christian" names also figure prominently. To cite a few are "Harper", "Annette", "O'Hara", "Corinne", "Sid", "Bob", "Russell", "Barnes", "Roscoe", "Jim Foot", "Mayo", "Sawyer", and the unique 'no name' key. "Pumkin" and 'Molasses' have a spicy meaning and seem to go in spirit with the famous "Christmas" key. "Channel" key was named of course for the winding channels which make for such excellent fishing. "Riding" key and "Stirrup" key go well with "Saddlebunch" key and "Snipe" could easily remind one of the Spanish snipers who figured so prominently in the war. Could "Topsy" denote the topsy turvy world we live in or the famous dance team of Topsy and Eva? "State" key was no doubt named for one of the 48.

Other unusual names are "Black Betsy" Key, "Buchanan" Key, "Bahia" Key, "Boot" Key, "Bay" Keys, "Cow" Keys, "Captain's" Key, "Calusa" Key, "Curlew", "East Bahia", "Fleming", "Geiger", "Horseshoe", "Palo Alto", "Nest", "Mallory", "Arsnicker", "Rockland", "Umbrella". "Whip Ray", and 'Fish Hawk' Key.

'Long' Key, the longest stretch of land in the group is near Matecumbe which has one of the toll bridges. Key Largo, with its luxurious Angler's Club which boasts a carefully selected and exclusive membership, is one of the most luxurious of the group. The Gulf Stream and the reefs abound with the kind of fish that make real sport for the followers of Izaak Walton. Mooring slips to accommodate 20 yachts without regard to size are features of the unexcelled marine facilities. "Ragged" key is one of the first of the group closely followed by "Elliot Key". Others located in this aggregation are "Arsnicker" Key, "Totten" Key, "Old Rhodes" Key, and "Sand" Keys. "Short" Key and "Main" Key are adjacent to Mantatee Bay and are located across the channel from "Cross" Key. Even the Irish are represented in the form "Bogg" Keys. "Triplet" Key, three small islands clustered together, are bordered by "Samphire" Key and "Club" Key. Of Indian origin is the "Cudjoe" key which is near "Ramrod" Key Post Office. "Marathon" Key is a paradox! "Rubicon" Key, probably settled by an admirer of Julius Caesar!! "Bat" keys, mysterious island, no doubt an island of pirates and renegades who invaded the Florida coast in early times. "Waltz" key, a dreamy island of tropical paradise, contrasts greatly with "Saddlehill" key, which seems derived from the onrush of gallant cowboys chasing herds of cattle through slashing waters.

"Porpoise" key and "Water" key are neighbors and one can almost visualize the guardian of the sea flapping his huge body through the capricious waves, with something of the air of a circus clown drawing belly laughs from the crowd in the big tent. "Sawyer" key may be the namesake of Mark Twain's perennial favorite Tom.

The many varieties of "fish" found in the haunts and channels surrounding the Florida keys are an incentive for fishermen the world over. Every season finds thousands of these sportsmen in their specially equipped boats ready for their struggle with the denizens of the deep. Striking a note of informality, the keys will always be an integral part of Florida, and besides serving as a paradise for sportsman, they are world famous as "stepping stones" to Key West . . . one of the world's most picturesque cities.

"Bahia Honda" Key . . . "Pacet" Key . . . Knight" Key . . . "Teatable" Key, or tea for two . . . all possess romantic qualities which distinguish them from all other islands.

Slightly off-the-shoulder, this blue chiffon dancing gown, with loose rosettes of lace as the effective trim. A perfect companion for important Palm Beach engagements.

Vero Beach Boasts Pantry In The Sky at McKee Gardens

"PIE IN THE SKY" is no legend at Vero Beach, Florida—for at least bread in the branches of a lofty old bread-fruit tree imported from the South Pacific and planted in McKee Jungle Gardens. Though Florida is famed as a citrus area, few persons know that over forty tropical varieties of nuts, fruits and roots may be grown here with surprising success.

Arthur G. McKee, a Cleveland industrialist, has made a hobby of bringing exotic food plants to Florida. An open mind and an open mouth reveal a new world in things to eat, all growing in his Vero Beach Jungle Gardens

Skipping over the soup course—unless you like coconut milk warmed over—an outdoor dinner up a tree with
 Mr. McKee would include main dishes of Pacific breadfruit, Burmese bamboo shoots, St. John's bread from the Mediterranean, Javanese sago, tropical yams; the native Florida
 edible cabbage palmetto, Philippine tapioca and tomatoes from the curious South American tomato tree. Also flourishing at Vero Beach for a naturalist's breakfast is the egg fruit
 —a sort of hen's Christmas tree with fruit like a synthetic hard-boiled egg.

Thirsty gourmets will find many beverage-producing plants at McKee Jungle Gardens. Hard-liquor interests may root up a Mexican agave, source of brain-burning tequila liquor. For gentleman drinkers there is the Eastern Asian wine palm, dispenser of a fine mild sherry-like potion. Tee-totallers may tap the African cola tree or brew a cup of Arabian coffee or China tea. Florida wild coffee, too, grows at Vero Beach; it tastes like spiked Postum.

For a chaser, the Madagascar traveller's palm holds a draught of fresh clear water in its crown.

The Central American vanilla vine, Malayan sugar palm,
 Indian cinnamon and West Indian allspice tree lend flavor to the repast. A rare variety of strange fruit completes the banquet. There are South American sapodillas, tasty tam-arines, West Indian Guavas, Yucatan almonds, custard ap-

Cottage Colony

Society Life

WITH THE WARMEST mid-winter weather in the history of Palm Beach to spur one on, many resorters are entertaining daily at al-fresco gatherings. Palm Beach patios, perhaps the most famous in the country, are daily the setting for cocktail parties and formal dinners. Not to be equaled for color and charm, these best exemplify life as it should be lived: leisurely, informally and with regard toward a gracious existence.

The cottage colony is well equipped to entertain in the grand manner, and yet magnificence is easily obtained here through casual channels. Poolside gatherings and intimate luncheon and cocktail rendezvous are of primary interest during the sun filled days, and in the evenings, when the scent of jasmine mingles with the sweet odor of magnolia, smart resorters devote hours of pleasure dining and dancing under a brilliant Florida moon.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Bernard were hosts to a large company of friends at cocktails at their South Ocean front villa. Their guests included Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Ames, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hood Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dilworth Beggs, Mrs. Nathan D. Bill, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Braman, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Of interest locally and in eastern cities was the engagement of Miss Gladys Munn Pulitzer, daughter of Mr. Herbert Pulitzer of Palm Beach, and the late Mrs. Pulitzer, to Mr. David Frost Bartlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett of Hobe Sound and Lake Forest. A June wedding is planned. The bride-elect was graduated from Foxcroft in 1946 and made her bow to society in the spring of the same year at a dance given by her father at Syosset, L. I. She was also graduated from Finch Junior College last June. Mr. Bartlett, who will be graduated in June from Yale University, prepared at St. Mark's School. At his University he is a member of the Fence Club and the Wolf's Head Society. He served in the Marine Corps during the war.

Springs Harbor, N. Y. and New York City. For her wedding, the bride chose a white pique afternoon dress with ballerina skirt and short shoulder cape, highlighted by white accessories. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. Miss Joanne Connelley of New York was maid of honor. She wore a grey silk shantung gown and carried white gardenias. Mr. Lindsay Bradford of New York was the bridegroom's attendant. Mrs. Norris was graduated from the Master's School at Dobb's Ferry last spring, and made her debut at the debutante cotillion in New York. She was also presented to New York society in November at a dance at her father's penthouse above the Capitol Theater. Mr. Norris, a member of the Racquet and Tennis and River Clubs of New York, is a student at Yale University. The couple is making their home at New Haven while he continues his studies.

Miss Virginia Leigh, last year's glamour deb, was here with her mother, Mrs. Frank Delaney, as the guest of Count and Countess Maximilien de Pulaski. While in the resort, Miss Leigh was feted at many parties, which included luncheons at the Bath and Tennis Club and dances and supper parties in private villas. Her successor to the crown worn each year by the newly elected queen of the debutantes, is Miss Joanne Connelley, blonde and lovely daughter of Mrs. Huntington Watts of New York. Mrs. Watts and her mother are here for the remainder of the season, and have taken a house on Chilean Avenue which they are occupying during their stay.

For Mrs. G. Aubrey Adam and her recent guest, Mrs. Frederic P. Bronson of New York, Mrs. Middleton O'Malley-Keyes gave a cocktail buffet followed by cards at her home

Outstanding in the social whirl which is taking Palm Beach at this writing was the dinner given by Miss Carolyn Trippe, well known resort hostess, at her home on El Vedado Lane. In observance of Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson's birthday anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Payson entertained with a dinner at their home at Hobe Sound. "Amado," the ocean front villa of Mr. Charles A. Munn, has been the setting for small dinners recently. Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran were dinner hosts at "Ranley South," where Mrs. Starr Tyson of New York is a guest.

The Seminoles And Mr. Capron

SAM JONES
Medicine Man of the Cow Creek
Seminoles.

THE LIFE AND TIMES of the Seminole Indians centers about the Medicine Bundle. So says Mr. Louis Capron who has made a study of that special brand of American, the Indian, since he was a small boy growing up in upper New York State close to the Mohawk Valley Trail and nearby much of the nation's most historical Indian territory.

An author and archeologist and a Floridian by choice, Mr. Capron has studied the Seminoles since he first came to the Palm Beach area 25 years ago. His recent book, "The Gold Arrowhead," written for the entertainment of the juvenile world, but equally interesting to adult readers, tells a story that reveals many interesting phases of Seminole life. However, a recent interview with the author revealed that all he knows of the fascinating Tribe, pushed into the Everglades by white men after a 7-year war in the 30's of the 19th century, is by no means told literally in the "Gold Arrowhead."

For that reason he is now planning to write another. But meantime and while in the process of completing a scientific treatise for the ethnological department of Smithsonian Institute on the subject of Indian Medicine Bundles, Mr. Capron has no qualms about discussing in general what he knows of the Florida Seminoles.

Contrary to the general belief that the Seminoles are becoming extinct, and despite what, when compared to population totals in general, appears small, there being but 687 comprising Florida Seminole Clans today, the fact remains according to Mr. Capron, that their population is on the increase. Probably the healthiest of American Indians, the Seminoles are a strong and stalwart race, proud descendants of those fighting Braves who were never conquered by white men.

Mr. Capron works on the theory, as is general with archeologists anyway, that if the white man believes the Indian may learn from him, the reverse is also true. He has found in extensive study over the years that the pattern of culture for the entire human race is much the same, and for that reason is a stickler in championing the preservation of Seminole civilization.

The Seminoles belonging to the Muskogean Tribe, and residing along the Florida Coast from Fort Drum in Okeechobee County to the tip of the peninsula, still adhere to tribal customs. Many were told in Mr. Capron's "Gold Arrowhead," a story of adventure, but since the book was intended for youthful readers, much to be learned in this story was not included.

The least changed of all the Indians, the Seminoles are individualists in the true sense of the term. Their philosophy is profound, abounding in original thought, and it is a rare instance when they acquire wholeheartedly the white man's civilization.

Until recent times or about 35 years ago, a Seminole found to hobnob with a white was severely punished by the elders of the Tribe, and as is very well known, they have never signed a peace treaty with the government of the United States.

In his long association with them, in which he has spent a week at a time in their camps and attended their ceremonies, even the sacred Green Corn Dance, Mr. Capron has found the Seminoles always poised, and calm to a point of stoicism, come what may. God-respecting, their faith in a religion which tells of their origin on earth as having taken place near Ocala where they first "came up out of the ground" is unerring. From "Es-Ta-Ma-Tee" they received their first medicine," he being one of the Monkey People who even before the first Seminole appeared on earth, began a hunt over the world for medicine to become part of the Seminoles' Medicine Bundles.

It may therefore be seen how the Medicine Bundles are considered the Soul of the Tribe comparable to Ark of the Covenant in the Christian religion, and too, why the Green Corn Dance involving three days of ceremonies and closely concerned with the Medicine, is of such importance to the Seminole.

To be compared with such religious tradition as is conveyed in the relics and religious objects of other faiths, the Medicine Bundle represents to the Seminole the "life of the Tribe."

Serving a double purpose, they "keep life in the Indians," while at the same time the Indian in living a "straight" life (their accepted term for good, the opposite designated as crooked) "keeps life in the Medicine."

"POLLY PUT THE KETTLE ON"

In Seminole Indian tongue becomes "Shadie and the Sof-Kee Pot," as the little girl earnestly watches a kettle of thin gruel stew in readiness for a Seminole supper. Sof-Kee made of grits and water is the tribal beverage of the Seminoles and no table is complete without it. Taken in place of water it is served from kettle to mouth by means of the very large trowel-like spoon which somehow popped into the picture at left.

"THIS LITTLE PIG WENT TO MARKET," or at least that's the way it looks. Instead he's in the process of being reprimanded by his mistress Lois as the Indian maiden finding her pet a little on the stubborn side proceeds to show him who's boss.

Eight or nine hundred objects are included in Medicine Bundles of which there are three in Florida, each looked after by a Medicine Man. Brought to light only during the Green Corn Dance ceremonies, few white men have ever seen the Medicine Bundle to say nothing of its contents. Mr. Capron is one of the rare exceptions.

A deer's horn, stones, and other objects of nature, each individually wrapped with the care a priest would show a chalice, are finally enshrouded in a large deer skin and tied securely, to be placed in a proper hiding place by the Medicine Man, who to the Seminole is a combination of physician and clergyman.

Once a year at Green Corn Dance time the Medicine comes to light, is unwrapped and exposed, the various relics reposing within close range of the "Big House" where males of the Tribe retire throughout the ceremonies. During the 3-day period it is hoped, and often does come to pass, that new Medicine appears, the gift of Es-ta-Fas-ta, which means in the language of the Seminoles "gift person." Es-ta Fas-ta the giver of new Medicine is the son of Sa-Kee Tom-Mas-See, meaning God or in more literal form (breath).

The Seminole if asked to describe his God will tell you that he is neither white nor red, but very good and kind.

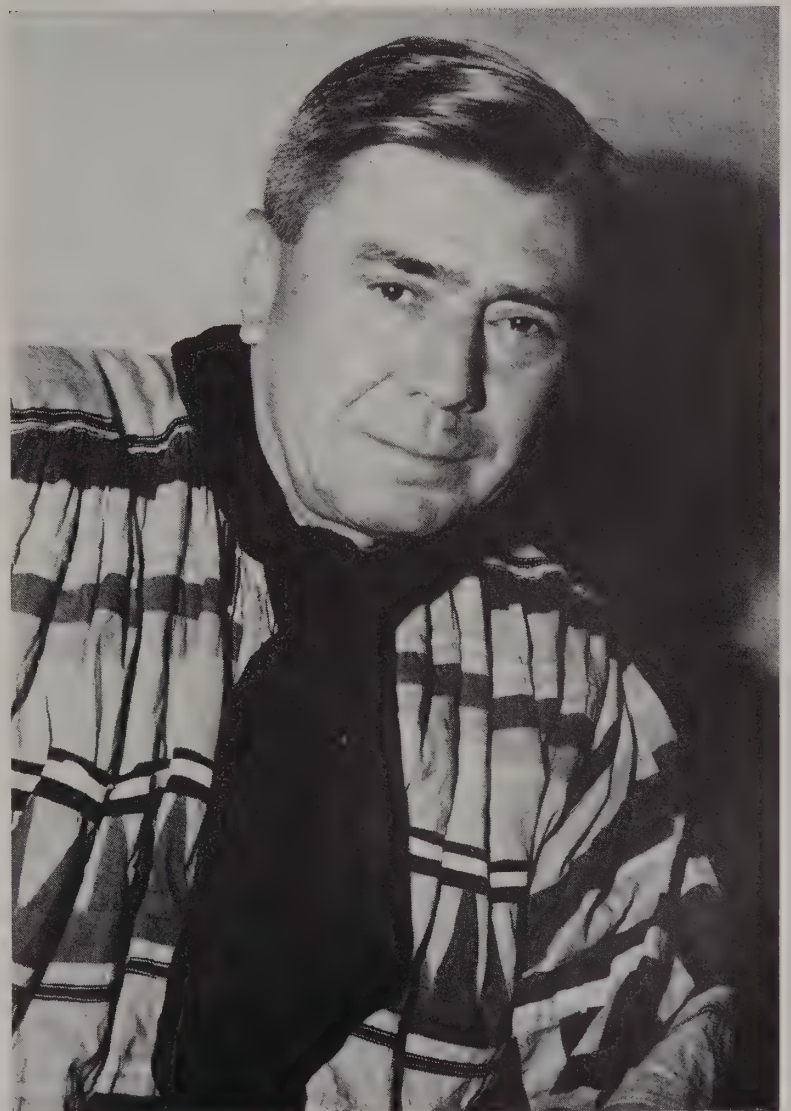

The Seminoles are disappointed when a Green Corn Dance passes without the appearance of new Medicine. However such is often the case. There was none in 1948 or for 8 or 10 years previous. Sam Jones, presently the Medicine Man of the Florida Seminoles believes the lack of new Medicine may have been caused by the intricate maze of telegraph wires that have appeared in remote areas of Florida over the last decade. Since Es-ta Fas-ta has not appeared since, it is entirely possible he found the tangled mass too difficult to penetrate and withdrawing, returned to his heavenly home.

A visit with Mr. Capron about the Seminoles yields such an abundance of material that it is a great temptation to try and tell it all. However it would be impossible in a single magazine story which therefore sets a pattern which in this instance is best followed by concentration on the Green Corn Dance, embodying social system so far as the Seminoles are concerned.

Men and women alike take part in the administration of Seminole life and so far as social system is concerned, the Tribe is a Matriarchy. For example there are five Clans, the Tiger, the Deer, the Snake, the Bird and the Little Bird. Intermarriage in a Clan is not allowed and rules preventing a Bird from marrying a Bird, a Deer a Deer and so on are closely adhered to. Women also see to it that a strict tenet is carried out whereby when a Seminole takes a wife, he assumes her name, going straightway to live in the Clan from which he chose his wife. In like manner women (the honor given the oldest one in Camp) designate the Indian names of children (each child having two). As a hypothetical case, Tom Jones, in addition to his Anglo-Saxon name might also be called "Cats-O-Wil-Lo-Kee," meaning in the Seminole tongue "Tiger-Round." Further study of the term's entymology involving a picture thereof, since the Creek language which the Seminoles speak is decidedly picturesque, would show a boy running. In its purest sense the word means he was named to be a swift runner and agile sportsman.

Moreover in a feminine administration of social order, women have decreed no divorce . . . except when a wife wishes such a state. In this event she has only to remove her husbands' belongings outside the door of the hut they share, and straightway a divorce is signed and sealed.

The Green Corn Dance might be compared to our Congress convening, except that it entails a shorter period of

LOUIS CAPRON

Florida author and authority on the Seminoles dressed in his Indian go-to-meeting costume which friends who belong to the tribe created especially for him.

The Seminoles have their heart flutter boys, their Robert Taylors and Charles Boyers but in Indian tongue the glamour boys are made picturesque by the addition of descriptive adjectives as Big Jack Tommy pictured here all dressed up in his hand-made shirt of many colors . . . just the thing for a stroll with your girl on a Sunday afternoon.

endurance, and without a doubt covers more territory.

The Seminoles have their Green Corn Dance as far from the civilization of the white man as they can get it, in an open space of about 2 acres, usually in the pine lands with low scrub palmetto and brush. Spaced far about and around two sides are the Clans of the Tribe. A dance floor of circular design made of hard packed muck is created. All night long the Indians dance their tribal dances, the "Catfish" "the Alligator," and dozens more so-named because of their picturesque rhythm. The women, their ankles laden with tin cans, skillfully arranged with many beads inside, sway to the tempo of the dance, set by the starter.

Mr. Capron who has attended, declares you can easily tell what dance is in process by the mannerisms and movements of the Indian. Finally comes the last day of the ritual when Court is held, the Black Drink drunk and the "scratching" of the male Seminoles takes place.

Probably no white man has ever attended Court . . . why should they? For after all it's a strictly Indian affair conducted by the elders of the Tribe.

When Court is held Indians who have done wrong during the year are taken to task and punishment meted out and administered by the Medicine Man.

The Black Drink brewed of roots and herbal leaves is an emetic designed to purify. Only the men partake of it, and too, only the men are subjected to "the scratching" that follows. Today the purification process is administered by means of needles, a very large number of them held together in the hand of the administrator, who scratches the Seminoles on back and arms.

Before the Indians learned of the white man's implement, they no doubt used the sharp claws of animals. At any rate the scratching is an ancient and unpleasant ceremony. Should an Indian flinch in its application it only means a more severe dose. This, in addition to the sweat bath in which a number enter a hut where live coals have been placed, remaining for a period of an hour or better, is a stringent method of "cleansing" that it's doubtful a United States Congress could "take."

The Green Corn Dance is concluded with a great feast and much merry-making. As far back as the oldest living Indian can remember, a year has never passed without a Green Corn Dance, as a matter of fact the Indians would die if the ceremony failed to take place.

The Seminoles isolated for over a hundred years, have only recently deigned to mingle at all with white men. Their appearance in a public event in West Palm Beach first took place in 1925 when they joined a recreation program sponsored by that city and called the Sun Dance. It was revived in 1933, '34 and '35 and then discontinued. The Seminoles would like to again be invited to such an affair, and Mr. Capron who knows them better than most other Whites, would like also to see such a "Peace-Pipe" measure take place.

The Seminoles love pageantry, and a life that is free and devoid of confinement. For that reason, few of them live on any three of the reservations provided in the State of Florida.

They are however, interested in the cattle project instituted under Harold Ickes by the Department of Interior to provide farms and ranches for operation by Seminoles. Any one who has ever had close contact with the Tribe would understand their preference Mr. Capron says, for "they are a proud and intelligent race who will never out-grow a love of freedom, an inheritance they earned since the beginning of time when the first Seminoles "came up out of the ground at Ocala."

A revelation to those who believe that Seminole Indians are far from being civilized is this picture showing a mother operating a modern sewing machine while her daughter watches fascinated by the whirling machine.

The Palm Beach Pageant

PALM BEACH became an incorporated town in 1911. Thirty-one voters, or six more than required by law were influential in forming the union. Captain E. N. Dimick, the popular pioneer was named Mayor and the first Town Council appointed, included Dr. John W. Doe, William Fremd, Enoch Root, J. B. Donnelly and J. J. Ryman.

The Flagler era was giving way to one of home-building, and the development of real estate held the interest of the pioneers. The Styx as it had been called when workers employed to build the Royal Poinciana lived there, was subdivided to become what is known today as Sunset Avenue and adjacent properties extending to Root Trail.

Captain Dimick with Messrs. Harvey Greer, George W. Jonas, and Otto Kubin had just completed Royal Park extending from the lake to the ocean and embracing territory from Worth Avenue to Poinciana Park. It took 200 men working three years to complete the development. Over a million yards of sand were hauled from the beach and a hydraulic dredge . . . the same as was used to raise the battleship "Main" from Havana harbor, which scooped and dredged day-in and out of the 3-year period to transform an alligator infested jungle into what is known today as Royal Palm Way and adjacent thoroughfares.

The property sold quickly, the gentlemen forming the real estate firm known as the Palm Beach Improvement Company, all building homes for themselves along the beautiful drive, with the exception of Mr. Kubin who chose the ocean front.

Netting $600,000 for its owners (a fine figure at that time) the development of Royal Park marked a mighty step in the development of the groomed and manicured Palm Beach enjoyed so much today.

First families who had been guests of the Royal Poinci-ana and Palm Beach Inn since the erection of those hotels contemplated the building of winter homes in Palm Beach and among the first to do so were the real estate Astors, the railroading Vanderbilts, the Standard Oil Whitneys, the banking Drexels, the merchandising Kahns and a host of others. From Detroit, Michigan, where the mechanical driving machine was being manufactured and becoming known as the automobile, came the Horace E. Dodges. Philadelphia was represented by the Joseph E. Wideners, the Anthony J. Drexel Biddles, Sr., and the Edward T. Stotesburys; Wilmington, Delaware, by the du Ponts; Boston, the Kennedys; Chicago, the McCormacks, and McKinlocks. And also included were the sugar-famous Spreckles of San Francisco, the steel-pioneering Phipps and Mellons of Pittsburgh, and the Hope Diamond McLeans of Washington.

These and a host of other prominent Americans helped to establish Palm Beach's famous winter set, the Cottage Colony. Palm Beach's tempo of growth was reaching the accelerated pace of the railroads, and as home entertainment took on significance, smart hostesses vied with one another in issuing invitations to lavish dinners and elegant parties. The hotels lost no prestige with the transforming of Palm Beach into a resort of homes, the winter set in the metropolitan fashion of today, still frequented the Royal Poinciana and Palm Beach Inn patronizing both for luncheon and dinner parties. Six years was hardly a sufficient time however, to gain a very strong foothold, and the Cottage Colony, as did civic progress too and other building effort suffered a set-back with the entrance of the United States into World War I in 1917.

As a matter of fact, the resort had already become war-minded as early as 1914, and where once every party honored famous visitors from home and abroad including royalty of

Looking North from the Royal, Poinciana (which stood it will be remembered close to the present site of Whitehall). The white house in the foreground is the residence of Mr. R. R. McCormack of Denver, Col. who sold Mr. Flagler the tract for the site of the Poinciana.

Just prior to the era of the driving machine when resorters depended on bicycles, tandems and afromobiles for island transportation. Here is a court near the Casino of the Palm Beach Inn (present Breakers) afromobile boys in white linen uniforms awaited patrons much as they do today at their stands along the highways.

every description, they had been exchanged for those of Army and Navy prestige. It was also about this time that two gentlemen arrived in the resort who were to have tremendous influence in changing the architecture of Palm Beach from that echoing colonial and mid-Victorian lines to another bearing semblance to the Spanish, Moorish, Egyptian and Greek . . . in short the most dramatic features of Pompeii and ancient Mexican masonry. They were Addison Mizner and Paris Singer.

Palm Beach hostesses worked hard during the war-year winters and where once they had turned their social spirations toward entertaining the great of the world at the most elaborate affairs, from 1914 through the winter of 1918,

"four o'clock" in the afternoon was more apt to see any one of the Cottage Colony working at Red Cross headquarters or engineering an auction for the benefit of the boys "over there," than presiding at tea midst the chit-hat of inconsequential conversation.

Mrs. Robert S. Black was an early "doer" and listed as a leader of Palm Beach society. In 1918 she purchased the lake-front home of Mayor Swift of Chicago. Besides generously offering it for use of the Red Cross, she arranged many charitable musicales and herself served generously as chairman of the war winters' events.

It is interesting too, to note that many who served then on committees and in managerial capacities are still present in Palm Beach and still heading up worth-while organizations today, among them Miss Nellie Cluett, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, Mrs. George C. Van Dusen, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, Mr. and Mrs. James King Clarke, and scores and scores more, the list by far too long for inclusion here.

In 1918 the doing for the war reached feverish heights in Palm Beach . . . it was an all-out" effort highlighted by a hospital benefit chairmaned by Mrs. Herman Oelrichs which in one day netted $5,000 through sale of tickets for a dinner donated by Col. Bradley which took place in his famous Beach Club. All in the same day but taking place in the evening, another $5,000 was raised for tickets to a dance in the Royal Poinciana through the courtesy of Mr. Henry E. Bemis the beloved manager at the time of the Royal Poinciana, the chairman in charge of arrangements was Mrs. Margaret Emerson.

Of all the war time efforts however, either here or anywhere else, The Garden Party at Merrills Landing on the estate of Mr. Joseph Ritter one of the outstanding promoters of cultural activities in Palm Beach during that period . . . especially music, topped the list. Mrs. Black was again chairman, and when Garden Party day arrived it was remindful, old timers say of a mardi gras. Wheel chairs and "lazy-backs" lined the Lake Trail for several city blocks and on Where steamboats once docked some forty years ago, a beautiful hotel now stands known as Whitehall, originally the residence of Henry M. Flagler. The path in the right foreground later became the site for the Florida East Coast Railroad extension which wound past the Royal Poinciana Hotel to the Palm Beach Inn. Later the F. E. C., built new tracks over the North Bridge, those remaining became useful in the operation of a horse-car between the two hotels.

Lake Worth a wide-spreading flotilla of tiny craft used to transport visitors to the scene, bobbed at anchor like myriads of white toy ducks. So auspicious were the assembled workers and patronizers that it would have been impossible to say who was the most whose whoish.

Golden parasols shaded lady auctioneers and sooth sayers from the sun as Mrs. Charles B. Dillingham told fortunes and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt (presently Mrs. Emerson) sold trinkets to the highest bidders including a fruit bowl of solid gold contributed by Mrs. Samuel Thomas.

In a "wonder tree" in which a graceful Royal Poinciana was transformed to one of the golden leaves and silver bark, there was fastened to its sturdy limbs hundreds of fabulous toys in packages of brilliant gold and silver wrappings that came down and straight into the arms of lucky little girls and boys who had a way with "ma-ma" and "pa-pa."

Highlight of the day and not without its human interest side was the auctioning of a Boston Terrier called "Nettles" and belonging to the owner of the Palm Beach Daily News, Richard Overend Davies. Mr. Davies adored "Nettles," and it was all he could do to bring himself to part with the lovable little dog. He was of the old school and old order however and believed that a gift to so vital an event as one for the benefit of the boys in khaki should represent a sacrifice that hurt. Thus it was that "Nettles" under the auctioneering hammer of William Randolph Hearst, Sr., found a new home in turn for $600 which went into the kitty of the famous Palm Beach Garden Party at Merrills Landing.

The grand finale came with the close of the season when $125,000 was raised for the "Sun Tobacco Benefit." The famous Cocconut Grove had never seen a more brilliant gathering. Mr. Hearst again wielded the auctioneers' hammer as bidding waxed brisk by such well-knowns as Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Dudley Field Malone, Mr. Jules S. Bache, Col. William H. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Miss Eleanor R. Searles, Mr. Robert W. Goelet, Mr. Sanford Biddle and other notables of the Cottage Colony.

The affair closed with a thousand voices singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," and "Auld Lang Syne," and in the

An early prospector and later property owner looks over the tangled mass of tropical beauty about the island where in early days streams abounded in what makes the angler tick.

Palm Beach Daily News the following morning a piece in praise, read: "Somehow the splendid sentiment that has been expressed here this year has given a new significance to Palm Beach. Where once it was looked upon as a playground entirely, we now know it to be the busiest and most patriotic center in the world.

"When the war will have ended, and we hope it will, before another Palm Beach season rolls round, we will be faced with new problems, for the war ravaged countries of Europe will look to us for food and money to reconstruct their towns and villages. So we shall work again toward such an end, for in our country there shall be greater prosperity than ever before, and another such conflict in our time lies in OUR hands, to prevent."

This is the fourth in a series of six stories appearing in issues of Palm Beach Life this season, telling in measure, the story of Palm Beach over the years.

First days in Palm Beach: seated in the flat-bottomed boat may be seen Mrs. George Lainhart and her daughter Grace. The head of the house preceded the family to the island in 1871 as a member of a government-sponsored surveying party. The little girl in Empire frock and wide-brimmed hat grew up to become headmistress of a first school for girls in Palm Beach. Her brothers, Spencer and Donald, the former having the distinction of being the first white child born on the island. In 1926 this son of a pioneer father became chief executive of the city of West Palm Beach. Today associated with his brother Donald in business there, the many miles of fine paved streets that city boasts today are the result of the Lainhart administration.

Along Lake Trail in the full flower of fashionable Palm Beach in the early days. The jaunty couple with bicycles are no doubt about to take off along the trail still used today for bicycles and afromobile passengers. They are Palm Beach's first police chief Joseph Borman and his lady.

MARCH VISITORS to this old island resort need not feel they have come in at the "tail end" of the season.

So far as they are concerned, the show is just beginning!

First on yet another gay round of social activity for the month will be the Bahamas Merry-Go-Round, this year's benefit carnival for the Bahamas Red Cross on March 10. Previous Red Cross fetes have been the Tudor Fair, the United Nations Fair, and—last year—the Tercentenary Fair, when the Bahamas Red Cross netted more than $20,000 in the one day allotted to the festival.

The socially prominent group of patrons who, with the Bahamas Red Cross, are sponsoring this year's carnival have spared no effort to have everything in readiness for the Merry-Go-Round on March 10.

The setting for the festival is, traditionally, the stately gardens of Government House, residence of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Murphy, and Lady Murphy, who is president of the Bahamas Red Cross.

As in previous years, members of the smart international set here will contribute glamour to the proceedings.

Other active members on the committees are Sir Francis Peek, of London, who will again give the "one hundred champagne dinners" so successful last year. The Countess of Kenmare, who will do a painting on the grounds of Government House to be auctioned off along with many other beautiful gifts. Mrs. Cameron Tiffany, of New York City; Mr. Chester Beatty, the well-known mining engineer; Mr. and Mrs. Archer Dunn, of New York and England; Mr. and Mrs. T. Austin Levy, owner of the famous Hatchet Bay Plantations on the Island of Eleuthera, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Myers, and Mrs. Jack Mactaggart, of Canada, who will do the interesting Scottish Cottage again this year.

The government ladies were well represented by Mrs. F. A. Evans, wife of the Colonial Secretary, Mrs. J. S. R. Cole, wife of the Attorney General, Mrs. Asa Pritchard, wife of the Speaker of the House, and the Chief Justice's lovely wife, Mrs. Oswald Bancroft, wearing a beautiful picture hat.

Col. and Mrs. Fred Wanklyn, two of the most civic-minded people on the Island, are helping, too. Mr. Harold Christie, who is convalescing in a New York hospital, is expected in time for the Fair. Without Mr. Christie's help and guidance no party is complete in the Bahamas.

Richard and Elizabeth Murphy, the popular son and daughter of His Excellency and Lady Murphy, seem to be every place at once, making plans to assure a rollicking good time for the younger set. Mr. Murphy is A. D. C. to his father and one of the happy additions to the colony this winter.

Pan American and British South American Air Lines will fly special planes to Nassau from Miami on the morning of the Carnival returning the same evening. The arrival of the S. S. Mauretania on March 10th will add zest to the party with her happy cruise passengers.

The object of this gay Carnival is to enhance what all persons are seeking, happiness. One world in the sense of complete co-operation among all nations, may one day be achieved by gatherings such as this.

The international character of this year's carnival is apparent in the list of distinguished sponsors, which includes names from New York, London, Paris, Copenhagen and Montreal.

In addition to the Bahamas Merry-Go-Round, a lively program of social and sports events promises to keep March visitors busy. Sports will include golf and tennis tournaments, an aquacade at the British Colonial Hotel, weekly horse racing meets, polo at Clifford Park and weekly sailing races at the Nassau Yacht Club and the Royal Nassau Sailing Club.

The number of socially prominent visitors grows daily.

A new addition to the social colony here is Miss Isabelle Magor, internationally known portrait artist, who, in private life is Mrs. W. Stuart Bernard, of East Hampton and New York.

Miss Magor is a guest of Mrs. Robert ("Babs") Holt, of Montreal and Nassau, at Mrs. Holt's charming Nassau home, "Ballycrystal."

Other new arrivals include Miss Jo Copeland, prominent fashion designer from New York; United States Senator Green, of Rhode Island; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Richards, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Lord Plunkett, the Princess Radziwill, who has returned to Nassau for her second winter; the Hon. James W. Gerard, former U. S. Ambassador to Germany, and Mrs. Gerard; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Derkins, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Mary Goodfellow, fashion designer from New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Vlaanderen, of Ridgewood, N. J., who have returned to their Nassau home, "The Vans."

Top-ranking local players will compete March 6-13 in the Annual British Colonial Bahamas Amateur Championship.

On March 25, 26 and 27, the Lucayan Club, Nassau's crack tennis club, will play a collegiate team from Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio.

Washington Letter

DEAR DORA,

The most fashionable benefit given recently in Washington was the opening performance of the Ice Capades, the proceeds of which went to the Soldiers', Sailors' and Marines' Club. The traditional color of the services combined with the ice pageant made this black tie event one of the best.

Preceding the 8:30 opening there was a brilliant array of dinners, and other parties as well after the show. Top among the party goers was Margaret Truman who was one of the guests of the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Cornelius V. Whitney. The Whitney party included General and Mrs. Omar Bradley, handsome, youthful Lieut. General and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Special Counsel to the President and Mrs. Clark Clifford, Senator Warren G. Magnusson, Miss Jane Lingo, and others.

A dramatic moment came during the intermission when heroes of World War II scattered through the audience were introduced and spot lighted. Among these Congressional Medal of Honor winners were General Vandegrift, Major General Anthony McAuliffe, Brigadier General Pierpont Morgan Hamilton and seven others. Then Mrs. Whitney stood on the high orchestra platform in a cyclamen lace dress, the sole lighted figure in the darkened arena, and thrilled the audience with her rendition of the Star Spangled Banner.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy John N. Brown and his stunning wife entertained at their handsome Georgetown home before the event, Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson heading the guest list. Then there were the John Snyders, the Kenneth Royalls, Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, President of the International Bank and Mrs. John McCloy.

Most of Washington's music lovers were on hand to greet the dynamic Brazilian Maestro Heitor Villa-Lobos at the reception tendered him by bachelor Ambassador Maurice Nabuco. Ambassador Nabuco is the well-liked gentleman here who has started a fashion of his own of wearing cocoa colored waist coats with everything but evening clothes.

He was in Rome before coming here and brought along an excellent Italian cook as was evidenced by the piping hot pizzas and other Italian delicacies at this party. The party was successful despite the fact it had to be given in one big room. The rest of the Embassy is undergoing a complete renovating and must be finished before the 18th of May which is the day the President of Brazil, Gaspar Dutra, is expected to arrive in response to an invitation from the President of the United States. It will be the first time a Brazilian Chief of State has visited the United States since the Emperor of Brazil came in 1876.

Speaking of Brazilians, Maria Martins, the talented wife of their Ambassador in Paris, before that here in Washington, arrived in New York the end of January. The glamorous Maria who is a famed sculptor, is expected in Washington for a brief stay. She must be back in Paris before spring to prepare for the wedding of her delectable, dark-eyed, daughter Nora who will marry the twenty-two year old French Count de Bourg de Borzas of top society in Paris.

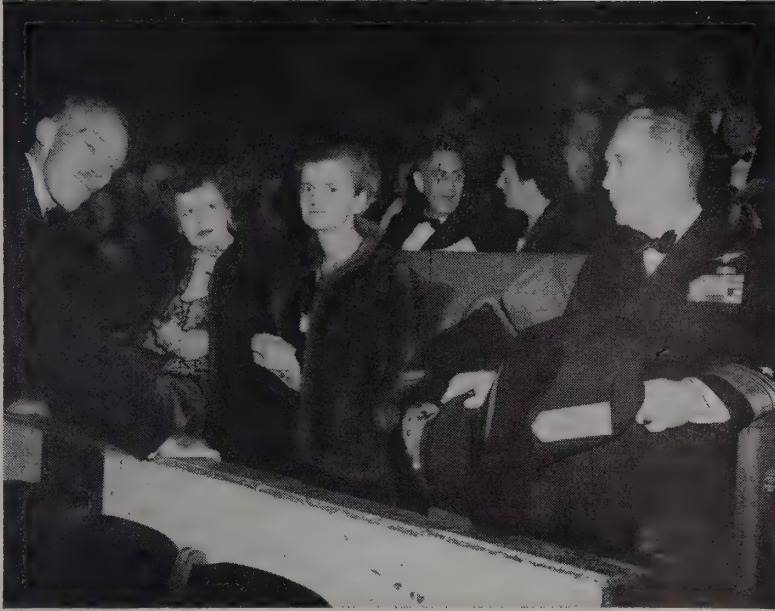

The Danish Counselor and svelte Mme Hans Bertelsen gave one of the more interesting international cocktail parties recently and as always when this popular couple entertains everyone came despite the worst fog I have ever seen in Washington. There was aquavit and excellent herring from Denmark and other nordic bits besides the usual cocktails.

Danish Mme de Kauffman and Swedish Mme Boheman were two Ambassador's wives without their husbands because they were attending conferences in connection with the Atlantic Security pact. I saw the Finnish Minister and Mme Jutila, Admiral Wm O. Spears, Baron Axel Reedtz-Thott of

The James Cromwells who came down for the Inauguration were honor guests at the party given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams. Mrs. Williams is the former Christine Cromwell. She received in a full skirted blue satin dress in their rather newly acquired Georgetown home.

I saw the Leslie Biffles and Senator Theodore Green, the Claude Peppers and the George Smathers, as well as the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Farrington, the Wm. McCrackens and the Arthur Hills, recently returned from Cuba. Then there was Senator and Mrs. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee chatting with Mrs. Raymond Clapper. Mrs. Peter Ansberry and the beauteous Mrs. Nathaniel Luttrell, she of movie-fame, came in. Nina, lucky girl, was leaving for Florida the next day.

As soon as Admiral Leahy recovers from his recent operation he will be leaving for the "little white house" in Key West to recuperate and start work on his book which after all his experiences promises to be one of the best.

Mrs. McCeney Werlich is one of those rare birds, a native Washingtonian . . . born, raised and married in the same house right here on Sixteenth Street. She is well known for her gay parties and one of her best was a recent one in honor of Mrs. Henry F. Downe who is a citizen of the world, but mainly of France and Connecticut. Mrs. Downe stayed right in her villa in Paris all during the war until a few hours before the Germans marched in when she walked out of her palatial house on Rue Verdi with a small hand bag. Mrs. Downe and the popular Gladys Werlich have been friends for nearly 20 years.

A goodly gathering of friends and government figures were there which included Connecticut's Republican Senator Raymond Baldwin, Mrs. Homer Ferguson, wife of the Senator from Michigan, as well as Mrs. Owen Brewster. Authoress Freda Utlely whom I used to know in China was there. She wrote "Last Chance for China", and has a new book out called "High Cost of Vengeance" which has to do with Germany. As I remember, she went to Russia a starry eyed young communist, but recovered rapidly from Communism when the Russians shot her young husband and she and her baby son barely escaped with their lives. Another expert on China, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck and his wife were among the guests as were the Sidney Graves, she is the former Olga Roosevelt, Clarence Hewes, Mrs. Edward Foley Jr., Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, the "grand dame" of all Washington looking smart in a side draped chapeau.

Mrs. Henry Flood told me her son-in-law, Walter Schoelkopf, had just flown to Ceylon where he'll be second secretary at our Embassy there. Her daughter Eleanor expects to leave in a few days.

The Palm Beach Biltmore

DEVOTEES of the Palm Beach Biltmore are arriving each day for extended stays. With zero weather hovering over most of the country, everyone seems happy just to relax in the wonderful Florida sunshine.

One of the recent outstanding conventions to be held at the Biltmore was the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association with six hundred members.

There were many prominent speakers for their various business meetings. Their social program kept everyone more than busy. For the ladies there were such activities as a bridge luncheon at the Beach Club, a breakfast in the patio of the Sidewalk Cafe, a sightseeing tour of the Palm Beaches, a cruise of Lake Worth and a fashion show luncheon when Bramsons presented the latest in Palm Beach resortwear.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wise were host and hostess for the Fruehauf Company cocktail party given on the Garden Sun Deck for the six hundred members and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Morgan (President of the N. F. W. A.) gave a lovely dinner in their suite. Their guests of honor were the past presidents of the organization. The President's cocktail party in the beautiful Biltmore gardens was another outstanding event.

Evening entertainment included movies, game night, "Get-together" dance and square dance, a "stunt night" (as a result of this program it was announced that $150 had been donated to each "The March of Dimes" and the "Sister Kenney Foundation Fund.") One night was designated as National Furniture Warehousemen's Association night at the

On the day set aside as "Sports Day" three busloads attended the Hialeah Races. There was a golf tournament and a deep-sea fishing tournament with lovely prizes presented by the organization.

The meeting was brought to a close with a lovely cocktail party, banquet and ball. At this time Mr. Charles Morgan presented the 1948 Achievement award to Mr. George A. Julin. Mr. Morgan then introduced and turned over his presidential duties to Mr. Joseph Corcoran of Evanston, Ill., President-Elect.

Many of the Warehousemen remained at the Biltmore for an extended visit.

The next convention at the Biltmore will be from February 7-Feb. 12 when the General Agents Conference of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company will hold their annual meeting. President of the agents organization is Mr. John R. Mage of Los Angeles, California. Mr. W. L. Momsen of Boston, Mass. is in charge of convention arrangements.

Mr. Edmund Fitzgerald, President, and Mr. Grant L. Hill, Vice Pres. of the Northwestern Mutual Life with home offices in Milwaukee, Wis. will be guests at the Agents conference. Along with their business meeting an interesting social program is being planned.

The cocktail dance in the patio of the Biltmore formal gardens each afternoon from 5:00 to 7:30 continues to be one of the high-lights of the day for Biltmore guests and many lovely parties are given there.

"Dancing under the stars"—the Saturday night feature dance is bringing out a capacity crowd to dance to the continuous music of Dick Barlow and his band, alternating with Pete Kaye and his trio. There is a well rounded program of entertainment presented during the evening.

The Breakers

THE BREAKERS, a winter colony in itself, providing every facility necessary for the pleasure of its guests, finds the month of February with capacity patronage and a long waiting list. This exclusive hostelry has always been the choice of many outstanding celebrities and famous persons and the number this season exceeds the established record. As in pre-war days, The Breakers this season has quite a continental contingent, the guests in this category arriving from all-around-the-globe.

One of the outstanding events of the season will be the George Washington Birthday Ball which takes place in the grand ballroom of the hotel tonight. Reminiscent of the Washington Ball which was the highlight of the winter in the old Royal Poinciana days, which at that time marked the end of the season. The ballroom is beautifully decorated for the occasion and according to reports, it promises to be one of the "best dressed" parties of the Palm Beach social season.

With the Women's championship golf tournament and tennis matches dotting the sports calendar, plus aquatic activities, there is not a dull moment for energetic guests. For those who want to "just relax," there is plenty provision for that too . . . lazy days in the sun at the Cabana Club, wheel-chair rides about The Breakers spacious grounds, nostalgic siestas in the many patios and Cocoanut Grove.

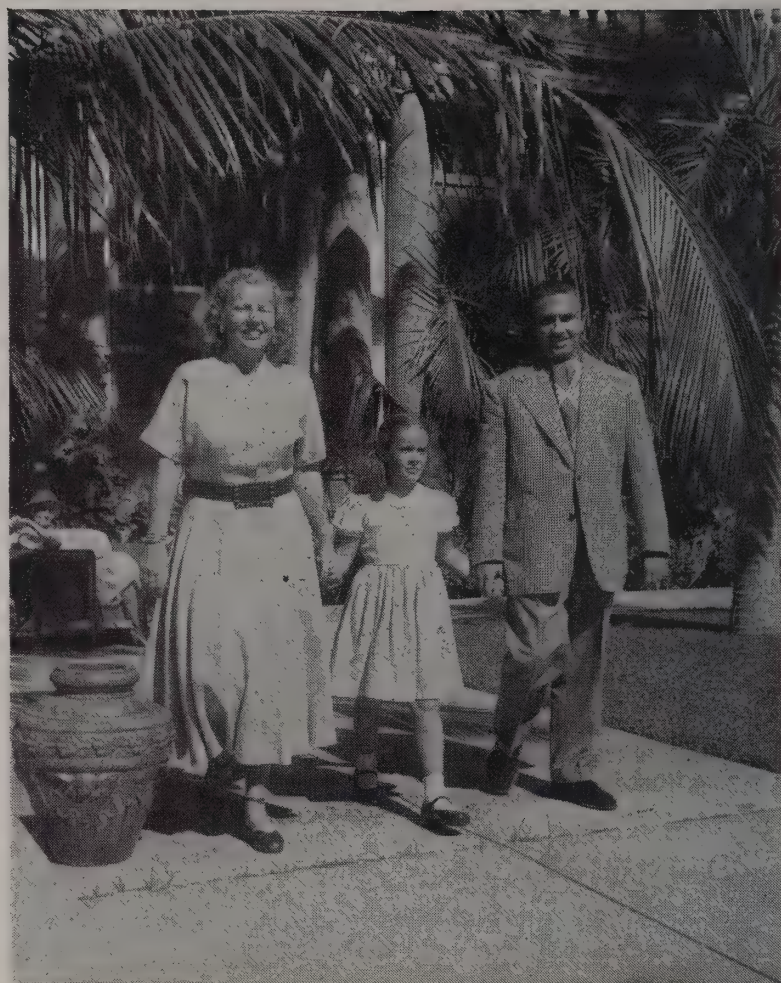

The terrace and club rooms are also a popular rendezvous for hotel guests and also the cottage colony, many of whom entertain there daily. Game nights are popular as a diversion and the Sunday night concerts by the orchestra, always attract capacity crowds; featuring semi-classical and chamber music programs.

Entertaining at dinner and luncheon, also reached record peak this month . . . in the beautiful oceanfront Circular Room and the several private dining rooms. The Old Guard Society of Palm Beach will hold its annual luncheon in the North Lounge on February 24 . . . this is always an important event of the year.

Among those now in residence at the hotel, many of whom have been coming to The Breakers for many years: Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Jackson Perren of Dallas, Texas, who just recently returned to the U.S.A. after an extensive trip around the world; Mr. Joseph B. Keenan of Washington, D. C. for a two week's holiday . . . he was chief of counsel at the war criminal trials in Tokyo and only returned to America last November after more than three years in Japan.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McCourtney of Clayton, Mo. for an annual month's sojourn; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dyer and Mrs. Thomas J. Craddock of Cincinnati, who will be here until mid-March; Mr. and Mrs. J. Forster Abeel of Jamesburg, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Miller of Chicago, who will be at the hotel until April; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stone of Toronto for their annual visit.

Mrs. Georgia Lee Parker of New York has returned and will remain until mid-March; Mr. and Mrs. Verne Ferguson of New York City are here for the season; also remaining until the hotel closes, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Fitzgerald of Troy, N. Y. whose son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Fitzgerald were here for a short holiday; Mr. and Mrs. G. Hardy of New York arrived to spend the season at the hotel . . . he is head of Jack Hardy & Co. Ltd.

Candler, Col. and Mrs. Hobart Brown, Mr. Murray Sayles, Mrs. William H. Williams, Mrs. Edward Scott Beck and Mr. Gay.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill C. Meigs of Chicago are here for a two month's sojourn. Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Rodie whose parents were frequent visitors in pioneer days, are spending the month of February here. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Cook are remaining until March. Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Van Gaasbeck for the same length of time, all are from Kingston.

Among guests remaining until April . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilmore Fletcher, New York; Mrs. Alfred E. Eberts, Detroit; Mrs. Frederick W. Bradley, Mrs. Homer Forsythe and Mrs. William H. McGregor of the same place; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Savage of Chicago who will be at the hotel until April 8; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Streitman of Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Harrison of Richmond, Va. will be here until the first of March. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conroy of Jamaica Plain, Mass. And Mr. and Mrs. James C. McCurrach of New York.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Scott Althouse of Reading, Pa. joined friends for an extensive sojourn . . . he is head of the Althouse Chemical Co. Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Funkhauser of Hagerstown, Md. arrived for their annual stay. Remaining for a fortnight were Mr. and Mrs. W. Paul Jones of Philadelphia . . . he is vice-president of the Philco Corp. Mr. Generoso Pope of New York, famous Italian newspaper publisher, with his son Mr. Generoso Pope Jr. and Mr. Dominic Florio, are here for their annual winter holiday.

Many attended the Champagne Interlude Friday evening under the direction of Carlton & Juliette. Among those entertaining were Mrs. Elwood Salisbury, Mrs. Dwight S. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cook, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Kushel, who had their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Potter, also Mrs. Englebert Neus and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Peterson. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stackhouse and Mr. and Mrs. Lester H. Provo were together, and Mrs. William H. Richman and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Clements, Mr. Gene Pope and Mrs. Edward Morris also were noted with guests.

A farewell party was given by Mr. D. J. O'Connor and his daughter, Mrs. Henry Rollman of Cincinnati, O. who are leaving today after several weeks here. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Groeschuck, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hager, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gundy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lipper, Mrs. Henry D. Scott, Mrs. May

"BOMB" CLIP: In line with the atomic age, the smart bomb clip and matching earrings, noted at Greenleaf & Crosby . . . fashioned of gold wire and studded with diamonds. Ideal accompaniments for resort clothes.

"COLONIAL THREAD": This is the fascinating pattern stressing smart simplicity in sterling silver flatware, which has been designed especially for Plummer's . . . place settings and smart odd pieces. To replenish your own silver chest or grand as gifts.

BACKGROUND FOR DINING: The perfect beginning for any successful dinner or luncheon party . . . smart table coverings. And, Moseleys, have all the answers in imported and domestic interpretations, from heavy linens and damasks, to delicate laces and sheer organdy . . . monogrammed for that personal touch.

A TOUR AROUND THE WORLD: And a very interesting one . . . via a gift-buying jaunt at Cabbages & Kings, where they specialize in gifts of all kinds, designed for smart living. They have been garnered from all around the world.

FABULOUS NECKLACE: A unique large necklace of diamonds designed by Frank S. Hartley is attracting a lot of attention in the resort. It is composed of large baguette stones accented with seven huge pear-shaped diamonds, which may be detached and worn as earrings, clips and the like.

COSMETICS & PERFUMES: Featuring all of the topflight names, are available at the Kalkman drug stores . . . including the well-known Germaine Monteil and Elizabeth Arden products. They also have an outstanding prescription department with experienced pharmacists to serve you.

DOMESTIC & IMPORTED YARNS: And all of the necessary equipment for "knitting your own," at the Evelyn Curtis shop. If you haven't the ambition to do your own knitting, they do beautiful work and take orders for custom-made knitted garments of all kinds.

TAGLINE FOR SPRING: The jeweled disc bracelets by Coro . . . gold-plated links and the dangling jewel-decorated discs flaunting such designs as tropical scenes, flower baskets, rural vistas, in multi-colored array.

ANGEL FLUFF: The glamorous new coiffure by Jean de Chant . . . an original and striking new interpretation of the popular short hairdo; the hair is fluffed into loose, face-framing curls. Smart, flattering and in harmony with the Palm Beach way of life.

TRIPLE ROW: An exquisite diamond and platinum bracelet by John Rubel, uses three rows of emerald-cut, baguette and marquis diamonds, in a classic pattern of rare beauty. For further glitter, there is a new and chic diamond and platinum domed-shape dinner ring.

MATCHING ROBES AND CRAVATS: Of beautiful imported silks in exotic and conservative patterns and color combinations. At Di Tiere, the smart men's accessory shop on Worth avenue. Their neckerchiefs are also conversation pieces!

ORIGINAL AND INGENIOUS: Best describes the custom-made hats, clothes and accessories by the fabulous Mr. John . . . fabrics, designs and colors are in a definite class by themselves.

SCOTCH AND SHANTUNG: The first applies to something used as a basis for a tall cooling drink in Finchley's Cocktail Lounge and the latter, the medium for some of their ultra-smart sunback dresses. Their men's shop is also noteworthy for smart apparel and accessories. All under one roof!

EXOTIC LAMPS: The Evelyn Tew Gift Shop has one of the most interesting and diverse collections of lamps in the colony . . . running the gamut from classic simplicity to unique and exotic versions. Their "prince-head" lamp is definitely a conversation piece . . . the base a ceramic India print turban, topped with natural-color silk shade.

NOSTALGIA, ODALISQUE & STRATEGY: These are not titles of Eric Stanley Gardner's latest mystery yarns, but intriguing names for exclusive perfumes at the Everglades Pharmacy, by Germaine Monteil, Nettie Rosenstein and Mary Chess . . . in that order. These well-known "names" also include cosmetics, bath preparations, sun and surf creams and lotions.

SPRING VIA PALM BEACH: You can fill your house and patio too, with any of the spring blooms that you can mention, according to the selection at the Lake Ridge Nursery and Flower Shop. And, they are experts at arranging bouquets for table, house and attractive gifts.

SUITED FOR SPRING: Soft tweeds in the new two-tones; lovely gabardines in gorgeous colors; smart checked wools; many of these have matching toppers for a chic three-piece ensemble. From the Frances Brewster collection . . . varied and individual.

FOR GOLF, TENNIS, SWIMMING: Ladd's shop in The Breakers Casino has all of the style-right and flattering clothes and accessories. They specialize in large sizes as well as sports clothes for the "younger and slimmer" crowd.

NAMES MAKE FASHION NEWS: At Norman's . . . they are exploiting practically all of the topflight American designers this season, in casual, active sports, cocktail and formal evening things.

ORGANDY AND LACES: Both of these fascinating fabrics are the medium for outstanding evening gowns at Razooks . . . also crisp taffeta and pure silk in prints and solid colors. The stylings are highlighted by the season's latest ideas in shoulder lines, unique skirt and bodice treatment, effective trimming.

FOR THE SEASIDE MERMAID: Bra, shorts and beach coat of sparkling white prospector cloth, trimmed with contrasting colors in fagotted bands . . . among the numerous beach costumes at Anthony's, featuring Frances Sider, noted designer, who is noted for her sports clothes.

CLOTHES—FURS—CHAPEAUX: Are included in the southern collection of the J. J. Jonas shop of New York and Palm Beach . . . including interpretations of the season's best ideas for both the juene fille and the matron.

TISSUE TAFFETA: In gay printed designs, is the medium for good looking jacket-dresses at Wally Williams . . . smart with or without the jacket topping. The same idea in silk shantung in unusual color tones.

SHEER FORMALS: Are gaining in popularity as the season advances . . . marquisette and chiffon . . . evening gowns that will be right for summer dining and dancing in Long Island for instance. In the former, the colors are black, navy, grey . . . made with very full skirts. The chiffons feature Grecian draping and luscious color tones. McDonald's have these in an intriguing and varied collection.

DECOR REFURBISHING: Whether it is an entire villa or apartment . . . or just a "re-doing" of the living room, Worrell's are equipped to do the job . . . interpreting your own good taste in the matter. They have skilled interior decorators who can do amazing things with drapes, rugs, wallpaper and furniture in just no time at all.

To point up your new bang coiffure, G. Howard Hodge designs this glorified cap chapeau, with a bunch of gay posies over one ear and a flattering cage veil. A perfect companion for either dresses or suits and a perfect harbinger of Spring.

Drama to highlight your simple dinner and evening gowns! This ensemble by Koslow comprises an outstanding ruffled bracelet of filigree gold, rubies and diamonds; modernistic clips in the same type of designing; a dome-shaped dinner ring and ear clips in the new elongated manner.

A regal creation of black Chantilly lace, reminiscent of magnificent court gowns of the 18th Century. An original model designed for the Mme. Mogabgab salon. Loose leaves of the lace glitterized with black paillettes, trim the very bouffant skirt which is made over black taffeta, repeated in the off-shoulder decolletage.

"Heart Beat Curls" a clever interpretation of the new short hair-cut which is sweeping the country . . . designed by Thomas, Elizabeth Arden hair stylist. The back is brushed forward from a middle part into a sleek cap effect. An ageless hair-do, as becoming to the matron as it is to the debutante.

Three hundred carats of diamonds by Cartier, enhance the loveliness of Valli, noted star of the cinema. This half-million dollars worth of diamonds comprises beautiful large flower clips, the petals of which open and close; harmonizing earrings; necklace of classic simplicity; wide bangle bracelet; unique dinner ring.

Pure silk shantung is the medium for this striking "suntop" dress with companion jacket . . . available in such lovely color tones as cocoa brown, turquoise, natural. A cuffed decolletage and tuxedo-collared jacket, are outstanding style notes. A perfect companion for resort wear . . . versatile enough for casual daytime engagements, cocktails or informal dining. Designed by Mrs. Zita Plaut of Sport and Travel.

Palm Beach Hotel

THE BEAUTIFUL Spanish architecture, the exotic, tropical open patios, the Spanish-frescoed Loggia, the delightful dining room and, of course, the famous West Patio and "Top 'O The Palm" in the Palm Beach Hotel make it a perfect setting for the whirlwind of activities that have taken place this season and for the gala functions that lie ahead. The West Patio and "Top 'O The Palm" are especially popular with many residents of the resort dropping in to listen to the excellent music of Dick Gasparre and his orchestra or of Zoltan Zantay and his Latin band.

Some of the more interesting highlights of the month of February have been the Moonlight Aquacades held at the Cabana Beach Club which presented the foremost aqua-stars of the country in the most magnificent water pageants ever held in Palm Beach. The last show held at the Cabana Beach Club featured the Aquazanies, who won fame recently at the Aquashow in London, and the Aquaqueens, the Palm Beach Hotel's six girl water ballet.

Comprising the Aquazanies are Stanley Dudek, Johnny Edmiston, Whitey Hart, Ed Mullane and Joe Walsh. These youngsters dive from the three meter board in plain and fancy olympic dives, both singly and in tandem. They also win acclaim for the comedy routines that they do, both in and out of the water.

The Aquaqueens who's roster includes, Betty Ball, Lorraine Fischer, Janet Claypool, Frankie Rose, Sheila Kelly and Kitty Hall swim in rhythmic ballet routines in the submarine lighted emerald-like olympic pool. In addition they broke up into duets and tries for very charming specialty numbers. These young mermaids comprise the only water ballet troupe in the State of Florida and will perform at all of the Moonlight Aquacades held at the Cabana Beach Club this season.

Miss Ball, Miss Kelly and Jack Nagley gave an exhibition of Championship Diving from the high board. Mr. Nagley in addition acted as master of ceremonies of the evening.

Dancing to the orchestras of Dick Gasparre and his famous society orchestra and Zoltan Zantay and his Latin band climaxed this beautiful and unique evening.

Other hits of the month were the bi-weekly show nights held each Wednesday and Saturday evenings in the West

Patio, and in the case of inclement weather in "The Top O' The Palm." Headliners of stage, screen and radio who performed here during this period included: Gracie Barrie, the inimitable song stylist, Georgie Tapps, renowned tap and ballet star, Dean Murphy, and his sensational impressions, Mary Raye and Naldi, who are sheer grace and poetry in motion with their ever favorite dance routines, Buddy Lester, a comedian of note, Nancy Donovan with the songs you love to hear, and Teddy and Phyllis Rodriguez and their fiery Latin dance interpretations. Other evenings that have proved to be most successful included a lecture on "Graphology" by Dr. William Perl, one of the nation's top handwriting experts; the "Complimentary Prize Game Nights" with the many beautiful and useful gifts being donated by the management; the ever popular fashion shows by such well-known resort shops as Bramson's, Saks Fifth Avenue and Sport and Travel; the bi-weekly cocktail parties tendered to the guests of the hotel by the management and held in the Loggia; and the weekly Champagne Hour conducted by the dance studio of Steve and Rosalia.

With so many gala activities on the program, it is no wonder that the many guests from previous years have returned and filled the hotel to capacity. Every hour of every day is packed with something interesting to do, whether it be at the hotel itself or at the luxurious Cabana Beach Club with its lovely pool and terrace and protected beach for surf bathers.

Arriving for extended stays this past month were several members of the fourth estate. Mr. Mort Ehrman, news editor of the New York Daily Mirror arrived with his wife. Robert Dana, Food Editor of the New York World Telegram, with his wife and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Kenny and daughter. Mr. Kenny is a daily columnist of the New York Daily Mirror.

Recently noted in the Cocktail Lounge were members of the cottage colony who were enjoying the atmosphere of the room coupled with the music of Dick Gasparre, among them were, Mr. George Remilly, Mr. Richard Cowl, Mrs. Clarisse Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. George Schrafft, Mr. John Alden Talbot Jr., Mr. Jay Rossbach, Mr. James Costello, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Yalmstein, Miss Joan La Roche and others.

Noted entertaining recently in the West Patio were Mr. and Mrs. Vatz of Hill Croft, York, Pennsylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Vatz are the parents of the famed song stylist Nan Wynn.

Whitehall

WITH NEWSPAPER HEADLINES telling each day of blizzards and storms up north, lucky are those people who can make their dreams of a Florida sojourn come true . . . and fortunate indeed are the ones who chose to make Whitehall their Palm Beach winter home. The fine old hotel once the private domain of Henry M. Flagler, financial baron and pioneer of railroading in this part of the country never ceases to attract a large assemblage so that this season just as in others there are arriving each day scores of guests to begin a stay in that realm of tropical beauty and charm.

The grandeur of interior decoration in this famous villa of America is carried out in a fine panorama of gardens and wide-spreading lawns that lead to the edge of Lake Worth. More than just gardens to hear about, at Whitehall, guests enjoy strolling along the pathways and sauntering down historic Lake Trail where once promenaded in high button shoes and parasols the most fashionable ladies of the Gay Nineties who with their done-up-in-Prince Albert escorts graced the salons of the renowned Royal Poinciana within a stones throw of Whitehall.

But also today there may be found interesting person-ages sauntering over the grounds and palm-lined drives of the big white palace, and whom you may meet when strolling there too also very often makes a good story. Such was the experience recently when striking up conversation with Mr. J. J. Levison, well known landscape architect of New York and Long Island.

Visiting at Whitehall with Mrs. Levison the quiet retiring gentleman loves trees and shrubs and with him his admiration of nature's wonders goes deeper than the performance of duty in line with his profession. A subject that is closest to his heart, trees to him are like children to be cared for and gently nurtured; and from the wealth of his own practical background covering a period of 35 years experience in the planting and management of small and large estates, as well as an association on the staff of Yale for a is an interesting chapter on trees that have somehow been lost through the years. One such is the Varnish Tree, that grows both in the south and north. It bears dainty yellow blossoms that would enhance the beauty of any landscape, large or small. Some fifty years ago it was as prolific as the Yellow Wood, a tree with white blossoms very much on the order of Wisteria. The fact that these trees have become almost extinct is the fault of the landscape men, who for some reason or other simply ignored them. Thus, for lack of cultivation these trees as a number of others almost died out, Mr. Levison says.

It is interesting to know that Mr. Levison was professional consultant to Thomas Hastings who was the architect for Whitehall. Somehow it seems fitting then, that here in Whitehall he finished his forthcoming book which is sure to join the ranks of those he's written in the past, including many books that are used as reference texts in universities and colleges in America and Europe.

Another colorful figure on the Whitehall roster is former ambassador to Bolivia and Siam, David E. Kaufman who is vacationing here with Mrs. Kaufman. A colorful personality imbued with apparent kindness and an abundance of tolerance it was through diplomatic efforts on the part of Mr. Kaufman that a war between Peru and Chile was averted; and in a fine program in which he gave generously of his time and his own funds, built in poverty stricken sections of Bolivia and Siam, hospitals and improved local sanitary conditions as well as contributing to the furthering of educational programs. In gratitude Bolivia conferred upon him the highest honorary degrees her Universities could offer. At the same time a letter was sent to him from the Congress of Bolivia bearing the resolve that Bolivia celebrate the Fourth of July as we do here, a gesture to convey her esteem for Mr. Kaufman and the country he represented.

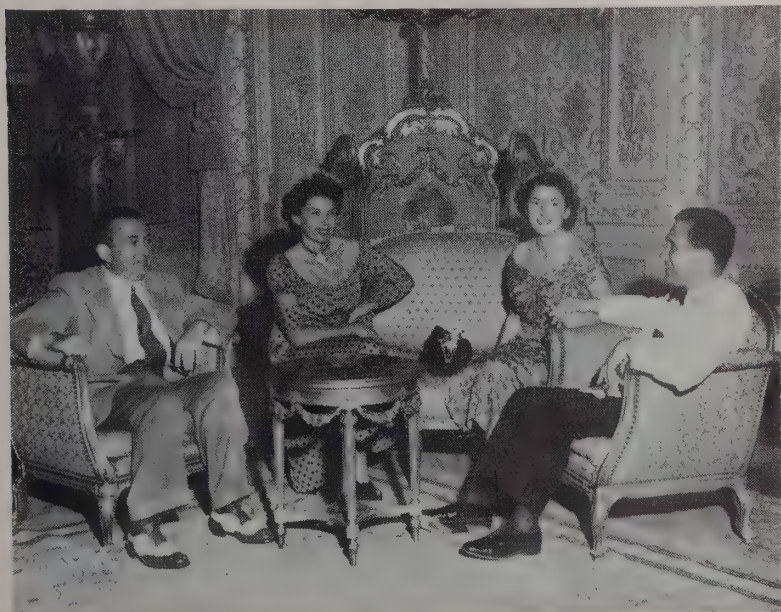

Playing no small part in the enviable success of Whitehall as Queen of resort hotels is Mr. George W. Durkin, managing director who began his sixth year here when Whitehall opened formally on Dec. 20, 1948. Widely traveled and acting as chief in a number of American, Canadian and British hostelries of renown. Mr. Durkin's impeccable taste is evident every where in the Whitehall realm.

MANY RESORT VISITORS are arriving daily at the Colony Hotel sooner than they anticipated because of the unfavorable weather in most sections of the country. Newly-furnished with tropical pieces of aluminum and blue and yellow nylon, the outdoor patio is the first goal of the sun-seekers, and next, the beach only a block away. The patio has the advantage of privacy being surrounded by high walls and landscaped with shrubbery and flowers.

Arriving early in February were Mrs. William Howard Buckley and daughter, Miss Kathleen Mary Buckley, of New York City, who have a suite for the season; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Gaston of New York City, here for their second visit this winter, remaining until March 5; Miss Helen A. Judge of New York City; B. S. Hubbard of Astabula, Ohio, Alan B. Mills of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Charles McNeal of Lyndon, Louisville, Ky., for one month; Paul Robertson of Baltimore, Md., for a month; John B. Ryerson of the Hotel Columbia, Columbia, S. C., for six weeks; Mrs. Bertrand

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Alvord of New York City are visiting Paul G. Brown at the Colony Hotel.

William K. Ryan of Surrey Lodge, Virginia Beach, Va., makes frequent visits in his private plane with parties of friends. They also visit Key West and Havana before returning.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haven Windsor Jr. of Chicago are at the Colony for the season. He is publisher of Popular Mechanics.

The intimate little Bird Cage Bar at the Colony Hotel is a gay rendezvous for innumerable small parties nightly during the cocktail hour from 5 to 7 and later in the evening. Elou Williams, who is singing and playing at the elevated piano over the bar sings several numbers which she featured at the Monkey Bar of the Hotel Elysee in New York City before coming South and selections from the latest musical revues, 'Brigadoon', 'Kiss Me Kate', 'Finian's Rainbow' and others. 'The Money Song' which she introduced here last season, is always one of her encores.

ONE OF PALM BEACH'S beautiful and popular hotels is that charming spot, the Villas, down at the end of Worth Ave. overlooking the lake. The seven lovely villas that make up the hostelry have retained the atmosphere and spirit that was imbued in them by their architect, the famous Addison Mizner, and the simplicity and loveliness of the decor, the beauty of the tropical foliage make the Villas truly one of the finest hotels in the resort.

The Villas Restaurant, this year under the personal management of Miss Grace Dodge Rooney, is prepared to serve the very finest of foods and in addition to the regular meals, any favorite delicacies will be provided for private parties upon request.

Guests who have been stopping at the Villas include Mrs. J. C. Lindop of Wilmette, Ill., Mrs. Walter Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Porter of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford L. Cluett of Troy, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Bradley, Jr. of Old Brookville, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Finn of Dayton, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orthwein of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd Olsen and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver P. Kline of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burpee, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pettit and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker of Philadelphia, and from New York, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Felton, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Gillon, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman K. Ellis and Mr. Maurice Leon.

THE PUTTING GREEN at the Miramar Inn is one of the more popular features of this fine hotel and a great deal of enthusiasm has been shown in this season's weekly putting contests. In addition to the regular green, a new pitch-putt green has been added this year for those who wish to practice up on their approach shots as well as their putting. Winners in the putting contest held on Feb. 2nd were Mrs. Harold Remington of Setauket, L. I. and Mr. Malcolm W. Perkins of Richmond, Va.

At the weekly card party held on Feb. 3rd the winners at the progressive bridge game were Mrs. Harold Messenger of Hartford, Conn. and Mr. Francis E. Piggott of Geneseo, N. Y. Winners at Oklahoma were Mrs. Walter S. Decker of Maplewood, N. J. and Mrs. W. R. Noe of Boothbay Harbor, Maine. Canasta winners were Mrs. Walter L. Tushingham and Mrs. W. E. Schoenborn of Washington, D. C.

Following the regular Sunday night buffet suppers at the Miramar Inn have been a series of musicales. On Feb. 6th Mr. Roland Hunter, popular baritone was heard in recital and the following Sunday evening the Ed Stumpf Quartet was featured.

New arrivals at the Miramar Inn have been Mrs. Robert S. Walker of Richmond, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fatzler and family of Maplewood, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carter of Mount Airy, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Smith of Norfolk, Va., Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Weber of W. Orange, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koos and family from Rahway, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. C. Francis Cocke of Roanoke, Va. and Mr. W. E. Barrett of Richmond, Va.

Arrivals at the Miramar Inn from Glen Ridge, N. J. were Mrs. Frances L. Ward, Mrs. Everett Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ferris and Mr. George Will.

Under The Stars

PATRONS OF THE PATIO, smart resort restaurant-club at County Road and Sunset, are agreed that Directors Dan J. Shalek and Val Ernie are holding to their pre-season pledge to maintain their establishment as an outstanding night-spot in Palm Beach.

Catering to a select clientele, the Patio continues to be known as "the place to see, and be seen," and its tables nightly are occupied by names high in the social, business and sports world.

Directors Shalek and Ernie maintain a three-point policy in providing for the wants of discriminating resorters: Fine food, excellent music, and the best entertainment that can be secured. Proof that their policy is popular is shown by the "names" on the club's register—names that are known internationally.

With a record informal opening in late December, the Patio followed with another record New Year's Eve dinner dance, and came back again with another new mark in its formal opening night.

NANDO'S MIRAMAR RESTAURANT on North Dixie in West Palm Beach is one of the finest dinner spots available to members of the resort who appreciate the best in continental cuisine. The setting is reminiscent of a Parisian bistro with its checked table cloths, wine bottles and sausages hanging from the walls and the gaily festooned lanterns. Dinner is served under the stars in the open patio, or, if you prefer on the sheltered terrace. On hand to entertain the guests is the incomparable gypsy team of Sandro Rosati, violinist and Bernard Fiedler, pianist.

Among the many guests who have been glimpsed at the Miramar Restaurant have been Mr. and Mrs. Jock McLean, Baron and Baroness Paul vonGontard, Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, Mr. Reginald Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Capt. and Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyan, Mr. and Mrs. J. # Century Old Gardens In Historic Charleston

IT WAS AS IF countless treasured pressed flowers burst into new bloom from between pages of some rare old volume of early American history when historic Charleston, South Carolina, began its 1948-1949 Garden Season with the three great old garden estates—Middleton Gardens, Magnolia Gardens and Cypress Gardens. All three are more than a century old. Here the legendary South—the perfumed paradise of pre-Civil War Days—is faithfully preserved in landscape, flower plantings and several surviving plantation buildings. Purportedly, there are more flowers—particularly azaleas—blooming per acre in season at the Charleston Gardens than anywhere else in the United States.

Middleton Gardens at Middleton Place on-the-Ashley (S. C. Highway 61) were landscaped in 1741 by Henry Middleton, later President of the Continental Congress. These, the oldest landscaped gardens in America, were also the estate of Arthur Middleton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and his son, Henry Middleton II, a Governor of South Carolina. The monumental dignity of the Old South is symbolized by the imposing brick mansion house still standing, and by acres of meticulously-sculptured flower terraces sloping to quiet shining reflection pools.

A featurist for the old Century Magazine once wrote, "Before the Revolutionary War the gardens of Mr. Middleton of Carolina were noted in England, and deservedly so." British notice of Middleton Gardens was particularly stimulated when Henry Middleton sent to England for a landscape gardener, who, directing one hundred slaves, worked for more than a decade to complete the famed formal terraces, walks and ornamental waters to blend skillfully the marsh of coastal forest and wistful vistas of river and marsh with the well-ordered beauty of traditional European gardens. Sixty-five sweeping acres are to this day as meticulously kept as a florist's prize dish garden.

Neighboring Magnolia Gardens date back to 1840. The inspiration of the Reverend John Grimke-Drayton, an Episcopal minister, Magnolia Gardens were immortalized by the great British author-playwright, John Galsworthy, who wrote, "Nothing so free and gracious, so lovely and wistful, nothing so richly colored, yet so ghost-like, exists, planted by the sons of men. It is a kind of paradise which has wandered down, a miraculously enchanted wilderness." As the name implies, this garden spot is most noted for its time-honored groves of Magnolia Grandiflora.

A neat Old English landscape in Magnolia Gardens, Charleston, S. C. Here camellias planted in 1840 are still living — some of them now 25 feet high!

Magnolia Gardens might as effectively be called Camellia Gardens, because here one finds the largest collection of camellias in the United States blooming from December to mid-March. Many of the original camellia plants, imported from Europe to Charleston in 1840, have attained heights of twenty-five feet. There are well over 500 varieties of camellia here. In contrast to more formal gardens in Charleston, Magnolia Gardens follows most faithfully the contours of Nature with no straight walks or rectangular plots to proclaim an undue human influence. The gardens grew slowly, acre by acre, over a century until today they are among the nation's largest. The direct descendants of the Reverend Grimke-Drayton are still carrying on his great work. The only changes made here since the passing of the founder have been the changes of time—a fuller flowering, a greater maturity, and a more serene mellowness of floral and arboreal beauty.

Cypress Gardens, on U. S. Highway 52 just outside Charleston, can best be described as a floating forest of flowers. The site of Cypress Gardens, dating back to 1750 in American colonial history, was originally a fresh-water lake used as an irrigation reservoir. Abandoned over one hundred years ago, it became a water forest, a silent world of deep shadows and startling reflections.

Charleston's Famous Gardens, though long the pride of the Charleston gentry and visiting aristocrats, have not been accessible to the general public until recent years. Middleton Gardens lies on a plantation estate of seven thousand acres. Cypress Gardens is part of another vast colonial estate, Dean Hall Plantation. State and federal highways built through the outlying Charleston area since the turn of the present century brought more and more visitors to view these historic gardens. Then, in 1948, the estate owners formed an association to put all three gardens "on dress parade" for the public. Through this association a tour is now possible at any time from November to late spring which takes the visitor to Middleton, Magnolia and Cypress Gardens in one uninterrupted flow of unbelievable color, chimeric landscaping and perfumed breezes.

A graceful bridge over a glassine lagoon in Magnolia Gardens casts a charming symmetrical design upon the waters.

A FLOATING FOREST OF FLOWERS . . . Charleston's Cypress Gardens, planted on islands and banks of a plummeting cypress lake.

Haitian Women Do The Marketing

IN HAITI, IT IS the women who go to market . . . never the men! It is an old tradition, dating back to the ancestral tribes in Africa, when men were often kidnaped by chiefs of rival tribes, to be turned into slaves or warriors. And, in the early days of the Haitian Republic, the men were in danger of being seized by a revolutionary leader and forced into the army . . . so the women went to market. Now it is merely an old Haitian custom!

It is a major duty . . . for the wife to do the marketing. So, at frequent intervals when the farm products (bananas, pineapples, coffee, beans, etc.) are ready, she fills a huge basket with everything available, places it on top of her head and starts on her trek to the nearest market . . . usually about 15 or 20 miles away and she travels on foot.

Thousands of these native women may be seen all over Haiti . . . striding along the roadsides, carrying loads on their heads, that seem all out of proportion to their visible strength. They look like part of the landscape, in their straight one-piece dresses of white, blue or black cotton . . . moving in a picturesque stream along every main road leading to every town, every day of the year, except Sunday. This "pageant" takes place regardless of the weather, because these women are the real wage-earners of the Haitian household.

These "market women" are usually tall and slender with shoulders and back that are flat and straight . . . the enviable posture gained from balancing the immense baskets of farm produce on their heads. They move along in their bare feet with long, steady, graceful strides!

Another thing which interests the visitor to Haiti, in watching these native women . . . her expression as she "marches to market" is a very happy one. And, more often than not, she sings as she swings along the highway.

When the town square is finally reached . . . these happy vendors sit on the ground beside their wares and bargain for the best prices. But it is all fun and they turn what might otherwise be an unpleasant chore, into a merry holiday.

The market places are generally the "heart and soul" of the town . . . sometimes including a landscaped boulevard down the center of the square, with balconied shops bordering the "grand place."

There are many beautiful vistas in Sewall's Point and this very tropical picture of palm trees bordering the swimming pool, was taken at the Robert Cheevy estate. Furnishing a bit of interesting color contrast are the gay beach chairs upholstered in sailcloth. A grand atmosphere for the morning or afternoon dip.

MORNING NOON NIGHT

WHITEHALL offers the complete answer to one's individual ideas of recreation and relaxation.

There's the swimming, tennis and sunbathing at the incomparable Sun and Surf. And the food!

There's the fine golf and all that goes with it at the Palm Beach Country Club. Magnificent food here, too.

At Whitehall proper, the bright cocktail hour in the Lounge . . . followed by sumptuous dinners in the Terrace Dining Room. Then, dancing in the exotic Jardin Royal on Lake Worth to the music of Ruby Newman.

A. M. SONNABEND, President
GEORGE W. DURKIN, Manager
